AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Maguire's New Theatre.

To-night the Gouriays will take a benefit at this house, and a very attractive bill, presenting many new features, which will be found set forth on our first page, will be performed. There will be a matinee performance to-morrow.

Opera House.

No sooner are the doors of this theatre opened than it is crowded to repletion. There is not another variety theatre in the United States where such an attractive performance is given. The minstrel first part is excellent, Billy Emerson is a host in himself, Ben Cotton, Billy Arlington, J. R. Kemble, and the others are extremely clever in note, and the daring and graceful Lottie and Frank, and the charmingly pretty Katie, perform an act on the trapeze which eclipses anything of the kind witnessed on this coast. The usual matinee performance will be given to-morrow.

California Theatre.

Tom Taylor's excellent play of "Lady Clancarty" attracts good houses, and is thoroughly enjoyed by those who can appreciate something better than the clap-trap productions which too often disgrace the stage. Mrs. Henrietta Chanfrau receives much applause for her impersonation of Lady Clancarty, Barton Hill leaves little to be desired in his rendition of the role of Lord Clancarty, and Miss Ellie Wilton, Robert Pateman, Henry Edwards and others act their respective parts very skillfully. "Lady Clancarty" will be played at the matinee to-morrow.

Bella Union Theatre.

The spectacular drama of "The Mountain Queen" with its grand march and beautiful tableaux has made a great hit at this house. It will be repeated this evening. Miss Lizzie Watson, Harry Braham, Albert De Courcy and others will appear in attractive specialties.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Hughey Robinson, Johnny Tuers Frank Mortimore, Edward Barry, Miss Maggie Brewer and a host of others, will appear this evening in a grand olio of acts, songs and dances.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—The Bedouin Arabs will appear in their extraordinary performance on Saturday and Sunday.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 209 Sutter street near Kearny. 8-bg

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsible house. 7-bg

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys' Clothing, is H. Feyser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Mens and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-x

Burkhardt's 540 Washington street.

French calf boots made to order for $8; box toed gaiters made to order for $6; oxford tie shoes made to order for $4; boy's boots made to order for $6; and large assortment of boots and shoes, all of Burkhardt's own make, at equally low sales, at 540 Washington street. 9 B

Music Hath Charms.

Pianos tuned and repaired, at moderate prices and satisfaction guaranteed, by one that understands the business. Also, will perform on Piano at Evening Parties, etc. Orders left at 764 Market or 54 Third street, will receive prompt attention by G. W. Morgan. 4-v*

LOVE IN POVERTY.

'Tis a libel on woman, to say through the casement
Love flies when grim poverty comes to the door.
For the heart that is noble ne'er feels its debasement
To love when the loved one is wealthy no more.

There are ties that are felt in time of dejection,
That link us more closely to love and to life;
And who the world's trials can bring to subjection
Like she who must share them—an American's wife!

We should fail, we should think through the weight of our sorrow.
Were it not that for others we struggle to thrive;
And our children might clamor with hunger to-morrow
If we failed for a day to be hopeful and strive.

Then what though our future be sunless and dreary
And the path we now traverse the downhill of life,—
Though scanty the board, still the home may be cheery,
Illumined by the bright smile of husband and wife!

Not So Dead as he Seemed.

Blinker lay apparently gasping his last, and spasmodically clutching the bed-clothing, while his white face and glazed eyes were turned to the wall. He had suddenly been stricken down with softening of the brain, the doctor said. The doctor added that it was useless to endeavor to save him, and Mrs. Blinker replied that perhaps it was better not to try. She would sit up and watch with the patient, and if his condition improved she would send for the man of medicine; so he went away. Yes, Blinker was apparently going. There was no soft hand on his brow, no gentle arms about him to soothe his descent to the grave, no tearful, agonizing woman holding on to him and refusing to let him go. Mrs. Blinker sat, on the contrary, over in a corner with Mr. Squibbs, who was pressing her hand and murmuring sweet things softly and low in her willing ear. Now and then, too, Squibbs would imprint a kiss on the lady's lips as long as a Bologna sausage. It would smack out upon the stillness of the room like the explosion of a torpedo, and was followed always by a groan from Blinker. "He dies hard," whispered Squibbs. "Yes, but he hangs on a long time," replied Mrs. Blinker. Another long-drawn kiss from Squibbs' lips sounded like the tapping of a sugar maple tree. "We'll be happy when he's gone, darling, won't we?" said Squibbs. "O, won't we, though, when he gets out of the way!" "And we shan't have to take secret walks by the light of the beautiful moon?" "No, my darling Squibbs, you shall come here. I'll draw all Blinker's money out of the bank, and we'll sip together the nectared sweets of life." Blinker had been so quiet they fancied he was already dead; but just then turning to look, there stood Blinker beside them, fire in his eye, and a heavy rattan cane in his hand. Getting his hand well twisted in Squibbs's long hair, he quickly laid him out. Mrs. Blinker screamed and fainted. When she had recovered, Blinker piled her across Squibbs, and sat on them both, studying what he should do next. Perceiving upon the mantel a bottle of indelible ink, with a marking-brush attached to it, he daubed the ink over their faces, and wound up by booting Squibbs down the street. As it turned out, the whole scheme of sickness and death had been planned by Blinker, and the doctor, in order to ascertain how matters stood between Squibbs and Mrs. Blinker. When Blinker shammed sick he had been in better health, as Squibbs sadly realized; and now Mrs. Blinker, with her inky face, thinks there's nobody in the world like her "dear old Blinker."

Parliamentary Etiquette.

The British House of Commons was vastly amused on the evening of July 28th, when Mr. Brand, son of the Speaker of the House, took his seat as the member for Stroud. The new member was formally introduced to the Speaker by Sir Erskine May, and there was an outburst of laughter when the father, with the cordial shaking of his son's hand, expressed himself as being happy at making the acquaintance.

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescoed and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

Family Shoe Store.

C. H. King & Co., 708 Market street, has one of the finest and best stock of Boots and Shoes in the city. Entire satisfaction is given by this firm. Give them a call. 7-bg

CENTRE MARKET.

WHO OCCUPY THE STALLS.

Hepburn has opened stall 4, with fresh meats of all kinds. Families and restaurants supplied on the shortest notice.

Stall 38, Holm & Boyle have a splendid assortment butter, eggs, cheese and a general assortment of fancy groceries. Goods delivered free.

Stalls 39 and 40 are occupied by Karlin & Hassard, dealers in fruits, vegetables, etc., of the best and freshest. Delivered free of charge.

Stall 8, makes a magnificent show of fresh meats. Jos. O. de Volt & Co., wholesale and retail dealers, have one of the nicest stalls in the market. Restaurants and families will find it to their advantage to give them a call.

BOSTON OYSTER HOUSE.—L. O. Pratt has opened stalls 89 and 90 in Centre Market. Oysters in every style. Chops and Steaks of the choicest. Ladies private rooms up stairs. 7-E

Stalls 91, 92 and 93, have been opened by Anderson & Marshall as the Long Branch oyster house. They are among the oldest oyster men in the city.

Swain's original bakery has opened a magnicent place at 213 Sutter street, near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen!
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins!
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. D. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-T

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Mr. Meyer, in his new and elegant premises, will be able to better accommodate his numerous patrons. 7-bg

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
W. S. AIKEN, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW AND Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic in California and Nevada, gives prompt attention to the collection of Additional Pay, now due California and Nevada Volunteers discharged more than three hundred miles from home. Soldiers can depend on fair dealing. Information given free of charge. When writing enclose stamp for reply, and state company, regiment, and whether you have a discharge. Congress has extended the time for filing claims for additional Bounty under Act of July 28, 1866, to January 1875 so all such claims must be made before that time. Original Bounty of $100 has been allowed all volunteers who enlisted before July 22d, 1861, for three years, if not paid the same when discharged. Land Warrants can be obtained for services rendered before 1856, but not for services in the late war. Pensions for late war and war of 1812 obtained and increased when allowed for, less than disability warrants, but no pensions are allowed to Mexican and Florida war soldiers. State of Texas has granted Pensions to her invalid veterans of Texas Revolution. New Orleans and Mobile Prize Money now due and being paid. W. S. PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—The Royal Marionettes are drawing good houses at the Metropolitan Theatre.

CHICO.—Little Mac's Minstrels performed here to good business on the 7th and 8th.

RED BLUFF.—Little Mac's Minstrels were here on the 9th and 10th.

SAN JOSE.—Garrick and Stanley's Minstrels performed at the Opera House on the 10th to a fair house. The Mercury says they gave a very good show. The Templeton Star Alliance will appear at the Opera House during Fair week.

VIRGINIA CITY.—Joe Murphy closed his engagement as Piper's Opera House on the 9th, appearing in "Maum Cre." The Black Crook Company will open on Monday.

CARSON CITY.—Joe Murphy and the company from Piper's Opera House commenced an engagement here on the 10th.

OAKLAND.—Dr. Healy's Hibernian Gems exhibited here on Thursday and again last night to splendid business. There will be a matinee to-day and an evening entertainment.

VALLEJO.—Dr. Healy's Hibernian Gems will show here on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

GRASS VALLEY.—Charles Vivian, assisted by Mrs. J. Reilly and Madame A. E. A. Muse gave an entertainment at Hamilton Hall on the 7th. The Grass Valley Union says: "Monday night last Mr. Charles Vivian announced here from the stage, that he would return to this place next Saturday night and give a performance for the benefit of the sufferers of Mokelumne Hill, should the sufferers there need assistance. The entire proceeds of the concert will be turned over to the proper committee at Mokelumne Hill, if there is a such a committee. Mr. Hamilton tendered the free use of the theatre for the proposed concert. We are confident that the Mokelumne Hill people need all the assistance they can get." The Marionettes will show on Monday.

MARYSVILLE.—The Black Crook Company showed here on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

PORTLAND.—The Oregonian says:—Madame Phelps will open a brief theatrical season at Oro Fino Theatre on the 26th inst., with Amy Stone as the attraction. Mrs. Phelps writes that she has secured Charles Wheatleigh, who will appear here just prior to the Fair.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

'Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Night to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

Signor Giulio Perkins, an American basso, and Mlle. Marie Roze (Marie Pousin), both of Mr. Mapleson's Italian Opera Company, London, Eng., have been married.

Madame Boube the actress was bitten on the arm lately, while on the seashore at Etretat, by a poisonous fly. She paid no attention to it for the moment, but the limb began to swell the next day, and she has now had to be brought back to her residence in Paris, France, and her state caused her friends some anxiety. A change for the better had, however, set in. August seems to have been unpropitious to the Paris actresses, as Mlle. Daireaux was seriously ill, and Mlle. Cico in a dangerous state.

Mr. Alf. Burnett, the celebrated American humorist and facial transformationist, "made faces" at a London, Eng., audience for the first time on Monday evening, August 10th, assisted by Miss Helen Nash, also most favorably known to the public of this country. Their entertainment was heartily enjoyed, and the opening may be characterized as very auspicious.

The London Hornet takes Mr. Robert Buchanan, the poet-dramatist, to task for having appeared in answer to a "call" upon the occasion of the production of his new piece at the Haymarket theatre, in a costume "between that of a casual and a game-keeper—an old brown velvet coat, check trousers, and a woolen muffler, which completely obscured any signs of the presence of a shirt."

Mr. Arthur Mathison, late of the Fifth Avenue theatre and Niblo's, will play Blondee in Halli day's version of "The Talisman" at the Drury Lane theatre, London.

The Pall Mall Gazette states that Offenbach signed lately an engagement with Messrs. Wood & Cramer, for a three-act opera bouffe, to be sent in on the 15th of November. A thousand pounds is to be paid on the completion of each act. The libretto, "Whittington and his Cat," is by H. B. Farnie.

A Big Benefit.

The Yreka Journal says: It was a rousing one—that benefit given by Dr. Haskell at Reed's Opera House the other night for the Salem firemen. The entire net proceeds, after paying all necessary expenses, gaslight, printing, etc., amounted to five dollars.

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 209 Sutter street near Kearny. 8-bg

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsible house. 7-bg

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Pegser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks, and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-x

Music Hath Charms.

Pianos tuned and repaired, at moderate prices and satisfaction guaranteed, by one that understands the business. Also, will perform on Piano at Evening Parties, etc. Orders left at 754 Market or 54 Third street, will receive prompt attention by G. W. Morgan. 4-v

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies. The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapmen & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-i

New Wine and Oyster House.

Mr. A. Freeman, formerly under the California Theatre, has opened his new Wine and Oyster House, at 228 Sutter street opposite the Centre Market. Oysters fresh from the beds, and Wines of the finest brands. 8.

Removal.

Dr. George F. Thomas, has removed his Consultation Rooms, to 420 Kearny street, near California. The Dr. treats all private diseases of every form, with the utmost skill. 8-z

CENTRE MARKET,

WHO OCCUPY THE STALLS.

Hepburn has opened stall 4. with fresh meats of all kinds. Families and restaurants supplied on the shortest notice.

Stall 38, Holm & Boyle have a splendid assortment butter, eggs, cheese and a general assortment of fancy groceries. Goods delivered free.

Stalls 39 and 40 are occupied by Kerlin & Hazzard, dealers in fruit, vegetables, etc., of the best and freshest. Delivered free of charge.

Stall 3, makes a magnificent show of fresh meats. Jos. O. de Volt & Co., wholesale and retail dealers, have one of the nicest stalls in the market. Restaurants and families will find it to their advantage to give them a call.

BOSTON OYSTER HOUSE.—L. O. Pratt has opened stalls 89 and 90 in Centre Market. Oysters in every style. Chops and Steaks of the choicest. Ladies private rooms up stairs. 7-z

Stalls 91, 92 and 93, have been opened by Anderson & Marshall as the Long Branch oyster house. They are among the oldest oyster men in the city.

Swain's original bakery has opened a magnicent place at 213 Sutter street, near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. D. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-r

Parliamentary Etiquette.

The British House of Commons was vastly amused on the evening of July 28th, when Mr. Brand, son of the Speaker of the House, took his seat as the member for Stroud. The new member was formally introduced to the Speaker by Sir Erskine May, and there was an outburst of laughter when the father, with the cordial shaking of his son's hand, expressed himself as being happy at making the acquaintance.

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescoed and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

OPERA HOUSE.—The excellent entertainment given at this house has drawn crowded houses during the week. The same bill will be played at the matinee to-day, this evening and to-morrow evening: It comprises a bright first part, in which Billy Emerson, Ben Cotton, Con. T. Murphy, W. F. Baker, J. G. Russell, J. R. Kemble and others appear, the burlesque prima donna performances of Ernest Linden, the acts of "Good Morning" by Billy Rice and J. R. Kemble, songs and dances and specialties by Billy Emerson, the screaming farce "Barnum's Elephant" and the extraordinary and perilous feat entitled "The Aerostatic Voyage," which is causing as great a sensation here as it did when performed at the Alhambra Theatre London. Miss Lottie and Katie and their brother Frank are nightly applauded to the echo.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—The new historical drama by Tom Taylor, entitled "Lady Clancarty," has met with good success at this theatre. Mrs. Chanfrau as Elizabeth Spencer, receives much applause, and the fine acting of Barton Hill as Donough Macarthy is generally admired. "Lady Clancarty" will be played at the matinee to-day and this evening, for the last time.

MAGUIRE'S NEW THEATRE.—The new programme for the benefit of the Gourlays last night was quite a success. After "Mrs. McGregor's Levee" Miss Minnie Gourlay made quite a hit in "Military Style" with drum accompaniement. The performance concluded with the little comedy entitled 'Rights of Women; or the Rose and the Thistle,' which was capitally acted by Mrs. Gourlay, Mr. Gourlay and Miss Minnie Gourlay. The Gourlays will perform "Mrs. McGregor's Levees" at the matinee to-day, and this evening the bill which proved so successful last night will be repeated.

NEW BELLA UNION THEATRE.—The drama of "The Mountain Queen" in which Miss Kate Raymond and C. B. Collins appear, continues a great success at this house. Miss Lizzie Watson sings a great variety of popular songs, Harry Braham is very amusing in his comic songs, and Miss Lizzie Watson and Harry Braham appear together in "Tommy Joy, or the Picture of Innocence."

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE.—Frank Mortimere, Ned Buckley and Johnny Tuers appear in the act of "Sublime and Ridiculous," Hughey Robinson appears in "Bad Whisky," Edward Barry sings baritone songs, and a very attractive programme is presented.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—The Bedouin Arabs will appear in their extraordinary performance on Saturday and Sunday.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is the one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain Railroad.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms. Guido Mangenberg, the proprietor, gets up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

GRAND SUNDAY EXCURSION.—The steamer Antelope leaves San Francisco every Saturday at 2:30. P. M. and on Sunday at 9 A. M. from Front Street Wharf, connecting with the cars of the S. F. & N. P. Railroad at Donahue for Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Healdsburg and Cloverdale. Excursion tickets are issued at reduced rates, and are good from Saturday to Monday. Those who wish to enjoy a little country air at the end of the week could not choose a finer trip than this excursion offers.

EXCURSION TO GREEN POINT, ALVISO, SAN JOSE AND SANTA CLARA.—To accommodate excursionists, the swift and elegant steamer Pilot will leave Front-street Wharf on Sunday, Sept. 13th, at 10 o'clock A. M., affording the cheapest and most pleasant excursion on the Bay. Excursion tickets to Green Point and Alviso and return $1; excursion tickets to San Jose and Santa Clara and return, $1 50.

NOTES.—At the California Theatre, Taylor held the boards during the week. Next week we are to have a taste of Tayloure. Mrs. Henriette Chanfrau will appear in a new emotional play by C. W. Tayloure, entitled "Was She Right? a Question for Woman."

Zoe, the Cuban Sylph, reputed to be one of the most beautiful women on the American stage, and an actress of fine ability, is to make her appearance at Maguire's New Theatre on Monday evening. An Eastern paper, speaking of this lady in her most famous role, says:

The performance of "The French Spy," a familiar drama of rather startling effects, last night, at the Academy of Music, was in one particular a surprise to us. The representation was much better than we had expected. The capture of Algiers by the French in 1830, the event on which the play is founded gives the plot a depth and variety that make it suitable only for acting by a good company comprising at least two or three performers of more than average ability. Madamoiselle Zoe takes the leading part with signal success; she is a pantomimist of rare merit, and in facility of movement and gracefulness, she is not excelled by any actress known in this country. The sword exercise which occurred in her combat with Mohammed, was a remarkable exhibition of skill. Persons unfamiliar with such sights usually regard them with painful interest, rather than with pleasure; but close study of an exhibition of fencing, when it is made by experts like these, will repay any observer. The attack, the defence, the advance, the retreat, the manœuvering for position, the thrusts, the parries, and the many expedients of sword exercise, in a mimic combat, form together an art whose value is not confined to men-at arms; but it is esteemed one of the finest of gymnastic exercises, for persons of literary pursuits, for artists, and generally for men of sedentary occupation. The romance of the piece of last night; the love affair which took the heroine (Mlle. Zoe) into the French army, and resulted in assigning her to the duty of a spy at the Algerine capital; the escape of her lover, Col. DeCourcy, by the Arabs; the rescue of the unavailing efforts of the Dey, by threats and promises, to retain the spy as his mistress; and finally the attempted execution, (which was by the storming of Algiers happily prevented)—were well rendered by the company; and with some humorous variations, in the minor parts, that invested it with a new interest to the audience, the performance was a creditable one.

Miss Emelie Melville, who has been studying for the operatic stage for a number of years, is awaiting an opportunity to appear before the public of San Francisco in Italian opera.

Sol Smith Russell who was such a favorite when he appeared here with the Berger Family, is playing at Fifth Avenue Theatre, where he is engaged as a comedian.

After the withdrawal of "Venice Preserved" from the stage of Booth's Theatre, John McCullough will appear in Othello, Spartacus, and other favorite roles. Mr. McCullough's engagement expires on the 19th.

The New York Spirit of the Times says Mr. Toole made a dead failure in "Paul Pry," but proved himself a capital acter in the part of Harry Coke, in "Off the Line."

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, at Booth's, "Venice Preserved," by Boucicault, was produced on the 7th, with John McCullough and Miss Katharine Rogers Randolphe in the leading roles. Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams are to commence their engagement at this theatre on the 21st in "The Connie Soogah".....At Wallack's, Dan Bryant appeared on the 27th ult. in "Handy Andy" and "The Irish Emigrant," taking the place of J. L. Toole, who was incapacitated for business in consequence of having sprained his ankle. Mr. Toole made his reappearance on the 31st ult. in "Paul Pry" and "Off the Line".....At Niblo's, the grand allegorical-spectacular of "The Deluge" was produced with a great specialty and dramatic company on the 7th. The cast was as follows: Satan, Miss Julia Seaman; Eve and Novemi, Miss Lily Macdonald; Abel, Miss Katie New; Spirit of Mercy, Miss Kate Fellows; Daughter of Sin, Miss Nellie Walton; Adam and Japhet, R. B. Steele; Cain and Tubal, George Stretton; Gabriel, W. A. Davenport; Moloch, George Elliot; Chamos, Alfred Court; Beelzebub, Henry Norton; Adramalech, W. J. Sigmund; Belial, H. P. Searle; Ganef, G. L. Wood.....At the Fifth-Avenue Theatre, Daly's latest play, entitled "What Should She Do? or, Jealousy," the full plot of which we published on Monday last, ran till the 5th, when it was followed by the "Fast Family".....At the Lyceum, "La Timbale d'Argent" is being performed by the Aimee Troupe. "La Princess de Trebiconde" and "La Jolie Parfeumeuse" are underlined.....At Union Square Theatre, Miss Charlotte Thompson has made a great success in "Jane Eyre." The regular season is to commence on Sept. 10 h ..... The Union-Square Theatre is to open for the regular Fall and Winter season on Saturday evening, Sept. 19. The company will be as follows: Messrs. Charles R. Thorne, Jr.; McKee Rankin, Stuart Robson, F. F. Mackay, John Parselle, Claude Burroughs, H. W. Montgomery, J. W. Thorpe, W. H. Wilder, W. S. Quigley, the Misses Rose Eytinge, Fanny Morant (in litigation), Kate Claxton, Maude Granger, Louise Henderson, Roberta Norwood, Kate Holland, Meta Bartlett, Mary Stuart, Cora Cassidy, Ella Burns, Hattie Thorpe, and Mrs. Marie Wilkins. Miss Clara Morris will play a limited engagement in the Fall prior to making a tour of the principal cities, and will rejoin the company the following Spring.....At Wood's Museum "Foul Play" was produced on the 7th.... At the Olympic, George and Charles Reynolds commenced an engagement on the 31st ult..... Dan Bryant commenced the Winter season on the 31st ult. with a company comprising Bob Hart, Nelse Seymour, Dave Reed, W. H. Brookway and a number of fine vocalists .....The San Francisco Minstrels commenced their season on the 3d..... Marietta Ravel appeared at the Bowery Theatre on the 31st ult. in "The French Spy".....The Park Theatre is to open on the 14th for the purpose of presenting John T. Raymond in Mark Twain's play of "Colonel Sellers."

Harry Stanwood is quite ill at Cobourg, Ont., but soon expects to be ready for Fall work.

"Jackley's Vienna Circus," of which Mike Lipman and J. C. Davis are proprietors, began a season of five weeks on the "Palace Variety" lot near the corner of Fourth and Vine streets in Cincinnati, on Aug. 27, the canvas being literally packed. The full company is not yet here, but the exhibition was varied and good. Julien Kent and old Bill Worrell are the clowns, and S. Q. Stokes is master of the circle.

John T. Raymond plays in Buffalo for one week, commencing Sept 7.

Robert McWade commences an engagement in Cincinnati on Sept. 21.

Miss Eliza Weathersby is at the Holliday Street theatre, Baltimore.

Mr. J. L. Toole commences an engagement in Boston, Jan. 18.

Miss Charlotte Cushman will read in Lowell, Mass. Oct. 6.

J. B. Studley is at the Howard Athenæum, Boston.

Miss Eliza Weathersby will probably join the company at Ford's Opera House, Washington, at the opening of the season.

Mr. Mark Smith was selected to play Henry VIII at Booth's during the engagement of Miss Charlotte Cushman.

Edwin Adams is playing "Hamlet," at McVicker's theatre, Chicago, and winning high commendation.

Mr. Barnum will open his Hippodrome in New York early in September, presenting many fresh attractions secured by his European agent, Mr. Coup. This is the Moral Showman's last Coup de maitre.

Messrs. Delehanty and Hengler will shortly return to New York for the season. They will again visit England next year.

Mrs. Josephine Mansfield is suing Nathan Appleton for inducing her, by false representations to invest $13,000 in the exploded banking firm of Bowles Bros., in which he was a partner. She brings her intimate, Ella Wesner, as a witness to the wiles of Nathan.

The Great Garetta Troupe, consisting of Mlle. Garetta, Senor El Monta, and Little Eddie Monta, have just closed a successful engagement at Shelby's, Buffalo. They advertise to open at Colonel Sion's, Front street, Baltimore, Sept 14.

Dan Rice's Pavilion and appurtenances, which had figured at the Paris exhibition, was sold at auction in Baltimore on the 24th to meet claims of storage, etc. It had been stored there in November 1871, after running for a disastrous season of four weeks. The original cost was given at $30 000. It sold for $1,800, less $900 expenses, leaving but $1,100.

Cole's N. Y. and N. O. Circus, Paris, Tenn., 12th; Brownsville, 14 h; Memphis, 15th and 16th.

The grasshoppers at Topeka, Kan., destroyed many of John Wilson's circus posters, in order to eat the paste under the paper.

A meeting of the dramatic profession was to be held at Booth's Theatre, Sept 1, to give expression to the sorrowful feelings aroused by the news of Mark Smith's sudden death, and to take such measures as will mark their respect for the deceased actor when his remains shall arrive from France. Mr. Lester Wallack was to preside.

A country paper says that a New York bachelor with capacious pockets, has adopted little Jennie Oliver Doud Byron, Cincinnati 31st, two weeks; Louisville, 14th.

Pedanto, in his balloon ascent from Smith's Island, opposite Philadelphia, in the Delaware River, on August 25, met with an accident which came near costing him his life. A partial rent was discovered in the balloon during the filling process but it was so small that Pedanto did not calculate that it would in the least interfere with his ascent. Richard Smith, a son of the proprietor of the Island, accompanied him disguised as a baboon. At 6 P. M. Pedanto and his comrade seated themselves on the trapeze, and, the ropes being cut, they ascended slowly, the wind being high and carrying them across the river towards the city. On the west side, the balloon, which was evidently losing gas fast, scraped the topmast of a bark, and it was necessary to drop a quantity of ballast to keep it from sinking amongst the shipping. It reached an altitude of seventy-five feet above all other obstructions, but by the time it approached Fourth street, Philadelphia side, it again commenced to sink rapidly, and struck the weather vane on the building of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, corner of Fourth street and Willing's Alley, causing an immediate collapse and a rapid descent. Pedanto seized a rope, and as the balloon approached the ground he jumped with deliberation and escaped with a sprained ankle. Young Smith attempted to do likewise, but became entangled, and struck the ground very hard, breaking two ribs and receiving several severe bruises. His injuries were serious, but not fatal. Pedanto made another ascent on Saturday, his balloon having been repaired.

The New York Clipper says: Mr. George Darrell, Mr. William Hoskins and the Misses Fanny Cathcart and Florence Colville have decided to return to Australia. They have secured the right to perform Dion Boucicault's and Augustin Daly's plays in all the principal cities there. Mr. Darrell has sold his society drama of "Her Face Her Fortune," to Miss Bessie Darling, and a four act romantic drama to Lester Wallack.

W. P. Spaulding of Spaulding's Swiss Bell Ringers, announces through the Clipper, that he will not put any company on the road this season, having arranged to visit California with G. L. Fox's troupe.

Caroline Richings Bernard and her Musical Union will inaugurate the season at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, Sept. 15, with a grand costume concert.

At the Howard Athenæum, Boston, Mass., J. B. Studley acted in "The Bells; or, the Polish Jew." On Aug. 31, a drama by Fred G. Maeder, entitled "Kit Karson," was produced with Donald McKay and a troupe of Warm Spring Indians, Mr. Studley enacting the title role. The usual variety olio precedes the drama.

The Minnie Loder Combination closed at Millerstown, Pa., on Aug. 22, and the company disbanded. Miss Loder is, for the present, sojourning at Petrolia for the benefit of her health.

At Fox's American theatre, Philadelphia, there is little or no change in the general programme. Mr. F. evidently reserving his strength. Will Vane, English banjoist, is the latest new appearance. "Passion's Perils," a "T. T.-H. W. B." sensation, is announced. The portraits of the principals in the late scandal—without names—have been used in billing the city, and The Graphic's caricatures have been drawn upon extensively for the same purpose. Kate Lannier and ballet troupe are underlined.

Simmons & Slocum's Minstrels, Philadelphia, began their season Aug. 31. The additions to the company are Charles Reed, a California comedian; Harrington and McGlone, song and dance men; Postelle, female impersonator; and J. L. Woolsey, tenor; Billy Sweatnam rejoins the troupe, and will enhance its success, as he is very popular. Lew Simmons, E. N. Solcum, George Thatcher, Welch and Rice will contribute to the comic department; Messrs. Shattuck, Hamilton, Charles Stevens, and J. H. Stout, to the vocalism; while Rudolph Peiz, Eddie Fox, J. H. Peck, J. D. Paul, E. Strasser, W. Clark and O. Weeks will attend to the instrumentl music.

Bobby Newcomb arrived in Chicago, Ill., from San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 22.

Rose Wood and Lewis Morrison, Arch, Philadelphia, September 14th with combination, one week.

The New York Mercury says: E. D. Davies, the famous premier ventriloquist of the world, is now enjoying his first vacation in this country prior to his departure, Sept 7, to fill a long engagement in San Francisco.

Annoying Interference.

There is always somebody to interfere with lovely woman in her efforts to prove her equality with man. There was that young woman of New Orleans, named Lena de Laine, who tried six different times to commit suicide, and each time she was stopped by some impertinent man, who insisted upon rescuing her from a watery grave, or cutting the rope, or blowing out the charcoal, or wrenching the knife out of her hand, or knocking aside the pistol, or inserting one end of a stomach pump into her throat and turning her inside out. And that female with a sigh said she'd have to give up suicide because the men wanted to have that, as well as all other luxuries, to themselves.

Of Course.

The Call says:

There is a buried city, within a day's travel of San Francisco, where a hundred or more homeless people are mourning over the still smouldering ruins. These people need assistance, but as yet we have seen no effort made to afford it. Why would it not be a graceful and proper thing on the part of our managers to give a night's proceeds for this object?

Why doesn't the Call man make a similar suggestion to the churches? Why, would it not be a graceful and proper thing on the part of the preachers to give up the pew rents for one Sunday to this object?

A Race for a Cup.

A well-dressed chap entered a jewelry store and inquired if he could see those cups in the window, pointing, as he spoke to silver cups, lined with gold, in the window. "These," said the jeweler, handing him one, "are race cups." "Race cups! what race cups?" inquired the customer. "Why," replied the jeweler, "they are cups I had ordered to be made for prizes to the best racer." "Well, if that's so, suppose you and me race for one!" and with cup in hand started, the jeweler after him. He probably won the cup.

Very True.

Somebody, we don't know if he is a clergyman, says: It is very hard to be a good Christian when one has a weak digestion, and I sometimes fancy that a change of stomach would benefit the morbid sinner almost as much as a change of heart.

Ministers and Actors.

It would be in order now for the pulpit to make a general onslaught on the stage. The "immorality of actors" wouldn't be a bad subject for to-day's discourses. We haven't heard much about the morals of actors lately. But we can't say as much for the ministers. Quite a number of them have been hanging unhappily on the ragged edges of public opinion of late.

Be Grateful.

The Detroit Free Press says: Say no more about Europe. She is taking care of Joaquin Miller, Josie Mansfield, Genet and two American base ball clubs; and if that isn't kindness what is.

Brevet Rank.

It seems very evident from her letter that Mrs. Morse considered herself, in a measure, Beecher's mother in law.

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. D. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-z

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 212 Kearny Street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. x

An Ass.

The New York Dispatch makes the following genial remarks about one of the Beechers: "Can't some friend of the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher induce his brother, the Rev. Thomas K., to cease letter writing? He writes the most disgusting and flatulent puffery of his brother, and abases himself into the dust. In fact the Rev. Thomas K. is a man for whose word nobody will have any respect after reading such Uriah Heepish stuff as this: 'The divergencies of view between my brother and myself, to which the letter alludes, and which have prevented a hearty co-operation between us, were of a kind which, when known, redound to his credit in popular esteem, and to my disgrace—demonstrating him a wise man and me a fool.' This reverend gentleman is so exceedingly humble that he wants to be kicked. If some one were to break his right arm so that he couldn't write any more letters, Henry Ward Beecher would be the gainer. The Beechers ought to keep out of the fight. Those of them who have written letters have shown that a family may contain members of talent as great as that of Henry Ward Beecher and Mrs. Harriet Stowe, and yet the rest of the family be deficient in good sense. No friend of Mr. Beecher will be anxious to see any more such asinine productions as that of Thomas K. put in print.

"Sassing" an Orator.

A colored Demosthenes who held forth in Bridgeport, Conn., the other evening, upon the "Beecher scandal," evoked a vegetable storm on the spot of considerable dimensions. In a few minutes "garden sass" began to fill the air, and he had a carroty head, a reddish countenance, a turnip nose, and looked like a genuine "beat" who had foolishly cabbaged his way into an unbecoming station. He thoroughly "knew beans" before he retired from the rostrum, and yet not one of his auditors who had given him such touching proofs of attention could tell whether the "squashed" orator intended to defend or assail the Plymouth Church idol.

Hard to Digest.

The Bible is very hard to digest for most stomachs. Even a codfish has tried it in vain. A copy of the book, bound in calf, according to the Edinburgh Scotsman, was lately found in the stomach of a codfish, and bore the name of William Sim, and the date 1830. It has been learned that Sim was a sailor of Dundee, who went to sea in 1834 and has not been heard from since The supposition is that everything appertaining to him was devoured by this fish which had been tormented for forty years with an indigestible Bible in its stomach.

A Modest Artist.

Monsieur Bilboquet ("Peintre Academicien"): "I tell you, sare, zat ze secret of all true art is lost, and zat painting is a zing of ze past. Zere are not more zan shree men living who are worzy of ze name of painter!"

His Patron and Admirer: "Yes, yes. And who are the three men, Monsieur Bibloquet?"

Monsieur Bibloquet: "Vell, I am one of zem! have forgetten ze names of ze two ozers."

Doubtful.

A young woman in Missouri is indulging in trances four days long, during which time she goes to heaven—that is, she says she does. But there are some Doubting Thomases out there who think it's t'other place, or else she'd stay. Streets of gold and thrones of porphyry are much nicer things, they think, to look at than a log house, slim pigs, and a corn-juice-loving father.

Stopped her Fooling.

Granny Alta has put off her clown's suit and no more shakes her bells in the Brevity Column. Her champion fool has gone to New York, and C. Weimore is once more soberly chronicling the news of the day and writing an occasional sharp paragraph. We trust the local column of the Alta will never again become quite so idiotic as it was some weeks ago.

Striking.

"Did anything about the defendant strike your eye as remarkable?" asked the judge of the plaintiff in a case of assault and battery. "It did, yer honor." "And what was it?" continued the judge. "His fist, yer honor."

An Outward Sign.

The window of the Chronicle office is adorned with a mammoth beet that weighs ever so many pounds; and it's only a young beet at that. The Chronicle establishment has long been notorious for its big beats.

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Twelfth-Hour Reformation.

Dick Biker and Joe Miller two jolly countrymen, were returning late from the county fair. They had been drinking and both were tipsy. Arriving at Tim Watson's the village blacksmith, who also added to his usefulness the business of tavern-keeping, Dick Biker said: "Joe let's have a drink." "All right," was the thick-tongued answer. Dick Biker staggered to the door and pounded away, but no one responded; the lights were out, the inmates had retired to bed. Joe Miller, who stood balancing himself in an uncertain manner for a while, got impatient and started up the road, zigzagging from one fence corner to the other. Dick finally started for the other side of the house, but did not get very far, as the attraction of cohesion kept him there until the smith's apprentice, who had also been at the fair, struck his foot against the prostrate man. "Why, bless me," he exclaimed. "Get up, Dick Biker, and come into the house;" but Dick snored away, and the apprentice procured a large iron hook, attached it to the back of Dick's collar, dragged him into the smithy, and left him there in a corner. When Dick was restored to self-consciousness it was amid deep, sinister rumblings, clashing of chains, and other terrible sounds. When the fumes partially floated away from his brain, he saw that the flames cast a lurid light upon certain awful forms, and upon the faces of malignant satyrs and grinning fiends! Great drops of perspiration gathered upon his brow, and his heart beat with apprehension like a sledge-hammer. Had his wife's predictions, so often repeated, become a reality? Had Lucifer really dragged him to the bottomless pit? He got on his knees and implored. "O, Mr. Belzebub," said he, "you took advantage of me when you dragged me down here. I was drunk. Let me go and I will reform. I will never drink another drop. My wife often said that old Monongahela was pizen, and if I did not stop drinking, the Devil would get me for his own. Let me out, my dear Mr. Belzebub, and I won't drink any more. It was naughty to drink, that's a fact; but the pizen smelled too tempting." A black, grinning fiend, gave the shrinking wretch a dig in the ribs, and shouted, "Dick Biker, ain't you sober yet? It's daybreak. Get up and have a nerve-settler." That hint was enough. Despite all his reformatory resolutions of the moment before, Dick could not resist the tempting aroma of Old Rye.

Enough Pretty Names.

A Western paper says that Ben Butler wanted Kansas to name a town after him. They answered that they had one place named Devil's Gulch, and another called Hellville. They think that's about sufficient of such names for one State.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we form'd a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true.
And cooked magnificently, too:
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, than
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins,
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name.
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

Maguire's New Theatre.

Long before the curtain rose, last night, this beautiful little theatre was crowded to its utmost capacity. The performance commenced with the spicy little comedy of "The Pretty Horsebreaker," which was capitally performed by Miss Sydney Cowell, Mrs. Rea, Miss Raynor, George Giddens, and others. After this the curtain rose on "The French Spy," and Mlle. Marie Zoe received a most hearty welcome on making her appearance. She proved herself an admirable pantomimist, and by her piquante style of acting at once made herself popular with the audience. She was ably supported by James A. Herne as Mohammed, E. J. Buckley as Col. De Courcy, and George Giddens as Tony Bavard. The play was splendidly mounted and the tableaux were presented with better effect than at any former representation of the play on the California stage. The broadsword combat was a great sensation, and the wild Arab dance fairly brought down the house. Mlle. Zoe has made a hit, and will certainly draw crowded houses during her brief engagement. The same bill, which was so well received last night, will be repeated to-night.

Opera House.

This house was, as usual, crammed to suffocation last night, and the new programme presented gave thorough satisfaction. Billy Emerson and Ben Cotton on the ends kept the audience in a roar of laughter, and J. F. Oberist's melodious warblings drew loud applause, Billy Rice surpassed himself in his oration, J. R. Kemble, Billy Carlington, Ben Cotton and others were excellent in the act entitled "Barnum's Elephant." Billy Emerson presented new specialties, "The Ladder of Fame" went off screamingly, and the unparalleled feat entitled "The Aerostatic Voyage" was performed by Lottie, Frank and Kattie in a manner which afforded a new sensation to all who beheld it. The same excellent bill will be presented to-night.

California Theatre.

Clifton Taylcurs's play entitled "Was She Right?" produced at this theatre last night, proved a decided success. Mrs. Chanfrau as Emily Steadman did some capital acting, and in the scene in which she denies her marriage for the purpose of retaining her child, fairly brought down the house. Miss Jennie Lee made quite a hit in the character of Belle Steadman, and was frequently applauded. Robert Pateman as Jack Rudd did some clever acting, and T. W. Keene, Nelse Decker, Miss Ellie Wilton, Mrs. Sophie Edwin, and Miss Belle Chapman were all of them good in their respective parts. "Was She Right?" deservedly noted as it is at the California Theatre should draw crowded houses through the week.

Hart's Collection of Pictures.

A very choice collection of pictures comprising views of California, the Eastern States and Europe, is now on view at H. M. Newhall & Co.'s Rooms, Sansome street. The whole series is very handsomely framed and includes many very effective and powerfully painted pictures denoting great versatility on the part of the artist. We shall be very surprised if there is not considerable competition over several of the larger and better pictures. The sale commences at 12 M. sharp on Wednesday.

Bella Union Theatre.

Miss Lizzie Watson in her Irish ballads, Harry Graham in his new and original comic songs, "Brown the Tragedian," etc., etc., Miss Kate Raymond, C. B. Collins and others in the spectacular drama of "The Mountain Queen," Miss Suttie Robinson in song and dance, Cook and Hart in clog dances, Matt Kelly, H. R. Archer and others in acts, and others, whose names appear on our first page, in various specialties, give an evening's entertainment hard to beat.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Ned Buckley, Johnny Tuers, Frank Mortimore and Hughey Robinson make up a team hard to beat. They appear nightly in popular acts. The full programme for this evening is published on our first page.

Woodward's Gardens.

There are always thousands of attractions at these Gardens. Next Saturday and Sunday the Mammoth Giant, who carries the weight of seven men, will appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

John McCullough in New York.

The Alta this morning publishes the following dispatch from New York:

Otway's "Venice Preserved" was produced at Booth's Theatre last night, to a very large attendance. The New York Herald of this morning says 'The only artist that could possibly be considered as entitled to the same was Mr McCullough; his impressive action of Pierre was characterized by study, much massive tenderness and calm dignity. The character, in his hands, became an artistic painting, complete in all its parts."

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. WHAT I LIVE FOR.

BY O. LLEWATUS BANES.

I live for those who love me,
For those I know are true,
For the heaven that smiles above me,
And awaits my spirit, too;
For all human ties that bind me,
For the task by God assigned me,
For the bright hopes left behind me,
And the good that I can do.

I live to learn their story,
Who've suffered for my sake,
To emulate their glory,
And follow in their wake:
Bards, martyrs, patriots, sages,
The nobls of all ages,
Whose deeds crowd history's pages
And Time's great volume make.

I live to hail that season
By gifted minds foretold,
When men shall live by reason
And not alone by gold—
When man to man united,
And every wrong thing righted,
The whole world shall be lighted,
As Eden was of old.

I live to hold communion,
With all that is divine,
To feel there is a union
'Twixt Nature's heart and mine;
To profit by affliction,
Reap truths from fields of fiction,
Grow wiser from conviction,
And fulfill each great design.

I live for those who love me,
For those who know me true,
For the heaven that smiles above me,
And awaits my spirit, too;
For the wrong that needs resistance,
For the cause that lacks assistance,
For the future in the distance,
And the good that I can do.

Good Nature.

Be good-natured if you can, for there is no attraction so great, no charm so admirable. A face that is full of the expression of amiability is always beautiful. It needs no paints and no powder. Cosmetics are superfluous to it. Rouge can not improve its cheeks, nor lily white mend its complexion. Its loveliness lies beyond all this. It is not the beauty that is but skin deep. For when you gaze into the face of the noble-hearted man or woman, it is not the shape of the features you really see, nor yet the tint of the cheek, the hue of the lip, or the brilliance of the eye. You see the nameless something which animates all these, and leaves for your instinct a sense of grateful fascination; you see an indescribable embodiment of a heart-felt goodness within, which wins your regard in spite of external appearance, and defies all the critical rules of the esthetic. Cultivate good nature, therefore. It is better than "apples of gold in pictures of silver," for gold will take to itself wings and fly away, silver will tarnish in time, and both, when abundant, lose their comparative value; but good nature never, never loses its worth—never abandons its possessor to the mental poverty of the malicious—never loses its hold on the esteem of the world. It is always in fashion and always in season. Everybody admires it. It never grows stale. It costs little to acquire, and nothing to keep. Yet it is beyond diamonds in its worth to its owners, and can neither be stolen nor lost, however neglected. Surely this is a jewel that merits a search; and when found, merits a protection. Possess yourselves of it, young women; no talisman will find you so bewitching in the eyes of the sensible among the other sex.

A Happy Couple.

He goes to work at seven o'clock in the morning. She occupies the time during which he is absent in attending to her household affairs and sewing. He returns home at six o'clock in the evening. She greets him with a loving kiss; they eat their frugal meal, and then they sit down together and chew gum until it is time to go to bed. Happy, happy pair!

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsible house. 7-bg

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies. The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapman & Terrille Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-x

Music Hath Charms.

CENTRE MARKET.

WHO OCCUPY THE STALLS.

Hepburn has opened stall 4, with fresh meats of all kinds. Families and restaurants supplied on the shortest notice.

Stall 38, Holm & Boyle have a splendid assortment butter, eggs, cheese and a general assortment of fancy groceries. Goods delivered free.

Stalls 39 and 40 are occupied by Kerlin & Hazzard, dealers in fruits, vegetables, etc., of the best and freshest. Delivered free of charge.

Stall 3, makes a magnificent show of fresh meats. Jos. O. de Volt & Co., wholesale and retail dealers, have one of the nicest stalls in the market. Restaurants and families will find it to their advantage to give them a call.

BOSTON OYSTER HOUSE.—L. O. Pratt has opened stalls 89 and 90 in Centre Market. Oysters in every style. Chops and Steaks of the choicest. Ladies private rooms up stairs. 7-x

Stalls 91, 92 and 93, have been opened by Anderson & Marshall as the Long Branch oyster house. They are among the oldest oyster men in the city.

Swain's original bakery has opened a magnificent place at 212 Sutter street, near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

OF THE BEAUTIFUL "SOCIETY" PLAY.

MRS. HENRIETTA CHANFRAU!

Who, since her Brilliant Engagement at this Theatre two years ago, has won from the oldest critics of the country, unbound and unqualified endorsement as one of our Most Gifted and Best Cultured Artistes.

THIS EVENING.....SEPTEMBER 16

First Performance in this City of a New Emotional Drama in four acts, especially written for MRS. CHANFRAU, entitled

WAS SHE RIGHT

A Question for Women.

By CLIFTON W. TAYLEURE, Esq., of the Baltimore Bar, author of "Next Leave," (Lucille Western's version,) "Josephine," "Christie Johnstone," "Jean Ryan," "Marie Watson's version," "Hearts Are Trumps," and other plays.

The Play is based upon an obtuse English Law, which gives to any father the right by deed or will, to dispose of the custody and tuition of the unborn children, BORN OR UNBORN, to the exclusion of the mother. The iniquitous enactment, not operative in England, has been adopted in many of the United States.

LETTER FROM HON. A. OAKEY HALL, OF NEW YORK.

To C. W. TAYLEURE, Esq. New York, Dec. 4, 1873.

"The revised statutes of New York provide that every father, whether of full age or a minor, of a child (like to be born, or of any living child) under the age of 21 years and unmarried, may by his deed or last will duly executed, dispose of the custody and tuition of such child, having regard to minority, to the person or persons I am glad to know that in addition to your triumphs as a dramatist, you have not allowed your legal knowledge

Nell Gwynne's Letter.

In the extensive collection of books, manuscripts, autograph letters, and engravings of the late Sir William Tate, which was recently sold in London, there was a letter from Nell Gwynne which is said to be probably unique. The letter was addressed to Lawrence Hyde, the second son of Lord Chancellor Clarendon, then absent upon a foreign mission. As Pretty Nelly was not given to inking her delicate fingers and could scarcely scrawl her initials, she was obliged to call in the assistance of some friendly scribe when, as in the present case, she wished to dispatch an epistle to a distant admirer. In the letter above mentioned there is impress of Nelly's character, though not of her pen, and she had evidently obliged her amanuensis to write down her very words. After telling Mr. Hyde that she can hold no longer to let him know that she has never been in any company without drinking his health, she adds, "for I love you with all my soule." "The Pelmel is to me now a dismale place since I have lost Sir Car Scrope never to be recovered agane, for he tould me he could not live always at this rate, and so begun to be a little incevil, which I could not suffer from an ugly baux garscon." Nelly was a high-spirited piece, and ever ready to resent, with a retort more quick than choice, any impertinences from whatever quarter. Going on with her letter she mentions Lord Rochester and M Lavill, and says: "Lord Derset appears worse in three months, for he drinks ale with Mr. Shadwell and Mr. Harris at the Duke's house (the theatre) all day long." Then alluding to Lord Binford and Lord Beauclerc, she concludes with: "We are going to supe with the King at Whitehall, and my Lady Harvie, the King remembers his service to you. Now let us talk of State affaires, for we never carried things so cunningly as now, for we don't know whether we shall have piece or war, but I am for war, and for no other reason but that you may come home. I have a thousand merry conceits but I can't make her write now, and therefore you must take the will for the deed. Good-bye, your most loveing obedient faithful and humbel Sarvent, E. G."

A Just Criticism.

A Philadelphia paper speaking of the performance of "Solon Shingle" by John E. Owens says: "Mr. Owens has played the part hundreds of times; but it is plainly evident that he is constantly striving to make improvements, and has made many; and he would add to his reputation by at once making one more improvement, viz., the entire abrogation of the disgusting by-play with the quid of tobacco. Absolutely repulsive it is to witness this part of an otherwise unexceptionable performance. The thrusting of the fingers into the mouth, the pulling out the saliva-soaked simulation of a 'big chaw,' is disgusting to describe. It is loathsome to look upon the act; and, to make the hoggishness of the thing doubly porcine, Mr. Owens, after resting the chewed lump on the table cloth of the lawyer's table and on the rail of the witness stand, actually restores it to his mouth. Performances like these may make the groundlings laugh, but they cause the judicious to grieve."

Tais is one of the points of a similar kind that Mr. Owens indulges in. He professes to be a great comedian. Far from it! He amuses the audience, but the clown in the circus can do this.

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 212 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. H

Feminine Vagaries.

If to her share some female errors fall,
Look on her face, and you'll forget them all.

Montana is rather short of women just now.

There is a lovely little blonde, aged ten, at Saratoga, who wears a diamond solitaire on her engagement finger, and is actually betrothed to a young man of nineteen.

The Cincinnati Star thinks that prudent ladies will hardly be encouraged by recent occurences to often try the experiment of how much temptation they can resist.

Now that there are to be good schools for the cooks some of the young lady boarders, tired of thin bread and butter and attenuated hash, express the hope that there will be better cooks for the schools.

Tight-gartering has killed five women in this country during the last six months:

When'er we take our walks abroad
Some limping girl we see,
Let's cry aloud with one accord:
"Don't garter below the knee."

The needlework carried by ladies to the sea-side resorts in France, consists in wool embroidery on flannel for the trimming on autumn costumes. It is mostly done in red and on blue or drab. It can executed in stripes for vandykes and insertions. The geometrical patterns are very easy. The point russe is a favorite, and effective; the chain-stitch is just as convenient.

The usual number of "beautiful and talented young ladies" are underlined to make their dramatic debut during the coming season. What becomes of these demoiselles after they have made their debut, is a question as difficult to answer as that in relation to pins. Few are ever heard of again, and the supposition is that they go back to society or plain sewing.

The talk about big-footed women has become a bore, says a Washington paper, but it may be mentioned, as a mere matter of fact, that the Georgetown girl scorns to ask a street-car conductor to stop the thing when she wants to get out. She merely strolls back to the platform and checks progress instantly by gracefully slinging her foot around in front of the hind wheel.

A young lady in a note to the woman's Journal says: I have read with interest all you have to say on dress reform, and now wish to ask why we have not the independence to give up skirts at once? Warm, full trowsers buttoned to a shirt waist, with a band below the knee, a full plaited skirt reaching to the knee, with handsome boots, would make a graceful costume, which would be admired by all so soon as the eye became accustomed to it.

THE NEW OPERA.

[The latest designation of the Brooklyn Scandal as The Brooklyn Opera, and here is a part of the libretto—the trio at the end of the first act:]

HENRY WARD BEECHER.

Dear Tilton, what I wish to say,
Before I go to bed,
I state in my impulsive way—
I wish that I were dead.

THEODORE TILTON.

Friend Beecher, grace be unto thee,
But in what you have said
You have anticipated me—
I wish that I were dead.

FRANK MOULTON.

I hold such secrets in my mind,
They almost turn my head,
And on the whole I am inclined
To wish that I were dead.

CHORUS.

How much more wise to change the tune,
To take the other horn,
And wish, what would have been a boon,
That we had ne'er been born.

Unseen Work.

The world is full of martyrs, men and women whose lives find no record, whose work finds no mention, but whose impress is left wherever their hearts beat, wherever their footsteps tread. They are the pioneers of our civilization; their bones bleach the earth which they prepared for occupation and enjoyment; they dug the roads and planted the trees which sheltered us from the heat and make a garden of the wilderness. They expanded their brief lives in labor of which, without thought of what it cost, we enjoy the results.

An Editor's Opinion of Base Ball.

An editor, relating his experience, says that the doctor informed him that he needed exercise, and he recommended the national game. The advice was taken. His (the editor's) conclusions are as follows:

That was an eventful chap who first invented base ball. It's such fun. I've played five games, and this is the result:

Twenty-seven dollars paid out for things.
One banged eye—badly bunged.
One broken little finger.
One bump on the head.
Nineteen lame backs.
A sore jaw.
One thumb dislocated.
Three sprained ankles.
Five swelled legs.
One dislocated shoulder, from trying to throw the ball a thousand yards.
Two hands raw from trying to stop hot balls.
A nose sweetly jammed, and five uniforms spoiled from rolling in the dirt at the bases.

I have played two weeks and don't think I like the game. I've looked over the scorer's book, and find that I have broken several bats, made one tally, broken one umpire's jaw, broken ten windows in adjoining houses, killed a baby, smashed a kerosene lamp, broken the leg of a dog, mortally injured the bread-basket of a spectator, and knocked five other players out of time by slinging my bat.

I have used up fifteen bottles of arnica ointment, five bottles of lotions, and half a raw beef, and am so full of pain that it seems as if my limbs were broken bats, and my legs the limbs of a dead horse-chestnut.

A Christian Chinese.

The Los Angeles Herald says:

A nice, sprightly, intelligent looking Chinaman stopped at a popular literary store a couple of evenings since and purchased a San Francisco paper. It so happened that the vendor knew a party who desired to procure a cook, and he thought this would be a good chance to serve his friend, and at the same time do a good turn to a tidy-looking celestial.

"You have not been long here, have you, John?" asked the vendor.

"Came last Monday," answered the Chinaman.

"I can tell you where you can get a good situation as cook, if you want it."

The celestial looked at his interloentor vaguely for awhile, as he folded up the paper he had purchased.

"But perhaps you are not a cook," he ventured, seeing that the child of Cathy did not respond readily.

"No," he answered in excellent English, "I do not prepare food for the stomach; but I furnish food for the everlasting soul. I am a preacher of the Gospel of Christ, and came here to feed with divine pabulum those who are hungry, and to give drink from the fountain of salvation."

The celestial minister left our newspaper vendor badly crushed.

Sad, if True.

The New York World says:—"The theatrical and musical criticism of the London daily papers has long been a mockery. Nearly all the critics are authors, or the special friends of some authors, and the particular foes of other authors or actors or managers; and their 'criticisms' can always be foretold beforehand if you know who is going to sing or act and who is going to write. It is now reported, however, that the proprietor of one of our daily papers has given orders that only those singers shall be mentioned in his paper who sing gratuitously at his evening parties. This is cutting it very small, indeed."

Didn't Phase Him.

The Detroit Free Press tells about an urchin that was seated on the post office steps, going through a watermelon, when a man halted and asked, "This is a great town for hogs, isn't it, bub?" "Wall, no," drawled the lad, as he filled his mouth again and kept his eyes on the man, "you'll be awful lonesome here!"

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

In the first part J. M. Davis, the new tenor, receives much applause for his execution of the ballad "Little Sweetheart, Come and Kiss Me." After this Billy Rice delivers a stump speech, Billy Emerson appears in some of his most popular specialties, and the wonderful Lottie, Frank and Katie execute their thrilling feats in the air.

California Theatre.

"Was She Right?" is a decidedly popular play. Mrs. Henrietta Chanfrau has seldom appeared in any part in which she was more successful in gaining the sympathies of the audience than she is in that of Emily Stedman, and she receives admirable support from the stock company.

Maguire's New Theatre.

A very attractive entertainment is given at this house. It commences with the petite comedy of "The Pretty Horsebreaker," in which Miss Sydney Cowell, George Giddens and others appear. After this Mlle. Zoe appears as Henri St. Aimee and Mathilde de Meric in the drama of "The French Spy."

Bella Union Theatre.

Miss Lizzie Watson, Harry Braham, Miss Kate Raymond O. B. Collins, Albert De Courcy and the company at this house present an admirable entertainment at this house, comprising the drama of "The Mountain Queen," many amusing acts and an olio of songs and dances.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

To-night, in addition to a lively first part and varied olio, the one-act drama entitled "The Brand of Shame," which has been for some time in preparation, will be produced.

Hart's Collection of Pictures.

A very choice collection of pictures comprising views of California, the Eastern States and Europe, is now on view at H. M. Newhall & Co.'s Rooms, Sansome street. The whole series is very handsomely framed and includes many very effective and powerfully painted pictures denoting great versatility on the part of the artist. We shall be very surprised if there is not considerable competition over several of the larger and better pictures. The sale commences at 12 M. sharp on Wednesday.

Woodward's Gardens.

There are always thousands of attractions at these Gardens. Next Saturday and Sunday the Mameluke Giant, who carries the weight of seven men, will appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins';
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies. The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-1

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 209 Sutter street near Kearny. 8-bg

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-x

Burkhardt's 540 Washington street.

French calf boots made to order for $8; box toed gaiters made to order for $6; Oxford ties made to order for $4; boy's boots made to order for $6; and large assortment of boots and shoes, all of Burkhardt's own make, at equally low sales, at 540 Washington street. 9 x

Oculist, Aurist, Catarrh, throat and lung physician, corner Post and Kearny streets.

YOU KNOW YOU DO.

When Some one's step comes up the walk,
Your cheeks take on a rosier hue,
And though no other hears his knock,
You know it well—you know you do.

And though it may be very wrong,
When pa is quite ignored for you,
You sing for him your prettiest song,
You cunning thing—you know you do!

And when he talks of other girls,
Of hateful Kate and Jennie, too,
You fling at him your auburn curls,
You jealous thing—you know you do!

He blushes deep, and looks afraid
To be thus left alone with you,
But your eyes tell there me'er was maid
But could be wooed—you know you do!

You peep at Some-one 'neath your curls,
Until with love you burn him through,
And make him hate all other girls—
In love for you—you know you do!

And when his arm steals round your chair
You give a smothered scream or two,
As if you didn't want it there,
But oh, you do—you know you do!

You let him kiss your blushing cheeks;
Somehow your lips meet his lips, too;
You taunt him, silly thing, to speak,
You wicked flirt—you know you do;

And when he timidly doth press
His wish to make a wife of you,
With happy heart you answer yes,
You darling girl—you know you do!

THE NINTH INDUSTRIAL FAIR.

The Mechanics' Fair is still drawing crowds of people to witness the display of arts, manufactures and fancy articles. The Fair has its drawbacks, however, for the pavilion is not centrally located, the display of fancy goods is rather meagre, and one can not even buy of what he sees.

There will be an opening to-day of a place centrally located that can well be called a Fair, and although there will not be a display of massive machinery, furniture, etc., that can be seen at the Mechanics' Fair, the display of fancy articles, perfumery, jewelry, soaps, cutlery, travelling bags and reticules of French, Russian and Turkey morrocco, mechanical toys, albums, dolls, articles for the toilet, etc., will go far ahead of the Mechanics' Fair in variety, quantity and quality.

In the above we have reference to the new store (or bazaar more properly speaking), called "The Trade Palace," to be opened by O. P. Van Schaack & Co at 706, 708 and 710 Kearny street. The Messrs. V. S. & Co have, by a close application to business and an untiring energy, built up a trade, the magnitude of which an estimate can be formed, when we say that they require a store having a frontage of over 70 feet on Kearny street, and 40 feet frontage on Clay, and the large dry basement lying under the new Supreme Court, which is about 75 feet long, and has entrances on Clay and Kearny streets.

In the store proper, they have some thirty odd show-cases, and thirty-one counters to transact their business over. There are four entrances and five large show windows; perhaps it would be as well for us to give a slight description of the various departments of this firm.

First, we will speak of the store, Nos. 712, 714 and 716 Kearny street. This store is 40 feet in width and 74 feet in depth, and is filled from floor to ceiling, with clothing, white shirts, gents furnishing goods, hats, caps, notions, hosiery, tobacco, cigars, etc. Such an immense stock do they carry, that a visitor to any one department would think the firm bent their whole energies to that one line of goods.

Their line of hats, for instance, in quality and variety, will far excel the stocks of some of our leading hatters; the same remark would be equally applicable to their stock of ready-made clothing, their furnishing goods, their tobacco, their line of notions, etc., etc. Stepping into the variety store or "Trade Palace," one is lost for a moment in trying to comprehend the immense number of articles to be seen.

The mechanical and philosophical toys, the large and varied assortment of dolls, the bird cages, the rocking horses, etc., would tend to make one believe in the time-honored Santa Claus.

Turning to another part of the store we find a large assortment of jewelry, from the cheap (but good) oroides, to pins, rings, brooches, etc., in solid gold.

One feature we must not forget to mention, that is, the three large show windows having (probably) the largest single plate glass to be found in the city. Such a varied line of goods do these windows hold, that the conents of either would stock a variety store. In the center window are two revolving spheroids which by an ingenious contrivance, revolve first from right to left and then reverse the motion left to right, the spheroids being covered with fine jewelry, present a very beautiful appearance.

Another point we must not forget, and that is, that there are really two stores on one floor—the room is so high-studded that the Messrs. V. S. & Co. had a deep and capacious gallery built around the entire store, with an iron spiral stairway leading to it, so that they can justly claim to have two stores in one. Underneath this store, and running to Clay street, is a large, fine basement, over 70 feet in length, which will be devoted to the jobbing trade except, perhaps, during the holidays, when their usual business will demand every available inch, to the exclusion of everything else. In order to utilize this space for the holiday season, they have built deep shelves around the entire basement, and have an extra counter that can be set out at once merely by drawing a set of counters or shelves that are sunk in the dead walls.

If one does not wish to purchase they will be well repaid for their time by taking a stroll through the various departments at the opening to-night. Don't forget the numbers—706, 708, 710, 712, 714 and 716 Kearny street.

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsible house. 7-bg

CENTRE MARKET.

WHO OCCUPY THE STALLS.

Hepburn has opened stall 4, with fresh meats of all kinds. Families and restaurants supplied on the shortest notice.

Stall 38, Holm & Boyle have a splendid assortment butter, eggs, cheese and a general assortment of fancy groceries. Goods delivered free.

Stalls 39 and 40 are occupied by Kerlin & Hassard, dealers in fruits, vegetables, etc., of the best and freshest. Delivered free of charge.

Stall 3, makes a magnificent show of fresh meats. Jos. O. de Velt & Co., wholesale and retail dealers, have one of the nicest stalls in the market. Restaurants and families will find it to their advantage to give them a call.

BOSTON OYSTER HOUSE.—L. O. Pratt has opened stalls 89 and 90 in Centre Market. Oysters in every style. Chops and Steaks of the choicest. Ladies private rooms up stairs. 7-x

Stalls 91, 92 and 93, have been opened by Anderson & Marshall as the Long Branch oyster house. They are among the oldest oyster men in the city.

Swain's original bakery has opened a magnicent place at 213 Sutter street, near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-oj

WAS SHE RIGHT

A Question for Women.

By CLEVELAND W. PATTERSON, Esq., of the Baltimore Bar, author of "Hot Lemons," "Lucille Western's version," "Joel Cash," "Christie Johnstone," "Jean Eyre," "Single Blessedness," "How to Get a Divorce," and other plays.

The Play is based upon an existing English Law, which gives to any father the right by deed or will to dispose of the custody and tuition of his minor children, BORN OF HIS WIFE, to the exclusion of the mother. The iniquitous enactment, not operative in England has been adopted in many of the United States.

LETTER FROM HON A. OAKEY HALL, OF NEW YORK

To C. W. PATTERSON Esq. New York Dec. 4, 1873.

"The revised statutes of New York provide that every father (whether of full age or a minor) of a child or children born of any living child under the age of 21 years and unmarried, may by his deed, or last will duly executed, dispose of the custody and tuition of such child or children, as to him or her seem meet. I am glad to know that in adding to your triumphs as a dramatist, you have not at all sacrificed your legal knowledge. Heartily yours, A. OAKEY HALL.

Olive Logan's Last Play.

The Philadelphia All-Day City Item of the 8th says: Miss Olive Logan's second contribution this season to "the American Drama," was produced last evening. It is entitled "A Will and a Way," and clearly owes its existence to a French model—notwithstanding which fact Miss Logan is injudicious enough to call it "a Philadelphia comedy." It might just as well be located in Kamskatka.

The piece is unworthy of extended criticism. It is inferior in interest to "The Woman Who Talks." Miss Logan's plays rely upon their witty dialogue in preference to their plot, and as the dialogue in "A Will and a Way" is inferior to "The Woman Who Talks," there is nothing to save it from being tedious. Last night it dragged from beginning to end. A play that is all talk cannot succeed—even if the talk is brilliant, which Miss Logan's dialogue is not, as it never rises above cleverness, and is nearly always forced in its constant snap, snap, snap of remarks intended to arouse the audience.

Again, Miss Logan's plays never rise to the dignity of comedy. They are merely extended farces. Their plots are improbable particularly in the case of "A Will and a Way,") and there is nothing like character in them. The characters remind us of the Royal Marionettes—only they are by no means as droll.

Hints for the Girls.

An old stager, who has been through the mill, gives the following parental advice to the girls:

Take lessons on the piano, and learn to paint and sing, but let your mother do the washing.

Do worsted work, and make nice little neckties for the heathen, but don't acquire that mystic art to "cook pork and beans."

Go to boarding school and pursue some French, Spaniard and German, but neglect you good old mother English.

Flatly deny the soft impeachment that you are engaged. Treat your young sprig precisely as if you were ashamed of him. It is complimentary, anyhow, to the young sprig.

When you laugh, laugh hearty. Your gold fillings may be seen. It is a card for the dentist.

Tell people who are posted, and consequently know better, that you are exactly nineteen last or next summer, you forget which. They'll believe it, you know.

Say naughty things of your rival and next door neighbor, and speak disparagingly of Miss Q.'s nose. But entirely overlook your own incongruities.

By all means "tote" a nice little dog after you on the street. There is a chance of you being taken for some one else, while it speaks volumes—for the dog.

Walk four abreast and keep the centre of the sidewalk, but never for a moment allow yourself to be disconcerted. It shows consideration for the happiness of others.

Finally, quit being girls by marrying some old bald headed buffer with lots of "tin," and ruthlessly thrust aside a man of brains with a becoming competency.

Spelling by Ear.

A singer, applying for an engagement, wrote to an impressario as follows: "i am a good musihan, i play all music at furst site." "Well," remarked the impressario to a friend, "she may play by note, but she certainly spells by ear."

Beecher's Bobtail Flush.

Many of our readers will get a newer and truer idea of the Beecher and Tilton Scandal by reading the following, which is taken from the Cincinnati Commercial:

Not far from me lives an intelligent negro lad, who is considered an oracle in the society in which he moves. His employment is servant at a club-house, where he has picked up quite a knowledge of the amusements of the white folks, and keeps himself generally well posted on the events of the day. Called upon by his colored friends to explain the Beecher matter, he said:

"You see, it's jist like a game of draw. Beecher, it was his blind; everybody took a hand. Miss Woodhull she makes de fust play; den dis man Bacon he come in. When Bacon come in Mass' Tilton follow, 'cos he had a good han.' Mass' Moulton he follered in 'cos he thought Tilton was a going to be robbed—dropped in kinder quiet like. Then de small fry, them fellers with deuces and trays, they come in 'cos it looked like a good pot. Mass' Beecher pick up his hand and he find a four flush. Bein' his blind, he think he play smart and raise 'em all out—so he raise 'em the limit. They all pass out 'cept Tilton and Moulton. Tilton he draws one card, two par, nines and sixes, an' don't better 'em. Moulton he draws two cards to three aces and take in a par jacks. Beecher he draw one card. Tilton he feel kinder weak on his han,' and bet white chip. Moulton he know Beecher on de bluff, so he jest follers wid a white chip. Beecher he don't look at his han' 'tall, but jest go rite back de limit. Tilton he feel kinder weak den. He feel he can beat Beecher, but he t'ink Moulton kin beat Beecher, too, but he 'fraid Moulton get skeered an' pass out. Finally Tilton he call, kinder hesitatin' like, and den Moulton he jest bounce Beecher an' he look at his han.' He drew a club to fo' hearts an' got nuffing but bob-tail flush. Mass' Beecher can't play bluff wid dem fellers. Dey eat him up blood raw.

Doh't Do It.

Don't expect a man to practice all he preaches. Eminent physicians will not swallow their own nostrums.

Don't imagine that you are better than your fellows. There are no reserved seats in heaven.

Don't let your wealth inflate you. Rich men sometimes die of the small-pox.

Don't spend your days in vain regret. The deepest wound will leave the faintest scar, if from this hour you do your life work well.

Don't expect your pastor to be perfect. Charcoal will mar the beauty of the lily.

Don't eat fish for brain food. A hen never scratches for chickens until they are hatched.

Don't make a great noise in the world. A train is not moved by the sound of the whistle.

Don't spend too much time adorning your person. A wax figure can recite the multiplication table.

Don't dream that your child was born to adorn a profession. You can't make a fence post out of a shoe peg.

Don't expect an editor to be very devotional on Sunday. Every Saturday night there's the "devil" to pay at the office.

Don't bother your brains about the "acute angles" of a billiard table. Better take your cue from an industrious mechanic.

Don't fill your head with dime novels. Old paper is only worth two cents per pound.

Tempting Fate.

A Virginia railroad was made to pay twenty-five dollars for killing a rooster. The engineer said he spoke to the rooster with the whistle as kindly as possible, but when the fellow dropped one wing on the ground, raised his good eye heavenward, and commenced whetting his spur on the rail, forbearance ceased to be a virtue, and he let it into him with thirteen freight cars.

Conscientiousness in Art.

A correspondent of that veteran journal the Worcester Spy, (established in 1770) speaking of Miss Carlotta LeClercq says: Of Miss LeClercq's conscientiousness in her art I can give good proof. One raw and stormy night in New Orleans, to get out of the cutting air of a "norther," I went into the St. Charles Theatre. Miss LeClercq was playing Madame Fontanges, in "Plot and Passion," a great part in her hands. A stormy night is always bad business in New Orleans at best, and in the vast, dreary theatre there were scarce fifty people scattered about. It was dim, dingy and chilly; one could expect nothing but the usual dispiriting result, but it was not so in this case, the actress seemed not only glowing with the fervor of her part, but she inspired the whole scene with life. Had there been before her an audience of thousands she could not have displayed more artistic devotion, and when the curtain fell the people looked into each other's faces, speechless with delight. It brought to my mind the story told of the elder Booth, when, many years ago in Baltimore, a violent thunder storm kept away the audience, so that there were barely half a dozen people in the house. The manager proposed to dismiss them. "No, no," said the tragedian, "these people are doubly entitled to consideration, it would be ungrateful to send them away," and he played "King Richard" with more than his wonted power.

Hints to the Mariners.

The Boston Commercial Bulletin gives the following hints to those who follow the sea:

It must not be thought that mariners know nothing of wine because they are willing to accept "any port in a storm."

There is no hair to be found on the mast head. The mast is one of the bare polls which the ship scuds under in a storm.

The bight of a rope you may find, to your sorrow, has a smart taste, if you take it that it means a mouthful.

Don't ask the first mate why he has the sails "set" and the rigging "standing."

It also would be imprudent to inquire the time of day by the larboard watch.

The boatswain's pipe will not be loaned to you to smoke.

It is not necessary that you learn the art of self-defense in order to "box" the compass.

It may be right to infer, when the wind has changed "two pints to the eastward," that it is in a new quarter.

Don't imagine that you can steer a boat because you have been a tiller of the soil.

You need not be afraid of getting shot because it is "blowing great guns,"

The cook does not kindle his fire with chips from the ship's log.

The best way to learn what sea life is, is to go to sea for yourself; be a son of the sea for a sea-son.

Resisting the Evil One.

At a camp meeting, not long ago, a man clad in a thin linen suit seated himself on one of the rickety benches beside a fat man who occupied fully one-third of the concern.

When the services were ended the fat man arose, and the gentleman in thin linen suddenly began twisting about in a surprising manner, while his countenance was significant of mortal anguish.

His actions attracted the attention of some of the brethren, and one of them, a solemn-visaged individual, who looked as though he had just swallowed a pill, approached the writhing body, and laid his hand on the man's shoulder and said:

"Brother, if you are resisting the prompting of the Evil One, strive manfully, and you will triumph at last. Remember, Jacob wrestled with the angel, and—"

"I dunno but he did," interrupted the agonized man; but if Jacob had the seat of his trowsers and a little of his meat caught in a condemned crack, he wouldn't feel like raslin' with an angel or any other critter!"

A Liberal Compromise.

A Chicago gentleman has sued the Times for $100,000 damage to his character. The Times asks him to knock off the ciphers, take a dollar and call it square.

A Nice Sort of Woman.

An American artist, Mrs. I. R. Morrell, has won great praise in Paris by two historical paintings, the "First Battle of the Puritans" and "Washington's Welcoming of the Provision Trains." Says the Paris correspondent of the New York Herald: "I stood looking at them, spellbound and delighted, in company with a pale little lady, who spoke in a simple, modest voice to me, as if she had done nothing worthy of note. I told her that she was about to win a great renown. 'I only wished to please my husband,' replied the American lady, gently; but I saw that something glittered in her eyes, and her lips trembled as they smiled." Doubtless many reformatory lips will curl disdainfully at this new and mortifying proof of "woman's subjection." But we venture to think that the picture of home-life painted with seven short words by this "pale little lady" has a higher beauty than even her brush can have realized. May that "brute of a husband" be pleased, to the heart's content of the doubly-gifted wife!

California Theatre.

"Was She Right?" is decidedly popular and Mrs Chanfrau as the heroine, receives much applause. "Was She Right?" will be played every evening this week.

Maguire's New Theatre.

The dashing Mlle. Marie Zoe, will appear to-night in "The French Spy," and Miss Sidney Cowell in the comedy of "The Pretty Horse-breaker."

Opera House.

Billy Emerson in first part and interlude, J. R. Kemble, Billy Rice, Ben Cotton and Billy Arlington in amusing acts, and Lottie, Frank and Kattie in their thrilling gymnastic sensation, continue to crowd this house to overflowing.

Bella Union Theatre.

At this house Miss Lizzie Watson appears nightly in Irish ballads, Harry Braham in comic songs, Cook and Hart appear in song and dance, and Miss Kate Raymond, O. B. Collins and others in the drama of "The Mountain Queen."

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

The sensation drama entitled "The Brand of Shame," with Frank Mortimore, Hughey Robinson, Miss Maggie Brewer, Miss Mollie LaForrest and others in the cast, has proved quite a success. It will be repeated this evening.

Woodward's Gardens.

There are always thousands of attractions at these Gardens. Next Saturday and Sunday the Mameluke Giant, who carries the weight of seven men, will appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Notes.

F. C. Maeder reports to FIGARO that he will travel with Fechter, as his agent, during the coming season.

Edward Roland, who has been trick clown with Chiarini's Circus for a number of years, died in Yokohama, and was buried there August 19th. Roland left two fine children under the guardianship of Signor Chiarini, one of which will be remembered as the little girl that did the daring bareback riding act with Bella Cuba, the colored equestrienne.

When "Belle Lamar" is produced at the California Theatre, Mr. Boucicault will play the part of Remmy.

The talented Coleman Sisters are in San Francisco, and will shortly give an entertainment.

W. F. Baker and J. G. Russell talk of taking Platt's Hall for a benefit performance. They will be able to get up a good entertainment.

The Call has the following dispatch this morning. The play referred to is in a great measure the work of G B. Densmore, Mark Twain having honorably purchased his dramatization, which was so successful at the California Theatre:

NEW YORK, Sept. 16th.—Mark Twain opened the second season at the Park Theatre in this city by the production, to-night, of his dramatization of "The Gilded Age." The weather was unpropitious for an opening night; notwithstanding, there was a good attendance as to numbers, and a great audience as to quality. The proprietors of most of the theatres in the city were present; also numerous army officers and many artists. The play was in five acts, to which Mark Twain added a characteristic speech, making a sixth act, and not an incongruous one. Notwithstanding it was a first night, the play, machinery, and all ran smoothly; and John T. Raymond, in his great character of Colonel Mulberry Sellers, secured, as he merited, unbounded applause. Mark's reception before the curtain was most cordial, and his speech was full of quaint compliments.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 209 Sutter street near Kearny. 8-bg

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies. The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapmen & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-r

DARLING.

At last the tardy twilight's gone;
The sun sank redly in the west
Down banks of haze; now with night's dawn
The moon glows warm, like one carest;
And still, as all the long day through,
I sit alone and think of you,
Darling—my darling.

Where are you, sweet, this summer night?
Shines the red moon into your face?
I think I see the bounteous light
Touch its fair lines with tender grace—
I even dare believe I see
A look of yearning love for me,
Darling—my darling.

How long ago was it you went
And left me waiting here alone?
The backward good-bye look you sent,
Lies in my heart and makes a moan,
Recalling how your red lips bore
Afar my kisses, sad and sore,
Darling—my darling.

I cannot count, they seem so long,
If weeks or months have passed since then;
But in my soul a wistful song
Sings low and calls you back again—
Sings all the night and all the day,
Softly, as unseen angels pray,
Darling—my darling.

A Well-Cured Man.

Dr. Henry Southall, an old man of sixty, lives with his son-in-law in Detroit, and it is said that the aged pioneer has a temper like a bear poked up with a hot pitchfork. He grunts and snarls around at everything and everybody, and there is no peace in the house until his eyes and mouth are closed in sleep. He took a new track a few days ago, and threatened to commit suicide if his whims were not humored. The family did not really think he would do such a thing, but they were not sure, and so they were rather soft on him for a few days.

One night he got some odd notion in his head, and the family flatly refused to gratify it. He said he would take poison, but they were firm. Along in the night he was heard groaning and rolling around, having an attack of bilious colic, and the family roused up under the idea that he had taken a deadly dose. He wouldn't say he hadn't as he wanted to have revenge on them. The boy ran for a doctor, the woman hunted for mustard, and the son-in-law dashed after eggs. He got a couple, broke the whites into a teacup, and ordered the old man to open his potato trap. Old man would't, but he was taken by the throat and made to. The eggs were followed by mustard.

He shut his gums together, but the son-in-law sat down on him and jabbed the end of a tooth-brush into his open mouth until he opened it. When the old man heard them call for tepid water he said it wasn't a case of poisoning, but they rammed the tooth-brush at his gums again, and he had to drink half a pint of warm water. The son-in-law said he wasn't going to have his family disgraced by a suicide in the house, and he shouted for more eggs. The old man tried to beg off, but they held his head, jerked down his chin, and the eggs went down his throat. While waiting for the doctor the son-in-law got the old man out of bed and pranced him up and down the hall with nothing on but a long night-shirt.

He made the pioneer get up and travel like a buffalo, leaping him over chairs, up and down, and around everywhere. The old man shouted again and again that he had not tried to commit suicide, but the son-in-law said it was too thin, and he continued to prance him until the doctor came.

The doctor said it was morphine, and he whipped out a stomach pump and rolled up his sleeves. The old man begged that they would not pump him out, but they were firm. He was thrown down and held fast, and they jingled the rubber tube down his throat and the doctor manned the brakes and pumped away.

He said it was a grave case, but it was barely possible that the patient might be saved. He pumped away until the reservoir was empty, and then they ran the old man around again, fed him on more eggs, felt his pulse, and the doctor said it was the nicest little job he had had for six months. The pioneer is abed yet, but is recovering, and the son-in-law expects the most gratifying results from the experiment.

THE EXAMINER, with latest telegraphic dispatches every evening, is delivered by carriers at twenty-five cents per week.

Great Bargains in Clothing:

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks, and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-x

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsible house. 7-bg

Morse's Photograph Gallery

Visitors should not fail to visit Morse's Gallery, 417 Montgomery street. The finest and most perfectly finished pictures are taken by Mr. Morse of any place in the world. 8-x

CENTRE MARKET.

WHO OCCUPY THE STALLS.

Hepburn has opened stall 4, with fresh meats of all kinds. Families and restaurants supplied on the shortest notice.

Stall 36, Holm & Boyle have a splendid assortment butter, eggs, cheese and a general assortment of fancy groceries. Goods delivered free.

Stalls 39 and 40 are occupied by Kerlin & Hassard, dealers in fruits, vegetables, etc., of the best and freshest. Delivered free of charge.

Stall 3, makes a magnificent show of fresh meats. Jos. O. de Volt & Co., wholesale and retail dealers, have one of the nicest stalls in the market. Restaurants and families will find it to their advantage to give them a call.

BOSTON OYSTER HOUSE.—L. O. Pratt has opened stalls 89 and 90 in Centre Market. Oysters in every style. Chops and Steaks of the choicest. Ladies private rooms up stairs. 7-x

Stalls 91, 92 and 93, have been opened by Anderson & Marshall as the Long Branch oyster house. They are among the oldest oyster men in the city.

Swain's original bakery has opened a magnicent place at 213 Sutter street, near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

W. H. AIKEN, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW AND Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic in California and Nevada, gives prompt attention to the collection of Additional Travel Pay, now due California and Nevada Volunteers discharged more than three hundred miles from home. Soldiers can depend on fair dealing. Information given free of charge. Correspondence solicited from all parts of the United States. Send for circular, or reply, and state company and regiment, and whether you have a discharge. Congress has extended the time, for filing claims for additional Bounty and Act of July 28, 1866, to January 1875 so all new claims must be made before that time. Original Bounty of $100 has been allowed all volunteers who enlisted before July 2d, 1861, for three years, if not paid the same when discharged. Land Warrants can be obtained for services rendered from 1855, but not for services in the late war. Pensions for late war and war of 1812 obtained and increased when allowed for less than disability warrants, but no pensions are allowed to Mexican and Florida war soldiers. State of Texas has granted pensions to our brave veterans of Texas Revolution. New Orleans and Mobile Prize Money is now due and being paid. W. H. New Nursery Rhymes.

The Courier-Journal makes the following contribution to nursery rhymes:

I had a little pony
His name was Henry Ward;
I lent him to the devil,
Who rode him very hard,
He whipped him, he beat him, he dragged him through the mire;
I would not lend that pony again for all the devil's hire.

High-di-di-diddle,
Frank's in the fiddle,
And Theo jumps over the moon;
Bowen laughs to see the sport,
But Beecher's a sly old coon,
Ha, ha!
Beecher's a sly old coon!

FIGARO may as well do something in the same line:

Henry Ward Beecher sat on a wall,
Henry Ward Beecher had a great fall,
Bethall Plymouth's women and all Plymouth's men
Can not Henry Beecher where he was again.

A Sporting Clergyman.

The Rev. John Craig, M. A., Vicar of All Saints', Leamington, has been requested by some of his parishioners to resign his living on the ground of his age and physical disability to visit the sick, etc., in consequence of the loss of one of his feet, through senile gangrene. The reverend gentleman published a reply to this request, in which are set forth the conditions under which he is willing to comply. He expresses his intention to do so only on terms which will include equitable arrangements with everybody. He says: "I am determined not to resign my living to a 'dark horse.' Before I listen to any proposal of terms of resignation, he (the vicar's successor) must be trotted out, and we must see who he is. I shall not resign to a dark horse; he must come to the daylight, or I shall stay as I am, however delighted I should be to see the Holy Land and other places of the deepest interest to me."

Mulford at Home.

The San Jose Mercury says:—"Prentice Mulford, who has been sojourning in Europe for the past three years, has returned to his native town, Sag Harbor, and proposes to start a weekly paper. It is to be called the Montauk Octopus, and the prospectus is gotten up as only Mulford can do it. Prentice married a sensible English girl while living in Great Britain, and intends settling down into a model family man. If he succeeds it will be a novelty in Bohemia. On this coast, where Mulford is well known, the Octopus will be eagerly sought after and duly appreciated. May it be a distinguished success.

A Conscientious Man.

The great preacher, Henry Ward Beecher, makes it known in his statement given to his committee that for several years he has lived in constant dread of sudden death from apoplexy or paralysis; and the New York Graphic shows that during that time he took out several insurance policies, making the usual statement as to health, etc.

"No Collars!"

The new editor of the Oroville Mercury declares in his salutatory that he "wears no collar." Whereupon the Vallejo Chronicle remarks: "When a fair article of the paper material can be purchased at twenty-five cents a box, there is really no excuse for such unfitness."

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 212 Kearny street, from 1 to 3 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. x

"The Deluge" in New York.

The follower of "The Black Crook" is on the 7th inst. at Niblo's Theatre, New York. It proves to be a collection of sinful legs with rehearsal bodies, and is thoroughly French. The Herald says of it:

"The spectacular drama resumed its sway at this house with the production, last night of the Biblical allegory, 'The Deluge; or, Paradise Lost.' In point of splendor this entertainment falls far short of that attained in the days of 'Black Crook' and unbreeched legs, but in compensation the moral purity has been greatly increased. This is a great merit in the new spectacle, and must be its chief recommendation to the public. It is not wanting in attractions, but they are scarcely of such strength as to win success if the great moral element did not furnish a strong support. Allegorical representations on the stage are almost unavoidably tame when they are not seasoned with the spice of sin, and the present piece is no exception to the general rule. Opening with a scene on the borders of Bitumen Lake, we are introduced to Satan, who is in no pleasant mood at his change of quarters. Then we are carried into the Garden of Eden and made acquainted with Adam and Eve while yet in a state of perfect innocence. The temptation of Eve and the killing of Abel are told with certain dramatic effect. The slaying of Abel by his brother affording the dramatist a rather happy opportunity for using Satan with excellent dramatic effect as the author of all evil. A slight interval of some two thousand and odd years elapses between the third and fourth acts, which opens in the Temple of Enoch, where the descendants of Cain are having a good time, when the deluge comes down with what effect we know. The last act is devoted to a grand ballet, which is intended to represent the orgies of the children of Cain when they fell under the dominion of the Arch Tempter. It is by far the most interesting part of the entertainment, and in spite of its taint of sin was better liked by the audience than the more correct preceding acts."

The Tribune is very severe upon "The Deluge," and the Times says:

"It is translated, we can say, from a French play which was acted at the Ambigu Theatre, in Paris, if we are not mistaken, about eighteen years ago; and its five acts are distinct pictures of Satan's conspiracy against man; of the doings in Eden; of the first murder; of the revels of the sons of Cain; and of the cataclysm. These incidents are set forth by a prodigious quantity of action on the part of a concourse of persons who are equally unanimous and energetic in Pandemonium and on earth; by much dialogue, and by dances, marches and tableaux. Satan is personated by Miss Julia Seaman, an English lady with a deep and powerful voice, much earnestness and declamatory skill, and perfect self-possession. Eve is portrayed by Miss Lillie Macdonald, whose appearance speaks volumes for the nutritious quality of the food supplied by the garden of our first parents. Mr. J. Stretton, a gentleman with excellent intentions and slender gifts, represents Cain, and the remainder of the roles are in competent hands.

Boise Hoodlums.

So much has been said about bad boys that everybody thinks that when anything is said of hoodlums it refers to youths of the male sex, but the following from the Boise Statesman shows that the boys are not all the hoodlums: "Some one having stolen a large quantity of peaches from Mrs. Bayhouse, who lives at the lower end of Grove street, and also from several other gardens in that vicinity, Louie Sietel, thinking it must be hoodlums, concealed himself Thursday evening in Mrs. Bayhouse's garden, to await the scamps, but imagine his surprise to see two young girls climbing on the fence, and were about to get over into the garden when a dog which was with him barked, and the fair ones took to their heels, and were heard to say as they passed a house near by, 'There was a man there with the dog, too.' We are informed that they were not children, but girls 17 or 18 years of age."

Of No Consequence.

"Who was this man?" asked a Savannah coroner as he entered a crowd around a dead body. "Belonged to a brass band," replied a boy, and the coroner went on: "All right—no inquest necessary."

Quite an Inducement.

The Chronicle sends a gift map to every country editor who will consent to make favorable mention of that paper or its proprietors. The Oakland News has received its map.

Occasional Attacks.

An old lady was asked by a minister visiting her, if she had religion. She replied: "I have slight touches of it occasionally."

The Best Milker.

Mike Walsh had been recommended to Mr. Simpson as a fit man to assist in taking care of horses and cows; so Mike was hired, and placed in charge of this department. One morning, after Mike had been a month at the place, Simpson, who had made ready to start off with his milk-cart, said to him—"Mike, you may give the cows some oatmeal this morning; and be sure you give my best milker an extra quantity." "The best milker, is it sir?" "Yes; you know the old cow that gives the most milk?" "Bedad, I think I do, sir." "Well, you give her four quarts of mash." "All right, sir. I'll do that same." On the evening of that day Simpson had occasion to go to the old wooden pump in the yard. He tried the handle, but it wouldn't work. The pump seemed to be entirely choked up. Finally he discovered that all the upper part was loaded with something very nearly resembling oatmeal mash. He called his man. "Mike," said he, "what is the matter with this pump?" "The pump, is it, sir?" "Yes. How came this oatmeal mash in here?" "Sure, sir, I put it in meself." "You stupid block-head, why did you do that?" "It was yerself that told me, sir." "I told you to put it in here?" "Indade ye did, sir." "Why, you thick-headed rascal, what do you mean?" "Don't be in a passion, master. Did ye not tell me to give yer best milker an extra quantity of the mash? And where in all the world, I'd like to know, is the crathur that gives so much milk to yer cans as does this ould pump?"

A Police Court Scene.

The Detroit Free Press says: Flora Flemming, a young woman of 29, was led out and balanced on the mark, and the smile she languished on the Judge would have killed a bear twenty rods off.

"Your name is Flemming, I believe," he asked.

"Flora Flemming, sir," she answered with a graceful bow.

"And you were—were!"

"Sea-sick," she interrupted, "nothing but sea-sick."

A boy with his front teeth out laughed until he shook all over at the strange excuse, and the three old women blew their noses in a doubting manner.

"Miss Flemming," said his Honor gravely, "I'm a lone man, traveling towards the sunset of human life, and you should not seek to deceive me."

"I tell you it was sea-sickness," she replied.

"Miss Flemming, I shall have to make it sixty days," he continued, "and I do it more in sorrow than in anger. Your false hair, your gigantic bustle, your winks and smiles, can make no impression on me, and yet I grieve a little that one who could be such an ornament to society should go up to eat mush and weave cane."

She fell down in a faint, as Bijah took her back into the corridor, but when he went to throw a pail of water on her she leaped up and clawed at his nose, crying out:

"You miserable old rhinoceros, will you go for to abuse a broken-hearted lady?"

Advertising.

Recently a French newspaper published that a banker's country house had been robbed in the night, "but fortunately the thieves, in their hurry, had failed to open the second drawer on the right hand side of the escritoire, in which was a large sum of money, in bank notes." Two or three days later the editor received the following note:

MR. EDITOR:—I cannot sufficiently thank you for the information given in your excellent paper. It was in every respect exact, as I found on going last night, for the second time, to the house of M. Z——. The bills were there, and are now in my possession.

Honors to Art.

The Grand Duke of Saxe Coburg has bestowed the "Order of Merit for Art and Science" upon Madame Christine Nilsson Rousaud, and also the "Order of the Coburg House" (Knight of the Second Class) upon Mr. Arthur S. Sullivan. Both the Swedish songstress and the English composer have been staying at Coburg, guests of the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

To-night and at the matinee to-morrow Taylore's very successful play of "Was She Right?" will be repeated. The matinee attendance is sure to be very large, the play being founded on one of the woman questions of the day.

Maguire's New Theatre.

"The French Spy" with the dashing Mlle. Zoe in the leading character will be performed this evening and at the matinee to-morrow. The broad-sword combat never fails to bring down the house.

Opera House.

Billy Emerson and Ben Cotton on the ends in the first part, Billy Rice in his oration, J. E. Kemble, Billy Arlington and others in the olio, and the daring Lottie, the accomplished Frank, and the bewitching Katie in their wonderful aerial feats make up an entertainment unequalled elsewhere. The usual matinee performance will be given to-morrow.

Bella Union Theatre.

The spectacular drama of "The Mountain Queen" in which Miss Kate Raymond and O. B. Collins do some capital acting is having a very successful run at this house. Miss Lizzie Watson, Harry Braham, Albert DeCourcy, and other favorites appear nightly in specialties.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Johnny Tuers in song and dance, Miss Maggie Brower in fancy dances, Edward Barry in ballads and Frank Mortimore, Hughey Hopkins, and others in the drama entitled "The Brand of Shame" are among the attractions at this house.

Woodward's Gardens.

There are always thousands of attractions at these Gardens. Next Saturday and Sunday the Monster Giant, who carries the weight of seven men, will appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An [illegible] entrance on [illegible]

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their beer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins!
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little simers,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 209 Sutter street near Kearny. 8-bg

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. D. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 5-r

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon of White House, formerly 412 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Mr. Meyer, in his new and elegant premises, will be able to better accommodate his numerous patrons. 7-bg

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies. The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-1

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks, and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods. Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-x

BABY'S "GOOD NIGHT."

BY PAUL MICHEL.

No hours wherein to sit and dream
The very pulse of life away;
No idle thoughts and lone regrets—
Not e'en a shadow on the day.
But busy hours all fraught with hope,
With take, and joys, and calm delight;
And one sweet blessing crowns them all—
A little baby's kiss—"Good night!"

Who has not felt the touch of lips
Unsullied by the common speech,
Of dimpled hands that softly cling,
And stretch for all beyond their reach,
Cannot have felt the purest thrill
Of joy drawn nearer to His sight—
There's something of an angel's breath
About a baby-child's "Good night."

A baby-child! I think o'er all
Upholding me through toil and care,
And wonder on a woman's life
That has it not, this blessed share.
The sounds of peace—the spirit wings—
Are in that baby-robe so white,
Pressed closer to my resting heart,
Whose prayer is blent with lisped "Good night."

Good night! One day perhaps the tongue
That now essays to shape the words
May wake the world to mighty thoughts,
And stir life's deepest hidden chords.
Perhaps—and here I cease to dream—
When soul stands pausing in its flight,
'Twill hear, through calling angel hosts,
The echo of a child's "Good night!"

Car Manners.

A New York paper says:—"The English ideas are prevailing, that a man's wife entitles him to a seat, and that railroad companies and not passengers must furnish sittings to their customers. For this change in public sentiment, the ladies have only to thank themselves. It is the rarest thing for a New York woman to thank a gentleman for yielding his seat. It is accepted with an air of impertinence that seems to marvel at the impudence of a man for sitting down at all. Two women will occupy three seats, though the man is standing who yielded his sitting to the new-comers. If a lady comes into a car with an associate, and a gentleman gets up to make room for her, she will watch her chances and smuggle in her male friend, leaving the polite gentleman to hang on by the car-strap. Men tire of this; and, fired by their work, and anxious to read their papers, the great majority keep their seats to the end. It is a common thing for mothers to take a four-year-old in their arms, and enter the cars, confidently expecting that no man will be brute enough to see a woman standing up with a child. The seat yielded, the child is clapped down in it, and the woman looks around for somebody to give her a seat. These little tricks are well understood, and, after standing a few blocks, the mother will sit down and take the child in her lap. Nobody yields a seat in an omnibus nor at a table. Gentlemen don't give up their staterooms because ladies have to sit up; and there is growing a feeling that if passengers cannot find seats in one car they must take the next."

Saratoga.

This morning, writes "Eli Perkins," a well-known Boston man sat down by Senator Robertson, an old and proud resident of South Carolina, on the balcony of the States, and commenced ingratiating himself in the Southerner's feelings.

"I tell you, sir, South Carolina is a great State, sir," remarked Senator Robertson, enthusiastically.

"Yes," said the stranger from Boston, "she is. I knew a good many people down there myself; and splendid people they were, too; as brave and high-toned as the Huguenots."

"You did, sir."

"Oh! yes, sir. I knew some of the greatest men your State ever saw, sir. Knew 'em intimately, sir," continued the Boston man, confidentially drawing his chair closer and lighting his cigar.

"Who did you know down there, sir, in the old Palmetto State?" asked the Southerner.

"Well, sir, I knew General Sherman and General Kilpatrick and"—

"Great guns!" interrupted the South Carolinian, and then threw down his cigar and said—but, well, never mind.

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsible house. 7-bg

WHO OCCUPY THE STALLS.

Hepburn has opened stall 4, with fresh meats of all kinds. Families and restaurants supplied on the shortest notice.

Sullivan, Horn & Boyle have a splendid assortment butter, eggs, cheese and a general assortment of fancy groceries. Goods delivered free.

Stalls 39 and 40 are occupied by Kerrn & Hassard, dealers in fruits, vegetables, etc., of the best and freshest. Delivered free of charge.

Stall 3, makes a magnificent show of fresh meats. Jos. O. de Volt & Co., wholesale and retail dealers, have one of the nicest stalls in the market. Restaurants and families will find it to their advantage to give them a call.

BOSTON OYSTER HOUSE.—L. O. Pratt has opened stalls 89 and 90 in Centre Market. Oysters in every style. Chops and Steaks of the choicest. Ladies private rooms up stairs. 7-x

Stalls 21, 22 and 23, have been opened by Anderson & Marshall as the Long Branch oyster house. They are among the oldest oyster men in the city.

Swain's original bakery has opened a magnificent place at 213 Sutter street, near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in the city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 119, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Night to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-oj

By CLIFTON W. TAYLEURE, Esq., of the Baltimore Bar, author of "Red Lyons," (London Western version,) "Joel Jerry," "Charlotte Augustine," "Fiery Ely," "Margie Mitchell," "Three Glass Tumblers," and other plays.

The Play is based upon an exciting English Law which gives to any father the right by deed or will, to dispose of the custody and services of a minor child [illegible] to the exclusion of the mother. The iniquitous enactment, retained entirely England has been enacted in many of the United States.

LETTER FROM HON. A. OAKEY HALL, OF NEW YORK

To C. W. TAYLEURE, Esq. New York, Dec. 4, 1873.

"The revised statutes of New York provide that every father (whether of full age or a minor) of a child living born, or of any child born in lawful wedlock, of [illegible] years and upwards, may by deed or last will [illegible] dispose of the custody and services of such child during minority, [illegible] person or persons. I am glad to know that in addition to your [illegible] emphasis a dramatic problem [illegible] Social questions [illegible] knowledge.

SATURDAY.....SEPTEMBER 19, 1874

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

TRUCKEE.—Last night Charles Vivian and troupe appeared here. They will give another entertainment to-night. Vivian is very popular wherever he goes.

SAN JUAN.—The San Juan Times of last Saturday contained the following items :—To-night the White & Kearns troupe will entertain our citizens at the San Juan Theatre, with the beautiful play of "Faust and Marguerite," written by T. W. Robertson. The Misses Howard, Robinson, Wells, Scott and Raymond—with Messrs. Chaves, Robinson, White and Kearns, all artists of known ability, take the principal characters. The farce of "Loan of a Lover," will conclude the entertainment. After the first play an ello of ballads, songs, dance and duets will be given.

"The Leopard Boy and Fairy Queen."—This show also held forth here most of the week. It was well patronized, especially by the younger portion of our community. The boy seems to be a pure-blooded African; at all events of unmixed descent His body is covered with white spots which seem to be increasing, and we doubt not, that if he lives long enough he will become totally white. The Fairy Queen is a nice little lady about 19 years old, and only 31 inches high, sprightly and intelligent. The balance of the show consisted of a moving panorama, parlor menagerie of monkeys, snakes, etc.

GRASS VALLEY.—On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the Royal Marionettes exhibited at Hamilton Hall. On Thursday the Hibernica opened. The Union says :—"Mr. Pell, the advance agent for Montgomery Queen's Great Eastern Circus was in Grass Valley yesterday, and he intimates to us that the big show will be here on the 30th of this month."

SAN JOSE.—Last night Dr. Healy's Hibernian Gems, consisting of views of Ireland and a capital entertainment by an Irish company, afforded entertainment to the people of San Jose at the Opera House. There will be a matinee to-day and an evening performance. Lit. tle Mac's Minstrels will show here on the 21d.

PETALUMA.—Miss Florence Kent and troupe, under the management of Harry Bytinge, have been performing at the theatre during the Fair held this week,

VIRGINIA CITY, NEV.—Langrishe & Glenn's "Black Crook" Company opened on Monday at Piper's Opera House, and have drawn immense audiences during the week.

AUBURN.—Little Mac's Minstrels played here last night,

SACRAMENTO.—On Tuesday evening the Templeton Star Alliance commenced an engagement at the Metropolitan Theatre. "The New Magdalen" was presented, with Miss Alice Vane as Mercy Merrick, Little Fay Templeton appeared in one of her specialties, and Thomas Whiffen in ballads. On Wednesday, "Dora" and the operetta of "La Rose de St. Fleur," in which Miss Blanche Galton and Thomas Whiffen appeared, with Fay Templeton in her specialty of "Col. Plantagenet," constituted the bill. The troupe have done a good business.

NEVADA.—The Royal Marionettes performed here on the 17th.

PORTLAND, O.—The Oregonian says :—"Mrs. F. M. Phelps, accompanied by her excellent troupe, left Victoria last Tuesday morning, en route for Portland. She proposes to perform at the several towns along the Sound—Olympia, Seattle and Port Townsend. About the middle of next week the company may be expected to arrive here. Besides the troupe which left with her, Mrs. Phelps has Amy Stone and husband—a valuable acquisition to the company. Arrangements have been effected between the manageress, Mr. Charles Wheatleigh and Harry Edwards, the California favorite, by which these noted actors are to appear in Portland very soon. With the addition of these artists to her present company we shall expect to see an array of dramatic talent not often witnessed in Portland. A short theatrical season will be inaugurated in this city on the 25th inst.

FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

Dates to August 22d show the London theatres to have been continuing the pieces of the several previous weeks, with exception of the Haymarket, which was to reopen that evening with the traveling company of Mlle. Beatrice for a season of six weeks Campbell Clarke's English version of the "Sphinx" was to be produced among other features. The Opera Comique was also to reopen same date with a comic opera, styled the "Broken Branch" adapted from Gaston Serpette's "Branche Casses." As a propitiation of the "Sphinx" in the eyes of the public, the following paragraph was published: "It is needless, we trust, to go over old ground, and say once more how Mlle. Croizette made her brilliant success in the death scene in Octave Feuillet's "Sphinx," and positively electrified Paris by her ghastly realism. But, as so much has been said of the mechanical method by which the striking effect was made, it will be well that the truth of the matter should be at once known. This information we are in a position to give. Of the effect upon the audience there can be no question. At the dress rehearsal celebrated actresses fainted, so touched were they by the horrible picture, and during the subsequent representations ladies were over and over again compelled to hide their eyes or to retire to the back of the boxes. Now it has been said that the effect was produced in various ways. Some have asserted that Croizette made a study of ghastly deaths in the hospitals and in dead-houses, others insisted that her face while acting was illuminated by a green limb-light, others maintained that she rubbed her face with green powder. The fact of the matter is this. Mlle. Croizette has naturally a very high forehead, but she invariably wears her hair so low that it almost touches the eyes and quite obliterates the forehead. During the death scene in the "Sphinx," with one sudden movement, she uplifted the whole of her hair and displayed an abnormally high forehead, which, together with the whole face, had by the same movement been whitened by powder concealed in the hands. The effect was marvellous, but these were the mechanical means for obtaining the effect. Whether such tricks as these belong to the highest branch of art it will be for others to decide."

G. F. Rowe's "Geneva Cross," will be the opening production of the season at the Adelphi Theatre, London.

Mr. Charles Wyndham has been engaged by Miss Lydia Thompson, for the season, at the Charing Cross Theatre, London, commencing on the 7.

Andrew Halliday has completed an adaptation of Scott's novel of The Talisman entitled "The Knight of the Leopard," which will be produced immediately at Drury Lane Theatre, Miss Ellen Wallis playing the part of Edith Plantagenet, and Mr Creswick that of Saladin.

Charles Reade, the novelist and dramatist, is understood to be contemplating a managerial career. If he takes a London theatre he will present his own plays exclusively.

Mr. Barry Sullivan gave a feed on the 15th at the Freemason's Tavern, as a preliminary to his farewell tour throughout the British Isles, and his subsequent departure for the United States. He was to be accompanied by Ross Coghlan and J. F. Cathcart, and they were first to appear at Scarborough 24th. George Augustus Sala, Dr. Doran and Andrew Halliday made speeches at the dinner.

Condo Tara, a Jap of Tannamaker's Japanese troupe, was married on the 18th at Guernsey, to a pretty London blonde called Alice Daniels.

At Sanger's Circus, Manchester, England, Aug. 14, a mob of some thousands broke into the show, and, after some severe struggling with thirty or forty men employed and a dozen police, in which sticks, stones, and other weapons were used, the equestrian members of the troupe charged the mob and expelled them. One jockey was so injured that he was removed to the hospital, and altogether twenty or thirty persons were injured.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I eat a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies, The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapmen & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-I

Stalls 91, 92 and 93, have been opened by Anderson & Marshall as the Long Branch oyster house. They are among the oldest oyster men in the city.

Swain's original bakery has opened a magnicent place at 218 Sutter street, near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

MAGUIRE'S NEW THEATRE.—Since Adah Isaacs Menken was here, we have had no such performance of "The French Spy" as that at present being given at this theatre. Mlle. Marie Zoe is decidedly original and acts with so much spirit that she always succeeds in carrying her audience with her. The great broad-sword combat and the original wild Arab dance are popular features of the entertainment. In "The Pretty Horsebreaker" which proceeds the drama, Miss Sydney Cowell does some charmingly piquant acting as Bella Sunnyside, and George Giddons is particularly amusing as Stout. This bill will be played at the matinee to-day, this evening and, for the last time to-morrow evening.

OPERA HOUSE.—In reading the bills of Bryant's Minstrels, the San Francisco Minstrels, the Theatre Comique, and other New York entertainments, and contrasting the talent engaged there with that at present at the Opera House, San Francisco, one is forced to the conclusion that Manager Maguire gives the public more for their money than any other manager in the United States. Billy Emerson, Ben Cotton, Billy Arlington Billy Rice, J. R. Kemble, Ernest Linden and J. F. Oberist are all first-class stars. As to the gymnastic feat with which the entertainment terminates, New York has had no such sensation for many years. That the public appreciate the enterprise of Manager Maguire is proved by the fact that the Opera House is nightly crowded to its utmost capacity. The usual performance will be given at the matinee to-day, this evening and to-morrow evening.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—At the matinee today and again this evening C. W. Taylesure's powerful drama entitled "Was She Right" will be presented with Mrs. Chanfrau in the character of Emily Steadman. There are cases constantly occuring in San Francisco in which the custody of children is claimed by each parent. In most cases the mother wins. This play has excited considerable interest here and the liberality of the laws of California as contrasted with those of England and also of certain States in the Union has been realized by many who never before appreciated their privileges. There is sure to be a crowded matinee to-day.

NEW BELLA UNION THEATRE.—An excellent entertainment is given at this house. Matt Kelly and J. W. Summers cause much amusement in the first part, Miss Lizzie Watson's Irish ballads are much admired, and Harry Braham's comic impersonations keep the audience in a roar. The spectacular drama of "The Mountain Queen" played by Miss Kate Raymond, C. B. Collins, J. W. Summers, Tommy Bree, and others is a great success, and the audience are always well pleased BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE.—The sensational drama of "The Brand of Shame' Johnny Thorn in song and dance, Mortimore, Devoy and others in "The Clock Maker's Hat," Ed Barry in ballads and many other attractions are offered at this house.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—There are always thousands of attractions at these Gardens. Saturday and Sunday the Mameluke Giant, who carries the weight of seven men, will appear.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms. Guido Mangenberg, the proprietor, gets up epicurean breakfasts dinners and suppers at short notice.

GRAND SUNDAY EXCURSION.—The steamer Antelope leaves San Francisco every Saturday at 3:30. P M. and on Sunday at 8 A. M. from Front Street Wharf, connecting with the cars of the S. F. & N. P. Railroad at Donahue for Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Healdsburg and Cloverdale. Excursion tickets are issued at reduced rates, and are good from Saturday to Monday. Those who wish to enjoy a little country air at the end of the week could not choose a finer trip than this excursion offers.

EXCURSION TO GREEN POINT, ALVISO, SAN JOSE AND SANTA CLARA.—To accommodate excursionists, the swift and elegant steamer Pilot will leave Front-street Wharf on Sunday, Sept. 13th, at 10 o'clock A. M., affording the cheapest and most pleasant excursion on the Bay. Excursion tickets to Green Point and Alviso and return $1; excursion tickets to San Jose and Santa Clara and return, $1 50.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain Railroad.

NOTES.—E. D. Davies, acknowledged to be the most wonderful ventriloquist living is on his way to San Francisco under engagement to Manager Maguire.

It will be seen by referring to our summary of Eastern news that Howard Paul intends to pay a visit to California and give a series of his monologue entertainments.

The next play in which Mrs. Chanfrau will appear is "Jealousy" written expressly for her by C. W. Taylesure.

The dramatic critic of the Chronicle who really knows so much that there is nothing left for anyone else to know, takes Mr. Taylesure, a member of the Baltimore bar to task for mistakes in law displayed in "Was She Right?" and flatly tells the Hon. A. Oakey Hall, one of the first lawyers in New York that he doesn't know as much law as HE, the queer little critic of the Chronicle does.

Manager John Piper, of Virginia City, has catered bountifully for the public of his section during the present season. Lotta, Joe Murphy and the Black Crook Troupe all proved strong attractions. Manager Piper has a stock company under engagement capable of supporting any star, and has made his arrangements so thorough that the public of Virginia City will fare as well in the way of amusements as that of San Francisco.

W. C. V. Hall's magic lantern show of views of Southern California, came off at Platt's Hall last night. It was not a very brilliant affair. The California Immigrant Union publishes a card explaining that Mr. Hall uses the name of the Union, in connection with his enterprise more freely than they authorized.

J. A. Johnson, editor of the Santa Barbara Press, is about to enter the lecture field with a number of large and artistically executed views of California, and he doesn't like the idea of Mr. Hall getting ahead of him with a weak imitation. We sincerely hope that Mr. Johnson's pictures of California, which he will shortly place on exhibition, will do the Golden State better justice than do the rather cheap affairs of Mr. Hall.

On Monday the dashing Mlle. Marie Zoe will appear in the romantic pantomime of "The Wizard Skiff" and will afterwards appear in a speaking part in a play entitled "The Broken Sword."

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York "The Deluge" was produced at Niblo's on the 7th. A lengthy description of it was published in yesterday's Figaro.....John T. Raymond is playing at the Park Theatre, in Mark Twain's piece entitled "The Gilded Age".....At Union Square Theatre Miss Charlotte Thompson continued to draw good houses in "Jane Eyre." She will appear in conjunction with Miss Clara Morris in the forthcoming production of "The Sphynx".....At the Lyceum "La Princess de Trebizonde" has taken the place of "La Timbale D'Argent"..... John McCullough will close his engagement at Booth's Theatre to-night. ....The San Francisco Minstrels comprising Billy Birch, Billy Backus, Add Ryman, Dave Wambold, Eugene Tremaine and others are doing well at their new hall on Broadway.....J. L. Tools continues at Wallack's Theatre. He has failed to make an impression.....Bryant's Minstrels comprising Dan Bryant, Neise Seymour, Bob Hart and others are drawing large audiences on Twenty-third street .....At Wood's Museum E. L. Davenport's engagement has been postponed. "Foul Play" by the stock company was the attraction....."The School for Scandal" was produced in grand style at Daly's Fifth Avenue Theatre on the 9th....The Reynolds Brothers are members of the company at the Olympic Theatre Sam Rickey and Master Barney reappeared on the 7th.....At the Metropolitan Theatre the Can Can has caused a sensation and also the arrest of the whole company. The burlesque of "The Field of the Cloth of Gold" is the latest novelty.....A drama in one act entitled "Passion's Perils" is a feature of the bill at the Theatre Comique.

The Boston Courier of the 9th says: The drama of "Kit Carson" has been played during the past week at the Howard, in which the Warm Spring Indians have appeared. These aboriginal gentry have not indulged in talk, but have ventilated their peculiar abilities in a series of characteristic dances highly relished by the Howard audiences, which have been simply tremendous throughout the week. Mr. J. B. Studley, whose lithe, erect figure is the very ideal of the American trapper, was very effective as the hero, Kit Carson. He is without exception one of the very best melodramatic actors in the country.

Frank S. Chanfrau followed Frank Mayo at the Boston Theatre.

It is said that Oliver Doud Byron will begin his season in November with a new play by Dion Boucicault.

Mr. Charles Gayler has formed a business connection with the Florences, and will travel with them this season. He will also furnish them with one or two new plays.

Miss Kate Field will make her first appearance on the New York stage in December, playing Peg Woffington in Masks and Faces at Booth's Theatre on the off-nights of Mr. Jefferson's engagement. Miss Field has completed a dramatic version of Hawthorne's Scarlet Letter, which she will probably bring out somewhere during the season.

The saucy Gotham correspondent of the St. Louis Republican writes concerning one of the present managers of Booth's in this style: There in the boxes [at the opening of the Fifth Avenue Theatre] is Harry Palmer, too sweet for earth, his hair parted in the middle, and wearing a low-necked shirt, the sleeves tied up with blue ribbons, I have no doubt, but he wears his coat with long sleeves, so I'm not sure of that. The divine Harry is beaming on the British blonde who last ensnared the vanilla bean (that Harry calls heart) which rests in his perfumed, jewelled pericardium. Whenever I think of this sprig of management he seems to come naturally in with cologne fountains and boxes of mauve kids.

A new American drama, written expressly for Mr. Frank B. Aiken, rumor says, will be the next attraction at Niblo's, after the run of "The Deluge."

"Brace" is the title of a new play to be produced at Wallack's during the season. It is from the pen of G. F. Rowe.

Miss Carlotta LeClercq was billed in Springfield Mass., for the 8th and 9th.

Leffingwell will shortly play at Wood's Museum.

Harry Beckett has returned from England.

A delicately organized Boston paper complains that "the eternal fitnes of things is destroyed in an amusing style in Barnum's Congress of Nations when the Pope of Rome indulges in a comfortable and of fine-cut tobacco, and Napoleon the First, in a fit of abstraction, wipes his nose with the back of his hand."

The new Globe Theatre, Boston, will open December 7, under the management of Mr. Arthur Cheney. The Advertiser furnishes the following particulars of this new house: The cost of the stage alone will be upwards of twenty-five thousand dollars, and it will be built after the most perfect fashion and with all the latest improvements. It will be a little shallower than the stage of the old Globe, but very much broader, and not cramped at the wings as was its predecessor Previous to the opening, it will be completely supplied with new scenery from the brush of the unequalled Mr. Heister. The new Globe is to have three entrances, the principal one from Washington street, and one each from Essex street and Hayard place, these all being in addition to that used by the artists, which is as in the former house, from Brimmer place. Mr. Cheney will engage no company for the present year, except for the care and "working" of the building and stage, and for the supply of supernumeraries, ballet and the minor characters of plays.

The Clipper says: Howard Paul arrived from England in the steamship Baltic on Sunday, Sept. 6th. On Saturday evening he gave a costume concert in the saloon of the ship. After giving a few entertainments in this city, he will visit the growing towns on the Pacific Slope.

Paul Falk, the proprietor and manager of Tivoli Garden, New York, who will persist in giving variety performances on the afternoon and evening of every Sunday, for which he has been arrested regularly every Tuesday for the past six weeks, appeared at the Essex-market Police-court, and gave his customary bond of $1,000 on Sept. 1. He presents a new bondsman upon each arrest.

Robert McWade commences an engagement in Cincinnati on Sept. 21.

Miss Neilson reappears at the Lyceum theatre, in New York, Oct., 19.

The New York Courier says: Miss Kellogg has declined an offer of $25,000 and expenses for ten nights of English opera in California

A New York paper says: Barnum's Hippodrome has continued through the past week to immense business in Philadelphia. In the ladies' flat race Miss Annie Yates, one of the prettiest of the riders, was hurled to the ground by the slipping of her horse. The three ladies who were competing were compelled to jump the horses over her. The horses kicked her severely. When she fell several gentlemen jumped from the audience into the track to her assistance. She was carried to her dressing-room considerably hurt, but is recovering fast. The colored jockey also had his arm broken in the jockey race.

Carrie Armstrong and J. H. Larkin were at Buffalo, at latest dates.

The Barton Opera House at Syracuse, opened on the 31st ult., to big business with J. L. Davis and dogs, Cogill and Cooper, Jule Keen, Charley Benedict, Senor Ed. Monta, James Neary, James O'Neil, Eugene F. Gorman, Susie Starr, Sallie Adams, Patti Doss, Mlle. Garretta, Marian Requa, Ed. Monta, Prof. Sherrington, leader of orchestra, Hi. Hogle, proprietor; Eugene F. Gorman, business and stage manager; and Charles Cole, treasurer.

Riverhead, Long Island, was visited a day or two ago by three young rascals who professed to be managing a traveling show. They distributed posters throughout the village, informing the residents that a grand exhibition would take place. Besides the entertainment, presents to the value of several hundred dollars would be distributed among the ticket holders. When evening arrived the hall was illuminated, but the audience only numbered about a dozen. The curtain rose and the trio appeared in one or two songs and dances. It was then announced by one of them that the "magic rope trick" would be performed. The audience waited for half an hour, when one of them ventured behind the curtain and found that the troupe had slid down a rope to the ground and escaped; and it afterwards appeared that in their haste they had forgotten to balance accounts with the landlord, who was out to the amount of $15

De Hague's California Minstrels, though heavily billed for two performances at Peoria, Ill., Sept. 2, 3, did not put in an appearance—cause, collapsed at Bloomington Sept. 1.

Cassim and Fritz advertise for an engagement in the New York Clipper.

John Wilson's San Francisco Palace Circus, opened in St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 30, to a very large business, and have played to increasing attendance every afternoon and evening since. The amphitheatre, built by the management, will seat comfortably 7000 persons, and is lit with gas.

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion, We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsable house. 7-bg

W. H. AIKEN, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW AND Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic in California and Nevada, gives prompt attention to the collection of Additional Travel Pay, now due California and Nevada Volunteers discharged more than three hundred miles from home. Soldiers can depend on fair dealing. Information given free of charge. When writing enclose stamp for reply, and state company and regiment, and whether you have a discharge. Congress has extended the time for filing claims for additional Bounty under Act of July 28, 1866, to January 1875 so all claims must be made before that time. Original Bounty of $100 has been allowed all volunteers who enlisted before July 2 d, 1861, for three years, if not paid the same when discharged. Land Warrants can be obtained for services rendered before 1855, but not for services in the late war. Pensions for late war and war of 1812 obtained and increased when allowed for less than disability warrants, but no pensions are allowed to Mexican and Florida war soldiers. State of Texas has granted Pensions to surviving veterans of Texas Revolution. New Orleans and Mobile Prize Money in view and being paid. W. H. TUESDAY.....SEPTEMBER 23, 1874

Ah! Ah!

The San Jose Mercury of Sunday gives the following account of what the native talent of San Jose can accomplish:

A new and original allegorical painting has been added to Dr. Healy's Hibernian Gems, and it will be presented to the public for the first time at the exhibition to be given to-morrow evening. It was painted by Carl Browne, scenic artist of the San Jose Opera House, and is entitled "Erin's Hope Realized; How Ireland will eventually conquer England, or redeem her wrongs, not by the Sword of War but by the Pen, i. e., the sword of Public Opinion." We have seen Carl's sketch of the work, which if executed on canvas as well will be a valuable addition to the "Gems." The extreme right corner is typical of Ireland's wrongs, showing the British soldiery firing on the peasantry, and setting fire to their cottages. Lower, it shows the graves of fallen heroes in Ireland's cause, being maintained by the tears of fair women and brave men—modern Fenians. The central figure shows the British lion recumbent on the British flag, struck to the heart with the sword of public opinion. Near at hand the voluptuous form of Ireland's goddess, bearing aloft the flag of green embellished with the "Harp that once thro' Tara's Hall," etc., while St. Patrick is appearing through a sunburst, giving his blessing.

An "Original" Poet.

Joaquin Miller, the original untamed poet of the Sierras, in his verses in the Overland Monthly entitled "Pace Implora," draws his "inspiration" so plainly from Swinburne that the Overland Monthly ought to be ashamed to accept such a "worked over" bit of versification. The first few lines will show what we mean:

"Better it were to sit still by the sea,
Loving somebody and satisfied—
Better it were to grow babes on the knee,
To anchor you down for all your days—
Than wander and wander in all these ways,
Land forgotten and love denied."

This has the regular Swinburne twang. The Oregon poet seems to have worked out his original leads, and is now jumping any claim which seems available.

A Master of Elocution.

The dramatic critic of the Chronicle, who has had experience of the law, is also, it appears, a master of elocution. He says:

Mr. Buckley, whose general knowledge of stage business renders him a very useful young actor, is fast injuring his voice by a bad method of enunciation. A little hard work at common elocutionary practice would remedy this now. By-and-bye it will be too late.

We advise Mr. Buckley to take some lessons in enunciation and pronunciation from the learned critic of the Chronicle. Then he can retire from the stage and travel as a side show.

A Hasty Suggestion.

At a recent meeting of a society composed of men from the Emerald Isle, a member made the following motion: "Mr. President, I move yees that we whitewash the ceiling green, in honor of the owld flag."

Muffington says, if the proposition had been approved of and carried out it would have looked well, as they would have had the green above their 'ed.

Church Discipline.

A Church of England clergyman knocked his sister down and sat on her. This is all the information that reaches us; but if she had the spirit of a woman (and any pins) in her bosom, he won't be able to sit on anything else for a goodly period.

Great Bargains in Clothing:

GOODNESS.

How little attention mere goodness attracts from the world at large. Nay! more, how little expressed admiration is there for it. The shrewd trader who accumulates wealth by taking every advantage allowable, is honored and respected. It does not matter what he does with his money. He need not encourage the arts and sciences, he need not devote his wealth to ameliorating the condition of the less fortunate persons; it is sufficient that he has money; he is a great man. A. T. Stewart, the New York linen draper, is a great man, and a new biography of him is at present going the rounds of the press. A politician, who by creeping through slimy ways, at length attains a "high" position, is a "great man." Recently, a man died at Perth Amboy, New Jersey, who was by no means a great man, but pre-eminently a good man. The New York Tribune, Times, Post, Commonwealth and other papers devoted some space to obituary notices of this man who was not great, but good. From a letter in the last named paper, we make the following extract:

When our daily newspapers are deluging the land with tales of human depravity and wickedness—when the worst side of humanity, in public and private life, is so persistently held up to our gaze as at the present day—occasionally a life single to goodness, charity and philanthropy shines out amid the darkness to dispel our fears for the world and to revive a waning faith in human nature. Such a life has just closed in the death of Marcus Spring, of Perth Amboy, New Jersey. To many of our readers he must have been known personally, and to many others his name will undoubtedly be familiar. Yet, he was a man who shunned notoriety—who held no public office, whose good deeds were not done to be seen of men, and whose aim in life was simply to leave the world better for his having lived in it.

Marcus Spring hurried through the money making portion of his life and devoted the best portion of it to doing good. The New York papers say of him that he was the friend of Horace Greeley, Curtis, Park Goodwin, William Cullen Bryant, Fredrika Bremer and other choice spirits, and the patron of such artists as Page and Inness, both of whom had studios at Eagleswood. Such a pleasant simple story is that of Marcus Spring that it seems strange that the New York Times, Tribune, Post and Commonwealth should deem it worthy of publication. He "commenced business" by taking charge of the business of a brother who died insolvent and clearing his name by paying off $100,000 by years of exertion. He declined a compromise offered by the creditors, and discharged every liability. Then he started for himself. By honest business he accumulated wealth and as soon as possible retired. An obituary notice of such a man as this really does seem almost out of place in a newspaper. It affords no chance for sensation headings, causes no excitement, does not sell an extra paper. Mere goodness, rare as it is, does not pass for much in Vanity Fair. Perhaps it has a real value.

A Popular Song.

The New York Dispatch says of a song which was recently sung to great applause at Platt's Hall by Wally Price of the Hibernian Gems Company: "Jim Fisk never went back on the poor," we are assured by the writer of a song. But the author "goes back" on Lindley Murray extensively. But that's of no consequence. It isn't likely that those who admire the song will discover the author's foul butchery of the English language, Their acquaintance with old Lindley is probably as limited as that of the author. And they'll be happy and howl away at the song.

Was It a Plot?

The FIGARO office was broken into with the assistance of an iron bar, probably a jimmy. The FIGARO detective has discovered that this weapon was carried wrapped up in a newspaper. The newspaper was found in the passage outside with marks of the iron in it. That paper was the Alta!!! We make no accusations, but the the idea suggests itself that —— well, never mind.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen!
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here;
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins'g
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

USE MARSHALL'S SALVE DAGUERREAN—best and cheapest in town—at Oyster House 672 Howard street, near Third. 5-M

Winker's Cat.

Winker has fun with his cat—a cat not "full of frolic" like Yankee Doodle's famous feline, but a sedate, well-behaved Tabby, with a large family depending upon her immediate exertions for support. She is earnest in everything she does, and it is her theory that life is too short to be trifled away. But Winker is a person who relishes practical jokes, and would pull a dog's tail at a funeral, if he though he could disturb the equanimity of the cannine on the occasion. It has always been a source of regret to him that he was not in Ireland when the celebrated Kilkenny cats had their mutually destructive conflict. One time Winker's family departed for a little "one horse" Summer resort, and he remained at home keeping house alone, with nothing to do. As "Satan always finds mischief still for idle hands to do." Winker concluded to get up a first-class tease for his cat. He procured the skin of a mouse and fitted it over one of his fingers so nicely that it looks much better than the original animal. It had a plumper and more appetizing appearance to a cat. It was quite fat and tempting in fact to pussy. Now, this cat and her family had a suite of apartments in the carriage-house and Winker, to produce a scene, stationed himself in the granary and poked his finger through a rat-hole in the partition, while he looked through a crack to enjoy the movements of the tantalized cat. When Grimalkin beheld the finger protruding through that orifice, and observed that it was so skillfully covered with the mouse skin, she naturally thought it was the genuine article. She proposed to "go for it" with clerity and promptitude; but the mouse-apparent was quietly withdrawn from the hole, much to the delight of Winker and the disgust of the cat. Pussy's kittens, perhaps, had been abstemious, and were doubtless getting hungry. It became necessary for pussy to supply herself with something edible, therefore, to set off the waste endured by her lacteal system. But how could she do it in the present instance, unless that mouse would cease its idle performances, and permit her to catch it? At last the cat concluded to resort strategy; so she placed herself upon one side of the hole, in which position Winker could not see her movements, and there's where she circumvented Winker completely. The next time he thrust that long finger of his through the orifice, pussy had grown perfectly desperate; hence, she pounced upon it, and set her teeth and claws firmly into it until the former went to the bone. She hung on to it, and tried to pull it through the hole, while Winker yelled loudly with pain. She held on and clawed and chawed vigorously. It hurt Winker almost as much to pull his finger away from her as it would a victim to the toothache who should try to get away from a dentist when he had possessed himself of a perfect grip on a recusant molar. Of course, the fun soon ended between Winker and the cat. The doctor now says the cauterization of that finger may possibly save Winker from an attack of hydrophobia, but he must be very careful or he will certainly have the lock-jaw.

Rough on Johnson.

"Why," said one friend to another, the other day, "is it that Jim Johnson looks so sad now-a-days? He used to be the soul of jollity and good-fellowship." "Don't you know?" asked the friend, in astonishment. "No; certainly not," was the reply. "His wife's got a piano, and is taking lessons. That's what's the matter with him." "Good Heavens! I pity him, poor man!"

A Noisy Nuisance.

If any Christian gentleman doubts his own ability to use classic language with vehemence, let him move next door to a church! We know one man who has exhausted his store of that sort of language, and he isn't a Christian, either. The bell can keep up banging longer than he can swear, and he's pretty long-winded in that line, too.

A Poetic Soul.

A married pair were recently divorced by decree of the Supreme Judicial Court of the State of Maine on the ground of cruelty. The true reason was that he loved flowers, books, poetry, pets, and all the beauties of nature, while she confined her thoughts solely to "biled victuals" and the interests of the children.

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

"Jealousy," a domestic drama by O. W. Taylenre, founded on the novel of East Lynne, was successfully produced last night. Mrs. Chantrau as the misunderstood, but not guilty wife, did some powerful emotional acting, and Miss Ellie Wilton, Henry Edwards, John Wilson and others engaged in the representation, played their respective parts well. "Jealousy" will be played again this evening.

Maguire's New Theatre.

The new bill played at this house last night proved a great success. In "The Wizard Skiff" Mlle. Marie Zoe surpassed herself. By her acting and dancing in the role of the Greek boy Ayots, she aroused the audience to enthusiastic demonstrations of delight. E. J. Buckley, James A. Herne, George Giddens, Miss Sidney Cowell and others played their respective parts with much ability. In the play of "The Broken Sword" Mlle. Marie Zoe was equally successful in gaining the plaudits of the spectators. Her pantomime in the character of Myrtillo a dumb boy, was very graceful and expressive. The scenery by M. Struss was very fine and, altogether, the entertainment proved very popular and should draw a succession of crowded houses.

Opera House.

The new bill presented at this house last night by the great combination of artists known as Emerson's Minstrels, and those wonderful gymnasts Miss Lottie and Frank, made a great sensation. Everything was applauded. Billy Emerson surpassed himself in the first part, and Billy Rice, J. R. Kemble, Ben Cotton, Billy Arlington, J. F. Oberist, Ernest Linden, and others won much applause in the acts entitled "Law vs. Justice," "The Arizona Recruits," and "Vesuvius Mozart." The same attractions will be presented to-night. The new feat entitled "Transvolation" by Lottie, Frank and Katie has caused as great a furore as either of the others in which these artists have appeared.

Platt's Music Hall.

J. A. Johnson's lecture last night on Southern California, illustrated by panoramic views of the semi-tropical portion of the State, was well attended. Mr. Johnson is enthusiastic in his advocacy of the lower portion of the State as a place for settlement, and we have no doubt that his lecture and panoramic views, which make up a very agreeable entertainment, will be appreciated in the East and in Europe, and will induce immigration to this fruitful land.

Bella Union Theatre.

The sensation drama entitled "The Mysteries and Miseries of New York," which was presented for the first time at this theatre last night, proved quite a success, and Miss Kate Raymond won much applause in the character of Brownie, a waif of New York. She was ably supported by O. B. Collins who made a hit in the sketch of "A Slippery Day," which terminated the evening's entertainment. Miss Lizzie Watson and Harry Braham sang new songs and were much applauded and altogether the entertainment was thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience present.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

"The Brand of Shame," "Taking the Pledge," "He Would be an Actor," "Stocks Up," and an olio of songs and dances, make up a rich evening's entertainment at this popular variety theatre.

Woodward's Gardens.

More novelties are being constantly added to the numerous attractions on exhibition at these Gardens. On Saturday and Sunday next Crambo, the three-legged clown, the great comique and grotesque, will appear; the thrilling antipodean feat, or walking on the ceiling, zampillærostation, pantomime and concert. Now on exhibition, a living Brazilian Toucan, a bird of wonder, very rare and seldom seen alive.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

New Wine and Oyster House.

Mr. A. Freeman, formerly under the California Theatre, has opened his new Wine and Oyster House, at 224 Sutter street opposite the Centre Market. Oysters fresh from the beds, and Wines of the finest brands. 8.

Clara Antonia, M. D., de Paris, Business and Medical Clairvoyant and Independent Trance Medium, 134½ Post street, near Dupont, Correct diagnosis and special attention to the treatment of diseases. Consultations in French, German and English. 6-o

MAGNANIMITY.

[FROM THE ARABIC.]

Outside the camp, one day,
As deep the prophet lay.

Suddenly he woke, and lo!
Above him stood his foe;

Stood Durther with drawn blade,
"Who is there now?" he said,

"Mohammed, thee to save
From Durther and the grave?"

"Allah!" the prophet cried,
Whereat, awe-terrified,

A-quake at that dread word,
Durther let fall his sword,

Mohammed stretched his hand,
And holding high the brand;

"Who Durther now can save
From Allah and the grave?"

"Alas! lord, no one." "Then
Thy weapon take again,

And from Mohammed learn
Mercy to show in turn!"

Thenceforth, the legend ends,
These two were always friends.

A What Is It.

The Portland Oregonian says: No description we could give you of that remarkable animal in the Museum would satisfy you or do justice to the thing itself. It has a bushy tail, long and rather wooly coating of the body, long walling eyes, broad drooping ears, very large skull, especially the upper portion, nose very short, mouth resembling a full-blooded bull-dog, beard on chin one and two inches long, body very thick (24 inches in diameter), and very short, (20 inches long.) The hight of the animal is not over 10 inches. It has cloven feet. The face looks as much like a human face as anything else.

A Resolute woman.

"She never told her love," but she wasn't the kind of woman to let concealment feed on her damask cheek. When he went out with another girl, she went after the two, and tackled the other feminine, and spoiled all her fine clothes, and damaged her countenance, and then took his arm and marched him off home. She says: "I just want to ketch some other girl goin' to picnics with my Jim. She won't do so no more, or I'm a cat." Jim is not entirely happy.

Very Sad.

A Michigan lady writes to the Woman's Journal to say that the woman in her neighborhood are so benighted that they care nothing about voting and all that sort of thing, but just keep at their housework like mere machines. She adds: "We have no lecturers or speakers, and meeting of no kind have as yet been hinted at in this locality or for twenty miles around, so far I can learn."

"I Know Something!"

A clergyman was once catechizing a class of children of his congregation, and coming to a little boy, who was something of a rogue, asked him what he knew. "I know something," replied the urchin, with a significant look. "Well, my son, what do you know?" replied the pastor. "I know where there is a bird's nest," said the boy; "but I shan't tell you, for fear you would steal the eggs."

A Juvenile Sceptic.

"I don't believe it rained forty days and forty nights," said an unbelieving boy to his mother; "nor that story about Noah and and his ark; for how could Noah bring all the animals and birds from the four quarters of the earth, and not a railroad or a steamboat in the whole world."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-oj

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. D. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-r

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 209 Sutter street near Kearny. 8-bg

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies. The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapmen & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-I

THE EXAMINER, with latest telegraphic dispatches every evening, is delivered by carriers at twenty-five cents per week.

BOSTON OYSTER HOUSE.—L. O. Pratt ha opened stalls 89 and 90 in Centre Market. Oysters in every style. Chops and Steaks of the choicest. Ladies private rooms up stairs. 7-z

Stalls 91, 92 and 93, have been opened by Anderson & Marshall as the Long Branch oyster house. They are among the oldest oyster men in the city.

Swain's original bakery has opened a magnicent place at 213 Sutter street, near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Mr. Meyer, in his new and elegant premises, will be able to better accommodate his numerous patrons. 7-bg

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsable house. 7-bg

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
W. H. AIKEN, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW AND Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic in California and Nevada, gives prompt attention to the collection of Additional Travel Pay, now due California and Nevada Volunteers discharged more than three hundred miles from home. Soldiers can depend on fair dealing. Information given free of charge. When writing enclose stamp for reply, and state company and regiment, and whether you have a discharge. Congress has extended the time for filing claims for additional Bounty under Act of July 28, 1866, to January 1876, so all claims must be made before that time. Original Bounty of $100 has been allowed all volunteers who enlisted before July 3rd, 1861, for three years, if not paid the same when discharged. Land Warrants can be obtained for services rendered before 1856, but not for services in the late war. Pensions for late war and war of 1812 obtained and increased when allowed for less than disability warrants, but no pensions are allowed to Mexican and Florida war soldiers. State of Texas has granted Pensions to surviving veterans of Texas Revolution. New Orleans and Mobile Prize Money is now due and being paid. W. H. A Great Pity.

An exchange says:

Here is a woman's argument against base ball:—Base ball spreads the palm, flattens the thumb, and crooks the handsome fingers. Look at the hands of a great number of the young men of to-day. Oh, cruel deformity! What an instrument to pat a woman's cheek! It has not the velvet softness of the paw of a cat, nor the eagle's talon. They are only fit to be given away if a creature can be found weak enough to take them.

In view of the fact that there are not too many handsome hands in the world, it would, perhaps, be as well for the owners to refrain from abusing them by base ball or honest industry. "The horny-handed ones" can do as they please.

A Far-seeing Child.

Jimmy M. was the brightest of boys, and although but seven or eight years old, had evinced a love for wealth, and looked forward to the time when he should be a rich man. One morning at breakfast, his aunt informed him that during the night a pair of twins had been added to the family, which already consisted of three besides Jimmy. The boy dropped his knife and fork, and exclaimed, "Gracious! Aunt Mary, if father and mother keep on at this rate there won't be fifty dollars to divide among us!"

A Decent Tribute.

The Chronicle, owned by Jews, pays a decent tribute to the festival of Young Skipper, which is at present being celebrated. It is thought that this will have an effect on the advertising columns. Young Skipper was one of the great rabbis of the Jewish church. He was of Persian parentage and is supposed by many to have been one of the authors of the Zend Avesta or, Sacred book of the Persians. We give him this little notice with the view of getting patronage for our advertising columns.

Ichabod!

The purity of the moral city of San Francisco is tarnished. The Supreme Court has decided that immoral Chinawomen have a right to dwell here. How can we have the face to allow Mr. Johnson to go forth with his views of California and invite people to emigrate to this land of sin? As immorality is entirely confined to the Chinese and to the female sex of that race, we may be able to exist, but the dreadful thought haunts us that immorality may spread—it may spread.

Eastern News.

The relations of the chambermaids at the watering-places, about this time are exceedingly interesting. They say that the quantity of soap, matches and towels that have been taken away by mistake, the past season, is astonishing, and that the powder and paint rags found behind the bureaus, and the pieces of pink saucers discovered in the washstand cupboards are too numerous to mention.

Under Contract.

We understand that the benevolent Harper Brothers who publish a journal of civilization, have a contract with M. Franzeny, the artist, by the terms of which he is obliged during the time he is on the Pacific Coast to risk his life at least three times. M. Franzeny will go up in a balloon again shortly and the sweet Harpers will go to church and murmur "from sudden deaths good Lord deliver us."

More of It.

Now it is Mr. Herne who does not speak good enough English to please that article of vertu attached to the Chronicle office as dramatic critic. Bey Joove eef we air gooing to haaave our California actors, you knowww, subjected to this sort of thing, bey Jove they'll be very apt to anunciate a little more plainly than somebody ah, will be pleased at.

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Poyser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks, and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-x

Burkhardt's 540 Washington street.

French calf boots made to order for $8; box toed gaiters made to order for $6; oxford tie shoes made to order for $4; boy's boots made to order for $5; and large assortment of boots and shoes, all of Burkhardt's own make, at equally low sales, at 540 Washington street. 9-x

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the professian and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescoed and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

A Tribute to an Actor.

The Rev. Mr. Nye, at the funeral services of the late F. B. Conway, in Brooklyn, last week, said:

It seems to be supposed that the pulpit in speaking of those connected with the stage, must always speak in measured, cold terms, hardly paying that tribute of respect given to another. I look, myself, upon all the occupations of life as honorable when honorably filled. I think it belongs to every man in this world to choose that place for which his talents best fit him, and to work in that place for his own benefit and the benefit of his family, and to minister to the peace and happiness of the community in which he lives. Mr. Conway chose his profession and honorably filled it. He has been recognized in this community, I am told, by those who knew him for many years, as an honest, generous-hearted and faithful man; as a man who has done very much to elevate the public taste, and ministered not only to the improvement but to the elevation and happiness of the community in which he lived. We come into this chapel, members of the profession with which this man was connected, and gentlemen from all professions of life, those who have honored the man for his faithfulness and honesty to his profession, and his faithfulness and honesty to the domestic ties, to pay to him a fitting tribute of respect and honor, and then follow his remains to the grave. We bow in sadness while we speak of him, not as an actor on the stage—though there he was much admired—but as the man in his home—beloved, trusted and generous.

Self Communion.

Staggering up Washington street the other evening went a young man who was having very earnest conversation with himself. "Look here," he said, "I think I've gone and made a pooty considerable of a fool of myself. I'm an ass, that's wot I am! I've gone and got drunk, I have. Now wot did I do it for? I give it up. It's only because I'm an ass, that's wot it is! To-morrow I'll have a blasted headache, that's wot'll be the matter. And then I will swear off drinking, I know I will; but I won't keep sober. That's sure's anything. Wat's the matter with me? I an't a fool. I know better. Wot's the reason that I don't stop? It's jest because I am an ass." And then he tottered on until he reached a liquor saloon, which he appeared to know. As he turned into it we heard him mutter: "There, I knew I'd do it, I am a regular ass. That is me all over."

A Coincidence.

The San Jose Mercury says: In looking over our Eastern exchanges we were struck with the resemblance between the portraits of P. T. Barnum, as they appear in his show advertisement, and those of Montgomery Queen, which are now adorning the newspapers of this coast. It is patent that the cuts are all made from the same plate. Evidently Barnum is speculating on Queen's beauty; or else it is an accidental resemblance, such as characterized the similarity between the Chronicle's portraits of Vasquez, Capt. Jack, the Modoc chief, and Calvin B. Macdonald.

A Riotous Woman.

A woman was placed on trial in the Chester (Pa.) Court, recently, charged with disturbing a religious meeting by riotously eating peanuts. The evidence for the prosecution was that, although she was repeatedly requested to desist, she made a loud noise by her munching, and crushed the shells with her hands, declaring to the deacon that she should eat peanuts whenever she wanted to. The woman was discharged.

A Final Appeal.

After a case has passed the Supreme Court of California, the Post reverses the decision. Senator Jones has nothing to do with the Post now. He has left it to work out its own destruction.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen!
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked was splendidly, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins'd
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

There is no Question About It.

A New York Washington correspondent says: "The Postmaster-General, from Europe, finds himself, on the first day of his official labors in Washington, called upon to decide a delicate construction of the Postal laws. It appears that since the Beecher-Tilton scandal the mails have been freely used, by means of the postal card, to circulate doggeral verses on this public topic. To-day a communication was received from the Postmaster at Pittsburgh, setting forth that the mails, particularly West, were burdened with this class of matter. He raises the point that inasmuch as the newspapers have been freely circulated through the mails containing the most objectionable of language, whether it would not now be overstraining the intent of the law, after the uninterrupted privilege ... ed to the public journals, which, in his opinion, came within the meaning of the law, to discriminate against the postal cards by refusing them in the mails as obscene literature."

We think the laws of the United States might well be strained a little in order to protect the character of such a revered and prominent citizen as Henry Ward Beecher. The Constitution of the United States might be slightly altered in order to meet this extraordinary case. We shan't have another Beecher in a hundred years. In fact it is doubtful if we shall ever have an H. W. Beecher again. The world moves.

Her Pretty Foot.

Selling berries by the foot is a new idea, the offspring of a Milwaukee girl's brain. The young lady who was on a marketing expedition, desired to purchase some berries wherewith to add zest to her evening repast, but she wouldn't trust the fraudful little boxes which the grocers with pleasing fiction call "quarts." She wanted full Scriptural measure, and proposed to the dealer to adopt her shoe as the standard of quantity. Visions of Cinderella floated through the huckster's brain, and in a moment of forgetfulness the deluded man accepted the proposition. Off came the shoe, and in went the berries. Box followed box, until the dealer, with sadness in his eyes and half his stock in the girl's shoe, gently waived his purchaser away, and closed up his shop.

One Hundred Thousand Deaths from Starvation.

Only a short paragraph in the daily papers records the fact that in the brief space three weeks one hundred thousand died from starvation. Columns are devoted to a little second class famine in Palestine but this is all that is said about the death of one hundred thousand young emigrants to Europe: "The Fish Commissioner who sailed from this country a short time ago, having in charge one hundred thousand young shad, intended for the streams of Germany, writes from on board the steamer that all the fish died of starvation. Another attempt will be made to stock German waters."

A Lesson in Natural History.

A lecturer on natural history was called upon the other day to pay for a live rabbit he had in a basket in a railway carriage, and which the ticket collector said would be charged the same as a dog. The lecturer vainly explained that he was going to use the rabbit in illustration of a lecture he was about to give in a provincial town; and indignantly taking a small live tortoise from his pocket, said: "You'll be telling me next that this is a dog, and that I must pay for it also." The ticket taker went for superior orders, and on his return delivered this lecture in natural history; "Cats is dogs, and rabbits is dogs; but a tortoise is a hinsect."

Take Warning.

Spooney young gentlemen are advised never to write gushing effusions in praise of their sweetheart's hair. They may safely operate on her nose or eyes, but the color of her hair is apt to change with the fashion. It would be very awkward to send her a poem telling her that her hair is like golden threads spun from a sunbeam, and to meet her next day wearing a deep chestnut colored chignon.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Maguire's New Theatre.

Mlle. Marie Zoe has created a decided sensation by her acting and dancing in "The Wizard Skiff," and is equally successful in the drama entitled "The Broken Sword."

Opera House.

Billy Emerson, Ben Cotton, Billy Arlington J. R. Kemble and the other black diamonds, appear nightly at this house together with the unparalelled gymnasts Lottie, Frank and Katie. The house is crowded nightly.

California Theatre.

Mrs. Henrietta Chanfrau will appear this evening in the character of Lady Clara Northrup, in "Jealousy." It is a part that suits her well and she is ably supported by the stock company.

Bella Union Theatre.

Miss Lizzie Watson in her popular ballads, Harry Braham in comic songs, Cook and Hart in song and dance, Miss Kate Raymond and C. E. Colling in the sensation drama of "The Mysteries and Miseries of New York," and a great number of other attractions are presented at this house.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Johnny Tuers appears nightly at this house in his "Quintessence" and receives much applause. Hughey Robinson, Harry Devoy, and Frank Mortimore appear in acts, and a great olio of songs and dances is given.

Fine Art Sale

Fine Art Sale.—Messrs. H. M. Newhall & Co., have now on view a splendid collection of pictures, well adapted for private houses, hotels and saloons. They include European and Eastern and local works, and are richly painted. They will be sold without reserve on Friday at 12 M. with a fine series of foreign chromos.

Woodward's Gardens.

More novelties are being constantly added to the numerous attractions on exhibition at these Gardens. On Saturday and Sunday next Orambo, the three-legged clown, the great comique and grotesque, will appear; the thrilling antipodean feat, or walking on the ceiling, zampillarostation, pantomime and concert. Now on exhibition, a living Brazilian Toucan, a bird of wonder, very rare and seldom seen alive.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view to gentlemen only at the Museum on Montgomery street. An [illegible] can be profitably employed here.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Gerrille keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc, printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. D. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-r

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 209 Sutter street near Kearny. 8-bg

BALLAD.

BY F. T. PALGRAVE.

Why is it so with me, false Love,
Why is it so with me?
Mine enemies might thus have dealt;
I fear'd it not of thee.

Thou wast the thought of all my thoughts,
Nor other hope had I;
My life was laid upon thy love;
Then how couldst let me die?

The flower is loyal to the bud,
The greenwood to the Spring,
The soldier to his banner bright,
The noble to his king.

The bee is constant to the hive,
The ringdove to the tree,
The martin to the cottage eaves;
Thou only not to me.

Yet if again, false Love, thy feet
To tread the pathway burn
That once they trod so well and oft,
Return, false Love, return;

And stand beside thy maiden's bier,
And thou wilt surely see,
That I have been as true to love
As thou wert false to me. —Cornhill.

Varieties of the Waltz:

A Put-in-Bay correspondent of the Cincinnati Times furnishes the following lively description of the style in which the girls from different States and localities waltz, as shown by the "hops" at that pleasant resort: "People may say that a waltz is a waltz, but it is a mistake; as much as to say that a dog is a dog—for there are dogs and dogs, and there are waltzes and waltzes. With one person it is the poetry of motion; with another it is about as awkward a performance as putting yourself upon a level and going through the motion of running upstairs would be. A Kentucky girl is a natural waltzer, and she does it with a charming chic and abandon. An Ohio girl's waltzing is easy, graceful and 'melodious.' If she happens to come from Cincinnati, and across the Rhine, she swings dreamily round and round in the endless 'Dutch waltz.' If she comes from Chicago, she throws her hair back, jumps up and cracks her heels together, and carries off her astonished partner as though a simoon had struck him, and knocks over all intervening obstacles in her mad career around the room. If she is from Indiana, she creeps closely and timidly up to her partner, as though she would like to get into his vest pocket, and melts with ecstasy as the witching strains of the Blue Danube sweep through the hall. If she is from Missouri, she crooks her body in the middle like a door hinge, takes her partner by the shoulders, and makes him miserable in trying to hop around her without treading on her number 9 shoes. If she comes from Michigan she astonishes her partner by now and then working in a touch of the double shuffle, or a bit of pigeon wing, with the waltz step; and if she comes from Arkansas, she throws both arms around his neck, rolls up her eyes as she floats away, and is heard to murmur, 'Oh, hug me John!'"

Feminine Vagaries.

If to her share some female errors fall,
Look on her face, and you'll forget them all

Brigham Young's ex-wife, Ann Eliza, recently joined the Methodist Church at Salt Lake City.

When a man dies and leaves a nice young widow with plenty of money, and you see her walking out with the executor on Sunday afternoon, change is imminent.

John Paul, in describing a Saratoga ball, says: "A lady excited considerable attention by having her dress cut down in the back, with a liberality which astonished me, and delighted the back biters on the back piazza. 'Twas not the Pompadour style exactly, rather more, on the barndour order of architecture, I should say; and nothing could be in better taste if a lady's back were a boulevard—but if not, not."

Some of the exceptional forms observed in leg-horn hats during the summer are to be repeated in black velvet later in the season. Fancifully rolled brims, exceedingly picturesque, becoming to but a few, and limited to the field of full-dress for visiting, and so forth, will be among the handsome styles; and a shape, copied from the flat, wired brims once worn by gentlemen, will show a full puffed crowns of satin, the straight narrow brim being of velvet.

Some curiosity was caused on the Parisian Boulevards recently by the appearance of three women attired in a singular costume, viz.—large Zouave trousers, closed by gaiters, small gray paletots trimmed with black, and tall felt hats, who were stopping at the Grand Hotel. On inquiry they were found to be an American practitioner, and two of her pupils. They were on their way to Turkey, where the M. D. has just accepted the post of private physician of the Sultan's seraglio.

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies, The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapmen & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush, There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-r

New Wine and oyster House.

Mr. A. Freeman, formerly under the California Theatre, has opened his new Wine and Oyster House, at 238 Sutter street opposite the Centre Market. Oysters fresh from the beds, and Wines of the finest brands. 8-

BOSTON OYSTER HOUSE.—L. O. Pratt has opened stalls 89 and 90 in Centre Market. Oysters in every style. Chops and Steaks of the choicest. Ladies' private rooms up stairs, 7-z

Stalls 91, 92 and 93, have been opened by Anderson & Marshall as the Long Branch oyster house. They are among the oldest oyster men in the city.

Swain's original bakery has opened a magnicent place at 218 Sutter street, near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Mr. Meyer, in his new and elegant premises, will be able to better accommodate his numerous patrons. 7-bg

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsible house. 7-bg

Converting the Chinese.

The Methodists of this city have charge of "converting" the Chinese to Methodism. As a rule their efforts are not successful. John doesn't like the Methodist devil, or the Methodist hell, and considers the Methodist god a rather unreasonable and vacillating sort of personage. The reason John occasionally goes to the Methodist Sunday school is, that he can there acquire a knowledge of English. The Methodists are holding a conference in this city. During Tuesday's proceedings, the report of the Committee on Chinese Mission was read. It urged among other things "the starting of a Chinese religious newspaper to counteract the bad influence of the Chinese weekly now published in this city by parties who did not understand the language." This is rather rich, considering the dismal report made by J. A. Hill, editor of the Christian Advocate, published for the delectation of English-speaking Methodists. He stated that "it would require at least five hundred more paying subscribers to keep up a healthy circulation in the journal." The China News is appreciated by the Chinese because it is a newspaper. It gives commercial news, and comments on the current topics of the day. The Methodists could not get more than fifty subscribers for a religious paper published in the Chinese language, while the China News will, before many weeks, have a circulation of at least three thousand. It is a great pity that Gibson & Co. cannot have the monopoly of Chinese souls. It is wicked to publish newspapers for the Chinese. What they need is religion, and the sort of religion they require is Methodism. Every Chinaman converted to Methodism costs the association at least $600, and the prices are kept up pretty stiff. The Chinese Companies are always willing to supply "converts" at stated rates. There is really very little profit to anyone except Mr. Gibson in this Chinese Mission business, and we should not wonder if the Methodists dropped it.

A Repentant Man.

Albert J. Brown, of Mississippi, was Brigadier-General of militia at nineteen, in the Legislature at twenty-eight, Governor at thirty, and was afterwards Senator. He was never defeated when a candidate for office. In a recent letter Mr. Brown says that it would have been better for him if he had followed the occupation of his father, which was that of farming. His greatest regret is that he ever made a political speech or held an office. He adds, "to be a blacksmith, carpenter or an artisan of any sort is no discredit to any man. Better than to be a jack-legged lawyer, a quack doctor, counter hopper, or worse still, a seeker after office."

A Big Trot.

There will be an exciting contest to-morrow at Sacramento, between "Occident," "Sam Purdy" and the Butte county stallion "Blackbird," who won the second heat on Tuesday after an hour's scoring for the start in 2:22, the best stallion record in the State. The races at Sacramento so far have put a total eclipse on those that came off at the new track in this city in the amount of purses hung up and in the time made.

An Insult to San Francisco.

Brigham Young informed an Eastern furniture dealer, who called upon him to get the contract for furnishing the new harem, that he proposed having it perfectly gorgeous. "No house," said he, "in New York or San Francisco shall compare with it. I want the best, regardless of cost."

Now can't one of our San Francisco millionoires (say Michael Reese) get up a harem to beat Brigham Young's? It is only a question of money.

A Good Nomination.

The Republicans of Virginia City, Nevada, have nominated John Piper, manager of Piper's Opera House, for the State Senate. Honest John Piper is well-known and appreciated in his own State and also in California, and would certainly serve the people well.

Green-Room Gossip.

The Washington Critic of the 15th, has the following:

Mrs. John Drew is a strong anti-Baconite.

Miss Emma la Jennesse's stage name is Albani.

Aimee's Opera Bouffe will visit our city Nov. 2d.

Ada Gray is playing "The Adventuress" in Cincinnati.

George Metkiff is leading man at Ben De Bar's, St. Louis.

The Lawrence Barrett combination are in Kansas City to-night.

Janauschek will play from Washington to California this season.

Stuart Robson made his farewell bow to his London admirers, Aug. 20.

The Majilton Family opened at Wood's Museum, Philadelphia, last night.

The Lingard Troupe will bloom in Bloomington, Illinois, the latter part of the month.

Kellogg's English Opera Troupe will begin their season in Chicago, Oct. 5.

Manager Ford has the material to organize the best burlesque troupe in the country.

McDonough's Marionettes are making him plenty of gold dust in the interior of California.

Little Nell's new play, "No Name." She is preparing a six thousand dollar wardrobe for it. Whew!

Miss Eliza Weathersby is considered by many far superior to the fair and gushing Lydia, as an actress.

Oliver Doud Byron has bought a handsome villa at Long Branch. She how talent(?) is appreciated.

Charles Stanley, the merry son of Momus, was in his happiest mood last night at Ford's Opera House.

Miss Carlotta LeClercq has purchased from Miss Kate Bateman the sole right to play "Mary Warner."

Lotta commenced an engagement at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, last night in "Zip; or, Port Lynde Light."

The Florences have just concluded a most brilliant engagement in Pittsburgh. Next week they will entertain the Forest City folks.

"The Deluge; or, Paradise Lost," at Niblo's, is said to exceed the "Black Crook" in its palmiest days. The mechanical and scenic effects are wonderful.

Maggie Mitchell, supported by Mr. William H. Harris, (who so ably filled the position of leading man at the Opera House last season), will open the traveling season at New Haven, Sept. 21st.

Harry Warren, of Ford's Opera House, is a brother-in-law of Joe Jefferson's and nephew of William Warren. He comes of a good stock and ought to make a good actor.

The genial John P. Smith, who managed Artemus Ward's business affairs on his first lecturing tour and lately Miss Clara Morris' business manager, has been judiciously selected by Mrs. Conway to occupy the same position in her new Brooklyn theatre.

"Hand and Glove," the latest London sensation, purchased by Mr. Ford when in Europe, will shortly be produced at his Opera House in a style worthy of the great piece. A careful selection from his army of artists will be made to make the cast powerful and complete, and nothing in the way of scenery and mechanism will be spared to make it the success of the season.

We had the pleasure of seeing Mrs. Jean Lander and her excellent company in "Antony and Cleopatra," at Mrs. Conway's Brooklyn Theatre during her engagement there this month. The performance was of the most artistic character. She has surrounded herself with a company that can hardly be excelled. Mrs. Lander has lost none of her tragic force, and like old wine improves with age. We hope to see this gifted lady and company soon at our capital.

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

Music Hath Charms.

Why he Couldn't Shut Up.

The Cincinnati Saturday night says: One day last week a band of crusaders stopped in front of a beer saloon in the West End, a man stepped outside of the door with uncovered head, whom the women took at once to be the proprietor. He bowed to the ladies and smiled blandly, which encouraged them to gather around and urge him to discontinue his nefarious traffic. They asked him if he had any objections to their praying in front of the place. He said he hadn't in the least. After a prayer a crusader stated that they would like to sing a hymn. He remarked, "sing away for all I care," and they sang. The man seemed affected. Once or twice he took out his handkerchief and wiped his eyes.

The services over, the ladies feeling that they had indeed touched his heart, renewed their entreaties. They spoke of the evils wrought by saloons, and depicted the sufferings of the drunkard's family. The man listened and bowed his head in apparent contrition. His conscience was evidently at work. There was a struggle going on within his breast between the sordid love of gain and the spirit of goodness, which is said to never wholly forsake a man. At least, so thought the ladies. So they pressed upon him, and renewed their entreaties.

"Won't you," cried one of the most earnest and importunate among the good women, "won't you listen to our appeals and shut up?"

Then the old man raised his head. His voice trembled as he essayed to speak, and there were traces of tears on his cheeks. Said he: "Ladies you have moved me deeply. I know as well as any one the evils of the traffic and most gladly would I shut up the saloon, but——"

"But what cried all the ladies at once.

"I could do it if it were not for one thing."

"What is that?"

"Twin't my saloon."

The ladies moved on without any policemen telling them to go.

Chas. Vivian's Benefit for Mokelumne Hill.

The Grass Valley Union says:

The following letter of acknowledgment has been received at this office from Judge Boucher, announcing his reception of the money realized by Mr. Chas. Vivian's Concert in this place for the benefit of the sufferers by the Mokelumne Hill fire.

MOK. HILL, Sept. 17th, 1874.

Chas. H. Mitchell, Esq., Prop. Grass Valley Daily Union. My Dear Sir:—Yours of the 14th instant containing a check for $102, the amount realized by the concert at your city, for the benefit of the sufferers by the late fire at this village, reached me yesterday.

Through you, I beg leave to return our heartfelt thanks to Mr. Charles Vivian and troupe for their thoughtful generosity toward the distressed of our stricken town.

This act of kindness, so timely done, must ever be most gratefully remembered by its recipients.

Respectfully yours,
W. K. BOUCHER.

The Kansas Way.

After a Kansas man has stolen chickens right along for several years, and been wrestled with to no purpose, a number of sad-eyed men lead him out some night to the timber, and he "never comes back no more."

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
Over which the waters softly fell.
Made that winnow seem'so be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend. "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a "T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that.
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

Billy Emerson has made a great hit in his English swell songs which he sings in burnt cork. Lottie and Frank appear nightly, and altogether a great entertainment is offered.

California Theatre.

To-night "Jealousy" will be played for the last night. To-morrow Mrs. Chanfrau will appear in the character of Aurora Floyd, in the play of that name. Mrs. Chanfrau in this character does some very fine acting and appears to good advantage.

Maguire's New Theatre.

The vivacious Mlle. Marie Zoe, appears nightly nightly at this house as Alexis and Ayota in "The Wizard Chief," and as Myrtillo, a dumb boy, in the play of "The Broken Sword."

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Braham is an established favorite at this house, his comic songs being received with roars of laughter, Cook and Hart have made a hit in their new song and dance "Rebecca Jane," and Miss Lizzie Watson gets much applause for her ballads. The sensation drama of "The Mysteries and Miseries of New York," in which that pleasing actress Miss Kate Raymond, and O. B. Collins, an excellent comedian, as well as a most effective stage manager, appear, is a great feature of the bill.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

An entirely new bill will be presented at this house to-night, when the general favorites Ned Buckley and Miss Ida May, will make their reappearance. Among the acts are "Alike Two Peas," "Hospital Management," and "Deaf as a Post." The performance will terminate with "The Dumb Girl of Genoa," Miss Maggie Brewer playing the title role:

Fine Art Sale

Fine Art Sale.—Messrs. H. M. Newhall & Co., have now on view a splendid collection of pictures, well adapted for private houses, hotels and saloons. They include European and Eastern and local works, and are richly painted. They will be sold without reserve on Friday at 12 M. with a fine series of foreign chromos.

Woodward's Gardens.

More novelties are being constantly added to the numerous attractions on exhibition at these Gardens. On Saturday and Sunday next Orambo, the three-legged clown, the great comique and grotesque, will appear; the thrilling antipodean feat, or walking on the ceiling, zampillmorostation, pantomime and concert. Now on exhibition, a living Brazilian Toucan, a bird of wonder, very rare and seldom seen alive.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Notes.

E. D. Davies, premier ventriloquist, will make his appearance at Maguire's New Theatre on Monday night, and will again introduce his wonderful children, Tom and Joe, to the public of San Francisco.

Manager Maguire, who has been of late suffering from an attack of acute gastritis, which confined him to his bed, is out on the street, looking as if he had a renewed lease of life of twenty years.

The San Francisco Circus played a good season in Victoria, and the local papers are very warm in their praises of Williams, Ducrow and others of the company. Williams is doing the Fred O'Brien business—turning somersaults over ten horses at a time—and making a big sensation. The Circus opened in Portland on the 22d.

J. G. Russell and W. F. Baker, the minstrels, are to have a complimentary benefit at Platt's Hall, on October 31.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

New Wine and Oyster House.

Mr. A. Freeman, formerly under the California Theatre, has opened his new Wine and Oyster House, at 224 Sutter street opposite the Centre Market. Oysters fresh from the beds, and Wines of the finest brands. 8.

GENIUS.

Far out at sea—the sun was high,
While veered the wind and flapped the sail—
We saw a snow-white butterfly
Dancing before the fitful gale
Far out at sea.

The little stranger, who had lost
His way, of danger nothing knew;
Settled awhile upon the mast,
Then flattered o'er the waters blue,
Far out at sea.

Above, there gleamed the boundless sky—
Beneath, the boundless ocean sheen;
Between them danced the butterfly—
The spirit life in this vast scene,
Far out at sea.

Away he sped with shimmering glee—
Dim, indistinct, now seen, now gone;
Night comes with wind and rain—and he
No more will dance before the morn,
Far out at sea.

He dies unlike his mates I ween;
Perhaps not sooner, nor worse crossed;
And he hath felt, and known, and seen
A large life and hope—though lost
Far out at sea.

Self-Possession.

All unnecessary movements are contrary to the rules of grace and good breeding. When not intentionally in motion, your body and limbs should be in perfect rest. Addison says that "the use of dancing lessons is to teach a lady how to sit still gracefully." Your whole deportment should give the idea that your person, your voice, and your mind are entirely under your own control. Self-possession is the first requisite to good manners, and where it is wanting there is generally a reason for it in some wrong feeling or false appreciation of things. Vanity, a love of display, an overweening desire to be admired, are great obstacles to self-possession; whereas, a well-disciplined and well-balanced character will generally lead to composure and self-command. In a very elegant assemblage in a large drawing-room in a southern city, I saw a young lady walk quietly and easily across the apartment to speak to a friend, who said to her, "I wanted very much to get to you, but I had not the courage to cross the room: how could you do it, all alone, too, and with so many persons looking at you?" "I did not think of anybody's looking at me," was the reply; and in that lay the secret of her self-possession. Very modest people believe themselves to be of too little consequence to be observed; but conceited ones think everybody must be looking at them. Inexperienced girls, who are not wanting in modesty, are apt to dread going into a crowded room from an idea that every eye will be turned upon them; but after awhile they find, that nobody cares to look at them; and that the greater the crowd the less they are observed.

Irish Women.

Physically, Irish women (so, at least, says a writer), are probably the finest race in the world—I mean taller, better limbed and cheated, larger eyed, and with more luxuriant hair and freer action than any other nation I have observed. The Phoenician and Spanish blood which has run hundreds of years in their veins still kindles its dark fire in their eyes, and with the vivacity of the northern mind, and the bright color of the northern skin, these southern qualities mingle in most admirable and superb harmony. The idea we form of Grecian and Italian beauty is never realized in Greece and Italy; but we find it in Ireland heightened and exceeded. Cheeks and lips of the delicacy and bright tint of carnation, with snowy teeth and eyebrows of jet, are what we should look for on the palette of Appeles, could we recall the painter and reanimate his far-famed models; and these varied charms, united, fall very commonly to the share of the fair Milesian. Modest to a proverb, the Irish woman is as unsuspecting of an impropriety as if it were an impossible thing, and she is as fearless and joyous as a midshipman, and sometimes as noisy. In a ball-room she looks ill-dressed, not because her dress was ill put on, but because she dances, not glides, sits down without care, pulls her flowers to pieces, and if her head-dress incommodes her she will give it a pull or a push. If she is offended, she will ask for an explanation. If she does not understand you she confesses her ignorance. If she wishes to see you next day, she tells you how and when. She is the child of nature, and children are not at all 'stylish.'

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. D. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-r

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies. The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapmen & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-r

Stalls 91, 92 and 93, have been opened by Anderson & Marshall as the Long Branch oyster house. They are among the oldest oyster men in the city.

Swain's original bakery has opened a magnicent place at 213 Sutter street, near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Mr. Meyer, in his new and elegant premises, will be able to better accommodate his numerous patrons. 7-bg

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsable house. 7-bg

CHARLES READE'S Beautiful Drama (the Exclusive Property of MRS. CHANFRAU), entitled

DORA. DORA. DORA.

From the Author's Original Text, as Performed by Her at the Globe Theatre, Boston, Upward of 200 Nights.

This renowned impersonation is one of the most precious triumphs of the American Stage, and no lover of the beautiful in art can afford to miss its enjoyment. The character was originally performed by Mrs. Chanfrau for over 200 nights in Boston, and the fascinating charm and the simple grace of the effort were again and again acknowledged by audiences including Longfellow, the poet; Whipple, the essayist; Weiss, the philosopher, and others equally as eminent in the walks of literature and art, together with hundreds of students of Harvard.

Congress has extended the time for filing claims for additional Bounty under Act of July 28, 1866, to January 1875, so all such claims must be made before that time. Original Bounty of $100 has been allowed all volunteers who enlisted before July 2d, 1861, for three years, if not paid the same when discharged. Land Warrants can be obtained for services rendered before 1855, but not for services in the late war. Pensions for late war and war of 1812 obtained and increased when allowed for less than disability warrants, but no pensions are allowed to Mexican and Indian war soldiers. State of Texas has granted Pensions to surviving veterans of Texas Revolution. New Orleans and Mobile Prize Money is now due and being paid. W. H. Celia Logan's Play.

Max Adeler in the Philadelphia Bulletin, thus criticises the bad play of "Rose" which Miss Celia Logan wrote for Lewis Morrison, and which he produced on the occasion of his farewell benefit at the California Theatre: "We shall not attempt a description of this particular play, or an analysis of it. That would involve an unnecessary waste of time and labor, and would require the use of stronger language than we like to use excepting when under the influence of excitement. And this drama does not excite. It merely fills the mind of the spectator with a feeling of blank dismay. It is a perfectly successful combination of dreariness and dullness and ineffable bosh. What opportunity was permitted to Miss Wood and Mr. Morrison was improved by them in a manner which enabled them to show that they possess genuine histrionic power and artistic taste; and their performances were especially commendable because they involved a gallant struggle with difficulties which by almost any other persons would have been regarded as insurmountable. The other parts were given with various degrees of success; but only one of the subordinate personations deserve special mention. Mr. E. A. Locke, who appeared as the low comedian, seemed to labor under the impression that his performance was funny, whereas it was not any more amusing than the part played by a pall-bearer at a well-conducted funeral."

A Monopolist.

The Rev. O. Gibson is trying to get up a ring in Chinese souls. He thinks that all knowledge should come to them through the Methodist Church. In order to accomplish this he does not scruple to bear false witness against the China News, a regular paper, issued by independent publishers, for the purpose of giving the Chinese such information as may be useful to them. Mr. Gibson is of opinion that the China News, not being a "religious" paper, is necessarily irreligious, and threatens to start an opposition. Mr. Gibson does not seem to have met with much success in his effort to secure for the Methodist Church a monopoly of Chinese souls. Ten pupils for the Mission School, out of a population of thirty thousand, is not very encouraging. The Chinese do not appreciate the efforts of the benevolent Mr. Gibson. We have no objection to his Methodizing the Chinese, if he can do so; but we do object to his bearing false witness against his neighbor.

Preaching and Practice.

Rev. Charles Spurgeon, a London divine, who, like Henry Ward Beecher, has an unfaltering belief in the necessity of a big salary, thinks that there is not enough of preaching in England. Too many read from books, and do not preach at all, and this he believes is "killing religion" in England. We don't agree with the London oracle on this subject. There are plenty of preachers in England and there is plenty of preaching, too. It is the want of practice, and not the want of preaching, that is killing religion.

Another Fraud Detected.

Thus are our idols falling. Not content with making out Wm. Tell a myth, Putnam's down-stairs ride a feble, and Washington's hatchet story an imposture, some vandal now asserts that Mr. Cody is not the veritable "Buffalo Bill," but that it is that other man. It is well to have the world set right in the matter, but how Mr. Cody—or the other man—can be so cheeky is what no fellow can find out.

Well, Well!

BLOTTING OUT THE RECORD.

This year will be celebrated in the racing annals for the unprecedented time made in the racing and trotting contests almost everywhere in the East. The brilliant results in a half dozen well contested fields have repeatedly blotted out the speed records of previous years with the exception of the "Maid's," and prove that the new field of young horses has been greatly improved, both in speed and stamina, by systematic breeding and training. That phenomonal horse "Goldsmith Maid" has repeatedly beaten her former record, and now stands at the head of all trotters in 2:14 time. "Lula," (formerly known as "Jenny Perry") and our "Occident," both share the honors of her former time, and nearest approach her on the time table. For convenience sake and for reference we give the following records of some of this year's meetings.

"Fleety Golddust" took the 2:30 race at Cleveland in 2:23 1-2, 2:21 1-2, 2:22 1-4.

"Lucille" took first, third and fourth heats in the 2:26 race at the same place in 2:25, 2:22 1-2, 2:22 1-2.

"Smuggler," in his first race at Buffalo, made his mile in 2:21 1-2, beating the stallion record, which he again beat at Mystic Park, Boston, by making it in 2:20.

"Gloster" won the 2:20 race at Rochester, Aug. 14th in 2:18 (dead heat with "Red Cloud,") and the second, third and fourth heats in 2:17 3-4, 2:17, 2:19. He also won the Fleetwood Park $10,000 purse Sept 21st first, third and fourth heats in 2:20 1-2, 2:21, 2:21.

"Red Cloud" won the third, fourth and fifth heats at Buffalo, in 2:18, 2-18 1-2, 2:21.

"Goldsmith Maid" won three straight heats at Springfield in 2:19, 2:16, and 2:18.

"Grey Planet" beat the best mile on record in his race against time at Saratoga, August 14th, in 1:42 1-2.

"Fellowcraft" won the four mile heat over the course August 19th, in 7:19 1-2, beating "Lexington's" famous time, which has stood at head of record for so many years by a one-fourth of a second.

Now comes our Pacific Coast record. The Oregon papers report a match race at Union, Oregon, on Sept. 1st, mile heats 3 in 5 for $2,000 between Ross' mare "Trifle," and La-Buff's horse "Buckskin," which "Trifle" won in three straight heats, in 1:42 1-2, 1:43 1-2, 1:44 1-2. This record is so remarkable that we are inclined to doubt its authenticity. If it should prove true we have another phenomenal horse in "Trifle."

"Blackbird" took the 2:27 purse at Sacramento on Tuesday last, and won the second heat in 2:22, making the best stallion record on this coast, and coming within two seconds of "Smuggler's" best time.

A Plain Statement.

The School For Scandal.

The New York World of the 16th, refers to the revival, by Augustin Daly, of "The School for Scandal." It says:

Sheridan's "School for Scandal," is one of the few comedies whose wit and vivacity have not been tarnished by time. Nearly a hundred years old, it is to-day the brightest and cleverest play of its class in the theatrical repertoire, and, what is of no less importance, retains its popular favor. The revival of it at the Fifth Avenue Theatre on Saturday night in a revised shape brought all its literary excellences into strong contrast with the current tawdriness and pasty glitter of the so-called society comedies of our times, for which that house is somewhat notorious.

It will be seen by the following distribution that Mr. Daly used his material to the best possible advantage:

Charles Fisher	Sir Peter Teazle
George Clarke	Charles Surface
Wm. Davidge	Sir Oliver Surface
Louis James	Joseph Surface
James Lewis	Moses
Frank Hardenburg	Crabtree
Sol Russell	Trip
B. T. Ringgold	Sir Benjamin Backbite
Hart Conway	Careless
David Whiting	Rowley
George Devere	Snake
Miss Fanny Davenport	Lady Teazle
Miss Sara Jewett	Maria
Mrs. G. H. Gilbert	Mrs. Candour
Miss Alice Grey	Lady Sneerwell

Almost any display that he makes of his people is one every way complimentary to his managerial liberality and ambition, for a larger and stronger assemblage of players it would be hard to find upon any stage in the country. But that the company appears to the best advantage in old comedies will not, we think, be conceded by any of the intelligent habitues of the house who have been accustomed to see them in new. With the exception of Mr. Fisher, Mr. Davidge, and Mr. Gilbert, there is no one in the above list whose talents wear the old-time garb of English comedy with ease and courtly grace. Miss Davenport's Lady Teazle lacks in our opinion, the integrity that alone can make it an acceptable performance. Lady Teazle, as we have grown to regard her, as much by the tradition of the boards as by the facts of the text, is too naturally graceful and quick-witted to betray her country breeding in awkwardness or volubility. Miss Henriques, who was the last actress to bring any fresh intelligence to the role, managed with exquisite art to make the natural gaiety and innocence growing out of the old way of life, the distinctive charm of the wife throughout all the unnatural scenes in which she was placed. Mr. Daly's players are most of them heroic comedians. They are naturally all strong character actors, and in a comedy of society, where the wit and the elegance combined take the place of individuality they give us forceful reproductions, but they fail to preserve the naivity and spontaneity of a form of life peculiar to old comedy. Exception may be made to Mr. Fisher's Sir Peter; but even this lacked that ripe and easy sincerity which we like.

Of the other players it is hardly necessary to speak in detail. Mr. George's Charles Surface was noticeable for its mechanical precision. It belonged anywhere, and might have been set in Hugo's or Dumas' colors as well as in Sheridan's. The chief beauty of the performance lay in the elegance of its its equipment, the showy truthfulness of its costumes, and the purely theatrical completeness with which the stage traditions were revived and preserved.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
So sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

To-night Mrs. Henrietta Chanfrau will appear in the thrilling play of "Aurora Floyd." She will be supported by Henry Edwards, Miss Belle Chapman and others, whose names appear on our first page. At the matinee to-morrow "Jealousy" will be performed for the last time.

Maguire's New Theatre.

Mlle. Zoe will appear this evening and also at the matinee to-morrow in "The Wizard Skiff," and also in the beautiful drama of "The Broken Sword." Mlle. Zoe has made quite a hit as a pantomimist, danseuse and broadsword artiste.

Opera House.

To-night and at the matinee to-morrow the great bill which has drawn such crowds during the week will be presented. Billy Emerson will appear in some of his best specialties, Ben Cotton, Billy Arlington and others in acts, and the daring Lottie and fearless Frank in their wonderful feat of "Transvolation."

Bella Union Theatre.

"The Mysteries and Miseries of New York" in which Miss Kate Raymond and O. B. Collins appear, Miss Lizzie Watson in her popular ballads, Harry Braham in comic songs, and others in various specialties, give a good entertainment at this house.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Johnny Thorn appears nightly at this house, and those old favorites, Ned Buckley and Miss Ida May have made their reappearance. A capital bill will be presented this evening.

Fine Art Sale

Fine Art Sale.—Messrs. H. M. Newhall & Co., have now on view a splendid collection of pictures, well adapted for private houses, hotels and saloons. They include European and Eastern and local works, and are richly painted. They will be sold without reserve on Friday at 12 M. with a fine series of foreign chromos.

Woodward's Gardens.

More novelties are being constantly added to the numerous attractions on exhibition at these Gardens. On Saturday and Sunday next Orambo, the three-legged clown, the great comique and grotesque, will appear; the thrilling antipodean feat, or walking on the ceiling, zampillerostation, pantomime and concert. Now on exhibition, a living Brazilian Toucan, a bird of wonder, very rare and seldom seen alive.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of casts and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer, at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-r

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. D. G. M. Hepburn, new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-r

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies. The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapmen & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-r

SONG OF A DEPARTING SPIRIT.

Let me go—let me go—for the day is breaking,
The skies have a streak of orient light;
The shadow of Darkness the earth is forsaking,
And the moonbeams are chasing the mists of the night.

Let me go—let me go—for I may not tarry;
Hinder me not, for my home is not there—
Where angels are waiting my spirit to carry,
And the pure white raiment is ready to wear.

Let me go—let me go—for the purple dawning
Is mantling the dark dull tomb of time,
And there steaketh the rays of a blissful morning,
That blushes and burns in a deathless clime.

I have done with sin—I have done with sorrow—
I soar to the spotless realms of light,
Where the day that is breaking shall have no morrow,
And the sun that is rising shall have no night.

How Beecher Would Like to Die.

Beecher in the Lecture-room Talk, of March 6, 1874, says:

For my own part, I desire to die suddenly. I would like to work right straight up to the point where I heard the bugle blow from heaven, and then go forth with my harness on. But there are many people who are shocked at this. There is in the prayer-book a petition for deliverance from sudden death. It is not suddenness of death, but unpreparedness for death, that is to be guarded against. I wish to live so that I shall be ready at all times to die, and being ready, my prayer to God is, Let me go to heaven in full strength and vigor. I do not like the idea of wasting, wasting, wasting away. I do not like the idea of oozing out drop by drop, and becoming useless and worthless. Paul said that he was in a straight betwixt two; he did not know whether to remain or depart; he stood hesitatingly; but his preference was one way, he felt that to die and be with Christ was better than life. And so I, standing between two ways of going out of life—one slow and lingering, and the other sudden—pray suddenness of death; but I shall die as God pleases."

The insurance companies of New York don't approve of this and think H. W. B wants to get ahead of them.

A Rural Editor.

The Truckee Republican of Saturday tells about him in this wise:

Mr. Downer, of the Downieville Messenger, arrived here last night, on his way to Virginia City. Mr. D. paid his respects to the Republican office, and informed us that this was his first sight of a locomotive and a railroad. Of course the young man was considerably astonished, and had about all he could do to keep from being run over by the passing trains. The spacious public buildings, the broad avenues, the throngs of people, the activity of the faro banks, the gorgeous appearance of the saloons, and the magnitude of the Republican Office, were imposing sights which the Downieville youth had never feasted his wonder-full eyes on before. He was considerably bewildered, as might be supposed, and was kindly cared for by us and placed on board the evening train for Virginia City.

Without an Enemy.

Heaven help the man who imagines he can dodge enemies by trying to please everybody! If such an individual ever succeeded, we should be glad of it; not that one should be going through the world trying to find the beams to knock and thump against, disputing every man's opinion, fighting and elbowing and crowding all who differ from him. That, again, is another extreme. Other people have their opinion, so have you; don't fall into the error of supposing they will respect you more for turning your coat every day to match theirs. Wear your own colors in spite of wind and weather, storm and sunshine. It costs the irresolute and vascillating ten times more trouble to wind and twist and shuffle than honest, manly independence to stand its own ground firmly.

A Father's Advice.

"Never bet on a horse race, my son. It is wrong to bet, and, besides, the horse that ought to win is likely, in nine out of ten cases, to be jockeyed to the rear. Do not bet at all, my son; but, if you bet on horses, get acquainted with the riders in advance of the contest, and see how the thing is coming out."

Rival Bars.

A non-musical genius was lately bursting his wife for spending so much time over her music, but she quietly demolished him by suggesting that if he would spend more time over bars of music, and less over those other bars, it would be much more for the harmony of all concerned.

New Wine and Oyster House.

Mr. A. Freeman, formerly under the California Theatre, has opened his new Wine and Oyster House, at 222 Sutter street opposite the Centre Market. Oysters fresh from the beds, and Wines of the finest brands. 8.

Clara Antonia, M. D., de Paris, Business and Medical Clairvoyant and Independent Trance Medium, 134½ Post street, near Dupont. Correct diagnosis and special attention to the treatment of diseases. Consultations in French, German and English. 6-o

Swain's original bakery has opened a magnicent place at 213 Sutter street, near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Mr. Meyer, in his new and elegant premises, will be able to better accommodate his numerous patrons. 7-bg

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsible house. 7-bg

DORA. DORA. DORA.

From the Author's Original Text, as Performed by Her at the Globe Theatre, Boston, Upward of 200 Nights.

This renowned impersonation is one of the most precious triumphs of the American Stage, and no lover of the beautiful in art can afford to miss its enjoyment. The character was originally performed by Mrs. Chanfrau for over 200 nights in Boston, and the fascinating charm and the simple grace of the effort were again and again acknowledged by audiences including Longfellow, the poet; Whipple, the essayist; Weiss, the philosopher, and others equally as eminent in the walks of literature and art, together with hundreds of students of Harvard.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—During the present week Piper's Grand Star Dramatic Alliance have appeared at Metropolitan Theatre in a good selection of dramas and farces. Miss Annette Ince, Miss Coggswell, and Messrs. Billings, Sawtelle, Edmunds and Orotbis make up a good company Montgomery Queen's Circus has done a splendid business and the Hibernica has been showing to good houses at Turner Hall. On Sunday, Langrishe & Glenn's Black Crook Company will commence a season of three nights at the Metropolitan Theatre.

SAN JOSE.—Last night Langrishe & Glenn's Black Crook Company gave a performance here. They will show again this afternoon and evening. A new transformation scene, which surpassed anything ever before exhibited in San Jose, was a great feature of the entertainment.

STOCKTON.—Charles Vivian has rented Mozart Hall for next week—Fair week—and will give his entertainment there.

HOLLISTER.—To-night a dramatic and musical entertainment will be given at Beatty's Hall for the benefit of the Hollister Brass Band. The drama of "Time Tries All" will be performed by A. L. Smith, J. Clark, E. Aguirre, O. Smith, J. Cochran, Miss Bertie Harris and Miss Dollie Neville. There will be an olio of vocal and instrumental music by Miss Holloway, Mrs. R. M. Shackleford, M. S. Walsh, J. B. Small, and the Hollister Brass Band, and the performance will terminate with the comedietta of "The Boston Dip," in which A. T. Smith, J. Kerns, Mrs. N. C. Briggs, Miss Alice Marklee, Mrs. T. Yost and others will take part.

NORTH SAN JUAN.—Montgomery Queen's Great Show with Miss Mollie Brown, Leopold and Gerald de Lee and all the stars, will exhibit here on Sunday, the 27th.

VIRGINIA CITY.—The Royal Marionettes commenced an engagement of one week at Piper's Opera House on Monday. They will close tonight.

PORTLAND.—The San Francisco Circus and Palace Amphitheatre Company, under the management of Katie Holloway & Co., opened here on Tuesday, Sept. 22d. The troupe comprises Miss Katie Holloway, George Holland, William Warner, Samwells, Williams and Ducrow, and many other clever performers. Wilder is exhibiting the baby elephant, Princess Mollie, a trained goat, talking figures and a collection of monkeys.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen!
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true.
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
Most cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name.
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Great Bargains in Clothing.

FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

The London correspondent of the New York Mercury under date of the 29th ult. says:

Half of our London theatres have got the "shutters up," and those that are open are not making extravagant fortunes.

The Gaiety withdraws "Led Astray" after tonight's performance. If this piece had been brought out at the Olympic or the Lyceum, and at a time when all London was not running away to the seaside, it would have been a success; but the Gaiety was the wrong house for it, and July was not the month. I hear that Miss Helen Barry, the first lady in the piece, does not get on very well with Mr. Charles Thorne, and that there have been such high words on the stage as to call for the interference of the stage manager. I believe Mr. Thorne told the lady that she was an incompetent actress, and the latter regretted that Mr. Boucicault had not brought to England a gentleman to play the part entrusted to Mr. Thorne. Recriminations like these have gone on from night to night, and now I hear that Miss Barry threatens to "cowhide" Thorne after the final performance to-night. This will be somewhat interesting if it should come off; but I don't expect it. The regular Gaiety company will return from the provinces tomorrow and appear in "The Princess of Trebizonde." J. G. Taylor will take Toole's place in this. Arthur Cecil joins this troupe. He is a clever young actor, and seems the man above all others most likely to be successor to Chas. Matthews. Lecocq is writing a new opera-bouffe for the Gaiety. Mr. Hollingshead is sadly in want of a novelty.

Mr. F. B. Chatterton has three theatres, viz.: Drury Lane, Princess' and Adelphi on his hands, and a very great consequent responsibility. The first-named house is to be reopened to-night with an old bill, made up of "Amy Robsart" and the opening of last year's pantomime, which was universally adjudged a bad one. Such a programme as this cannot possibly make money. Some time next month a version of Scott's "Talisman" is to be produced here with a strong cast. The pantomime to be ushered forth at Christmas will have the assistance of the Vokes Family. Mr. Chatterton, at the present time must be burdened with awfully heavy expenses, and he will have to make very big returns before he will be able to see a margin on the right side.

The Adelphi is continuing with "The Prayer in the Storm," which is one of the worst pieces that ever made a shadow of a success; and at the Princess' "Janet Pride" is being played to not very good business. Mr. Ben Webster is playing in this.

The Strand Theatre is doing better than any house now open. Mrs. Swanborough, the lessee, threatened to litigate with Lydia Thompson if she played at any theatre than the Strand; but the fair Lydia opens at the Charing Cross almost immediately. The Charing Cross Theatre is held by J. S. Clarke.

Campbell Clarke's version of "The Sphinx" is now being played at the Haymarket by Mlle. Bestrice and her troupe. This is a piece calculated to please cravers after the morbid. I should be inclined to say that the takings of the Haymarket just now were not certainly in excess of expenditures.

A telegram from London, of Sept. 7th, says "Mario, the famous tenor, has been arrested at Venice for violation of the press law. His residence has been searched, and he has been taken to Turin for examination."

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rheinish hock."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

MAGUIRE'S NEW THEATRE.—At the matinee to-day, this evening and to-morrow evening, Mlle. Marie Zoe will appear as Alexis and Ayota in the drama entitled "The Wizard Skiff," during which she dances a Greek Hornpipe and also in the three-act play of "The Broken Sword" in which she is ably supported by James A. Herne, E. J. Buckley, Frank Rea, R. G Marsh, George Giddens, Miss Sydney Cowell, Miss Mollie Rayner and Miss Ada Deaver.

OPERA HOUSE.—An immense entertainment is given at this house by Billy Emerson and his great band of minstrels comprising Ben Cotton, Billy Arlington, Billy Rice, J. R. Kemble, J. F. Oberist, Ernest Linden and others, and Lottie and Frank have created the most extraordinary sensation by their daring and graceful act on the trapeze. The full bill will be played at the matinee to-day.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—C. W. Taylenre's play of "Aurora Floyd" founded on Miss Braddon's novel of that name, was produced last night with Mrs. Henrietta Chanfrau in the title role. Mrs. Chanfrau was ably supported by Henry Edwards, who presented a fine manly impersonation of honest John Mellish, Mr Pateman who made a decided sensation in the character of the Softy, and T. W. Keene, Miss Belle Chapman, Mrs. Sophie Edwin and others, all of whom acquitted themselves well. At the matinee to-day "Jealousy" will be played for the last time. This evening "Aurora Floyd" will constitute the bill.

NEW BELLA UNION THEATRE.—The bill which has drawn crowded houses during the week will be repeated to-night and to-morrow night. It comprises O. B. Collins and Miss Kate Raymond in "The Mysteries and Miseries of New York," Lizzie Watson in popular ballads, Harry Braham in comic songs, Cook and Hart in song and dance, and a great variety of other performances. Under the able stage management of O. B. Collins, the entertainment given at this house can be rivalled by those at few variety theatres in the country.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE.—Ned Buckley and Harry Devoy appear at this house in "Deaf as a Post." Johnny Miers presents his "Quintessence," Miss Ida May comic songs, and Miss Maggie Brewer appears in the play of "The Dumb Girl of Genoa."

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—More novelties are being constantly added to the numerous attractions on exhibition at these Gardens. To day and to-morrow Crambo, the three-legged clown, the great comique and grotesque, will appear; the thrilling antipodean feat, or walking on the ceiling, zampillarostation, pantomime and concert. Now on exhibition, a Brasilian Toucan, a bird of wonder, very rare and seldom seen alive.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms. Guido Mangenberg, the proprietor, gets up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

GRAND SUNDAY EXCURSION.—The steamer Antelope leaves San Francisco every Saturday at 2:30. P M. and on Sunday at 8 A. M. from Front Street Wharf, connecting with the cars of the S. F. & N. P. Railroad at Donahue for Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Healdsburg and Cloverdale. Excursion tickets are issued at reduced rates, and are good from Saturday to Monday. Those who wish to enjoy a little country air at the end of the week could not choose a finer trip than this excursion offers. Last excursion trip of the season Sunday October 4th.

EXCURSION TO GREEN POINT, ALVISO, SAN JOSE AND SANTA CLARA.—To accommodate excursionists, the swift and legant steamer Pilot will leave Front-street Wharf on Sunday, Sept. 13th, at 10 o'clock A M., affording the cheapest and most pleasant excursion on the Bay. Excursion tickets to Green Point and Alviso and return $1; excursion tickets to San Jose and Santa Clara and return, $1 50.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain Railroad.

NOTES.—The next star at the California Theatre will be Frank Mayo, who has been playing a very successful engagement at Booth's Theatre in "Davy Crocket."

On Monday in addition to the fascinating Mlle. Marie Zoe in the plays of "Nita" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin," E. D. Davies who as a ventriloquist stands unrivalled, will make his appearance and introduce his wonderful bore Tom and Joe, whom he makes more funny than a whole troupe of Marionettes. Mr. Davies is the most successful specialty artiste living and will, we doubt not, crowd Maguire's New Thea re to overflowing during his brief engagement.

Otway's tragedy of "Venice Preserved" was acted at Booth's Theatre during the sixth and last week of John McCullough's engagement. Speaking of the performance the Arcadian says: "We cannot but think, had Mr. McCullough, been adequately supported, the piece would have made a very profound impression. Even as it was, he was enabled to give such sound evidence of his capabilities as to bring down the house again and again. In the scene in which Pierre, afront-d by the imputations put by his brother conspirators upon his friend Jaffier, exclaims—

"One such word more, by Heaven! I'll to the Senate And hang ye all, like dogs, in cl sters."

Mr. McCullough fairly took his audience by storm. Unfortunately, the very excellence of his acting brought out into clearer relief the weakness of his companions. Later on in the season, we believe, we are to see Mr. McCullough in a Shakesperian revival, well supported. We cannot compliment him more highly than by saying that we look forward to the time with considerable satisfaction."

At the California Theatre on Monday, Mrs Chanfrau will appear in Ons les Read's dramatization of Tennyson's beautiful pastoral of "Dora." During the week "The Hunchback" will be produced with Barton Hill as Sir Thomas Clifford Henry Edwards as Master Walter, Mrs. Chanfrau as Julia and Miss Pateman as Helen.

First-class minstrel companies in New York are forbidden by the management to mention Henry Ward Beecher or Plymouth Church, as such mention suggests bad thoughts. The immorality of the Pulpit shocks the Stage.

The London Hornet says:

"Mr. Edward Arnott, who made a decided success at the Haymarket, and who went to New York to join Boucicault (only Boucicault did not stay to be joined), has become a great favorite in San Francisco. We can assure our American friends that he deserves all the popularity they can give him. He belongs to the good old school of experienced actors—now, alas! dying out in America and in England."

Mr. Arnott is a good actor, a little bit stagey now and then, but take him altogether, his quiet style was a relief after the tempestuous elocution and very careless attitudinising of the actors of the new school.

John McCullough will not appear in San Francisco until the middle of December, when Miss Charlotte Cushman will commence an engagement in "Henry VIII." The Shakespearian revivals, comprising "Macbeth" and other plays not yet fixed upon, will afford that portion of the public who delight in spectacle a substitute for the usual Christmas extravaganza.

The Virginia City correspondent of the Alta says:

The McDonough Troupe of Royal Marionettes are playing to poor business. The surly manner in which McDonough has treated the newspaper fraternity has not added to his financial success.

McDonough thinks he can run his show without advertising.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, at Niblo's, "The Deluge," is still being played.....At Daly's Fifth Avenue Theatre "The School for Scandal," of which we published an extended notice in yesterday's FIGARO, is running to fair business..... At the Park Theatre, the attraction is John T. Raymond in Mark Twain's dramatization of his novel of "The Gilded Age." Both play and actor have proved very successful.....At the Academy of Music rehearsals by the Strakosch Opera Troupe, are being pushed forward. The opening of the season will occur on the evening of Monday, September 28th, when Mlle. Heilbron will make her American debut in "La Traviata." On the second night of the season, Verdi's "Aida" will be reproduced in all its original splendor, and a cast said to be in some respects superior to that of last season. Later on, "Lohengrin" will be revived, and Verdi's "Messe de Requiem" will be heard for the first time in America. This composition is claimed to be the great composer's masterpiece, and in the musical circles of Paris and Milan has created an unprecedented furore. Its interpretation here will be entrusted to Miles. Potentini and Cary, and Signors Carpi and Fiorini. Marchetti's "Ruy Blas," Wagner's "Il Vascello Fantasma," Gounod's "Romeo e Giulietta," and Meyerbeer's "Etoile du Nord," will follow during the season, and, apart from the novelties, all the best works of the most eminent composers will be presented. All the musical arrangements will, as last season, be under the immediate direction of Signor Emmanuel Muzio. ... At Wallack's Mr. Toole appeared on the 15th in the character of Michael Garner in Byron's comedy of "Dearer Than Life".....At Booth's Theatre, John McCullough took his farewell benefit on the 15th appearing in "Richard III," with George Waldron as Richmond.....The season at Union Square Theatre commenced on the 19th, when "The Sphinx" was presented for the first time in America and Miss Clara Morris, John Parselle, Stuart Robson, and other favorites reappeared. ....Sam Rickey and Master Barney continue the reigning stars at the Olympic Theatre. J. H. O'Neil's Essence of Old Virginia is a feature of the performances.....At the Bowery Mlle. Sanyeah was playing in "Mazeppa"... 'Under the Gaslight" was the attraction at Wood's Museum ....At the Lyceum Theatre, "La Princess de Trebisonde" by the Aimee Troupe, drew good houses.... Tony Pastor's Opera House was doing its usual business with a company comprising: Gus Williams, Sanford and Wilson, Billy Barry, John and Maggie Fielding, the Garnelli Brothers, Walters and Morton, Larry Tooley, Billy Ashcroft, Kitty Brooks, Nellie Germon, Hannah Birch and Tony Pastor himself as a matter of course. Matinees are given on Tuesday and Friday and ladies are admitted free on Friday evenings.....The San Francisco Minstrels have made no change in their bill since our last record.....At the Metropolitan Theatre the Can-Can Troupe having been arrested and acquitted of immorality, the business is big. The New York Dispatch of the 13th says: The most noteworthy appearance at the Theatre Comique on Monday last was that of Miss Emma Day, without exception the best and most accomplished English sonic-comic songstress that has yet been heard in this country. The lady possesses an excellent stage presence, having a very expressive and charming countenance, and she accompanies her singing with an amount of dramatic expression that is now-a-days rarely witnessed on any stage. On the night of our visit she sang three new songs, each of which was enthusiastically and very deservedly redemanded. Miss Day dresses with rare good taste, is refined and pleasing in the extreme, and must rapidly become a great favorite with metropolitan audiences.....At Bryant's, the company mentioned in our summary last week appear.

Mr. Barry Sullivan has, it is reported, been engaged by Messrs. Jarrett & Palmer for a season beginning in August of next year, and extending over 150 nights, at $300 per night, with $150 additional for each matinee at which he appears.

During the eighth season of the symphony concerts at Steinway Hall, New York, Mr. Thomas has decided to give one full public rehearsal two days in advance of each concert. The orchestra will number from seventy to one hundred players, as the different works may require, and the best available solo talent, both vocal and instrumental, will be engaged.

Mark Smith's first appearance in New York was made at the Bowery Theatre, in 1845, at a salary of $4 per week. There was too much ability in the young man, however, for him to retain so humble a position long, and the engagement was a short one.

A new candidate for operatic honors in this country will be Miss Annie Beaumont, from Covent Garden and the Grand English Opera, London. Miss Beaumont has recently arrived to join the Kellogg Grand English Opera Company.

Mrs. D. P. Bowers was at Buffalo, on the 21st.

The New York Dispatch says: The entire staff of the N. Y. Herald is composed of dramatic critics, and they are all equally bad.

Fred McCabe, a distinguished English comedian and mimic, will shortly visit New York.

"Belle Lamar" was produced at the Arch Street Theatre, Philadelphia, on the 21st.

Madame Ruderdorff is to manage an opera company in this country next season.

W. A. Mestayer has been starring at the Buffalo Academy of Music.

At the Howard Atheneum, Boston, the novelty was the reproduction of "Passion's Perils," supposed to have a bearing on the Beecher scandal. the city authorities having become mollified from their recent prejudice and interdiction. The revival was permitted upon the stipulation that one letter plagiarized from the alleged Beecher correspondence, and originally introduced in the text, should be omitted, that the "make up" of two or three characters should be so changed as to avoid inherent suggestiveness of Beecher and Tilton, and that certain objectionable posters containing portraits of Beecher, and Mr. and Mrs. Tilton, should show no more upon the Howard bill boards. No additions to the good olio.

The Hyers Sisters, who are rusticating at Claremont, N. H., are to commence their next season in Boston, Mass., early in October.

The new faces at the Atlantic Garden, Columbus, O., Sept. 7, were Frank Hussy, comedian and character actor; the Rosario Brothers, gymnasts; Miss Blanche Clifton, soubrette; and Miss Marie Roscelle, character vocalist.

At the Summer Theatre Comique, Washington, the announcements for Sept. 14th were Carrie Armstrong, James H. Larkin and Frank Jones.

Johnny, Sallie, and T. J. DeAngelis, were the attractions at the Academy of Music, Grand Rapids, Mich., on the 14th.

C. W. Cogill, of Cogill and Cooper, song and dance men, recently performing at the Barton Opera House, Syracuse, N. Y., was presented by his wife, on Sept. 6, with a baby-girl.

J. Richard Myers, more popularly known as "Ole Bull" Myers, a veteran minstrel violinist, died at Philadelphia, Pa., on Sept. 19, at the age of 43 years, he having been born in Baltimore, Md., in 1899. He had been connected with minstrel companies for a great many years. When Sam Sanford entered the minstrel profession in 1855, Ole Bull Myers played the violin accompaniment to his songs. His strong attachment to his family which is very large, prevented him accepting many engagements. He had many offers to visit England and California, but he invariably declined them, so that he might remain near his home. He was considered one of the best violinists in the profession. He performed for the last time at Cape May Court House, N. J., Aug. 5, and on the morning of the 6th said, speaking to his violin, "I have played you for the last time. You go under my bed when I get home, and lie there." Mr. Sanford endeavored to cheer him up, but his prediction came true. He returned home, and the violin was never played by him again.

Chas. W. Fish, bareback trick rider, now with Renz's Circus in Europe, will return to America in February, in time to travel the coming season of 1875.

The latest New York Clipper received says: John Howson, comedian, has returned from San Francisco, Cal., and will join Mrs Oates' Comic Opera Company for their coming season.

Rose Eytinge (Mrs. George H. Butler) recently presented her husband with a daughter.

Horace Wall, the well-known dramatic agent of this city, Fred Marsden, the noted playwright, and Thomas E. Morris, favorably known as both an actor and business-manager, were boating in two boats, on the 6th, near Pelham Bridge, with Chas. L. Collins, a mutual friend. Mr. Morris left his boat for a short time and took a seat on the railing of the bridge. By some accident he fell into the water, and his head struck against a timber with such force as to make him insensible and incapable of swimming. The others succeeded in rescuing their friend, but not till Mr. Marsden had been pulled into the water in his efforts to lift Mr. Morris, who is a heavy man, into his craft.

It is rumored that Miss Violetta Colville, the coming star of Italian opera, will be under the direction of P. T. Barnum, at whose Bridgeport mansion she was a guest on the 10th.

A Logansport, Ind., paper thus speaks of the May Fisk Troupe, which played there on the 7th: "On Monday evening a party styling themselves the May Fisk Troupe gave a performance. There were only eight people in all, but they were quite sufficient to kill anything they might attempt to place upon the stage. We say kill, for they did literally murder "Dora," and it is hoped that the person who essayed the part will never be resurrected.

Edith Challis sailed for England 5th.

Lotta, Walnut, Philadelphia, 14th, four weeks.

The "Carrolls" have achieved a triumph in Bartley Campbell's new play of the "Orphans." At Baltimore they were recalled after each scene, and at the end of each act, and all the local papers, without exception, are unanimous in their praise.

Judge Freeman, in the Superior Court, granted on the 19th a permanent injunction, at the suit of Augustin Daly, preventing the performance of Miss Fanny Morant at the Union Square Theatre, on the ground that she was engaged at the Fifth Avenue Theatre. A temporary injunction had already been obtained. The permanent injunction directs that the injunction restraining the defendant from acting in any other theatre in this city be continued in force until the termination of the suit, on condition that plaintiff pay to defendant, or her order, every Monday, during such restraint, the fourth of each week's salary as provided for in the contract, and also that plaintiff pay defendant forthwith the sum which has accrued under such stipulation since the granting of the temporary injunction accompanying the order to show cause.

The Clipper says: Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams contemplate a professional trip to the Pacific Slope during the coming Spring.

FOURTH AND LAST WEEK

OF THE BRILLIANT EMOTIONAL ACTRESS,

MRS. HENRIETTA CHANFRAU!

Who will be found to have reserved for the closing week of her present engagement, several of those artistic triumphs with which her name is most delightfully associated.

THIS EVENING.....SEPTEMBER 28

Production of the exquisite dramatic fairy, in three acts, the EXCLUSIVE PROPERTY OF MRS. CHANFRAU, entitled,

DORA! DORA!

BY TENNYSON, THE POET, and CHAS. READE, THE NOVELIST.

DORA.....MRS. HENRIETTA CHANFRAU

WITH TENNYSON'S "SONG OF THE BROOK."

As originally performed by her at the Globe Theatre, Boston, for 200 Nights.

This renowned impersonation is one of the most precious triumphs of the American Stage, and no lover of the beautiful in art can afford to miss its enjoyment. The character was originally performed by Mrs. Chanfrau for over 200 nights in Boston, and the fascinating charm and the simple grace of the effort were again and again acknowledged by audiences including Longfellow, the poet Whipple, the essayist, Wales, the philosopher, and others equally as eminent in the walks of literature and art, together with hundreds of the students of Harvard. The play, which is one of the most beautiful and humanizing in the whole range of the drama, will be given from the original text of the author.

Anecdote of M'Donald Clarke.

Everybopy remembers M'Donald Clarke, who was well known in New York, many years since, as the "Mad Poet." During the last years of his life Clarke was made free of the Astor House table, and oftentimes this errant man of genius could be seen accepting its hospitalities when other doors were closed on his fallen fortunes. Every one knew Clarke by sight, and one day, while quietly taking his dinner, two travellers, seating themselves opposite, commenced a conversation intended for the ears of Clarke. One said:—

"Well, I have now been in New York two months, and have seen all I wish to with one exception."

"Ah!" said the other, "what is that?"

"M'Donald Clarke, the great poet," responded No. 1, with a strong emphasis.

Clarke raised his eyes slowly from his plate, and seeing the attention of the table was on him, stood up, placing his hand over his heart, and, bowing with great gravity to the strangers, said:—

"I am M'Donald Clarke, the great poet."

The traveller started in mock surprise, gazed at him in silence for a few moments, then amidst an audible titter of the company drew from his pocket a quarter dollar, and laying it before Clarke still looked at him without a smile. Clarke raised the quarter in silence and dignity, bestowed it in his pocket, drew thence a shilling, which he deposited before the traveller with these words:—

"Children half price."

The titter changed to a roar, and the travellers were missing instanter.

A Delicate Dish.

A young lawyer in a country town asked some of his friends to a game of cards in his room, to be followed by a little supper. Frogs were a new species of food in that latitude, and a dish of them cooked in the choicest way was the feature of the occasion. Supper-time approached, and during a temporary lull in the conversation the door suddenly opened, and a Milesian waiter, in a loud voice, announced supper thus: "Mr. E., them tuds is biled, and supper is ready!"

A Hard Case.

Mrs. Cole—she had been Mrs. Somebody else before—married Major Irwin out St. Louis way some six weeks since, and now Mrs. Irwin says of dear lord and master, "He has never given me a cent since he married me, and I have pawned my watch, jewelry, and even my false hair to help him get along." Truly a shocking state of affairs.

A Practical Remark.

"Dear George, how sweet and wavy that wheat is!" exclaimed a fair young lady, looking languidly from a car window, "Yes, love, how beautiful!" says dear George more intent on insinuating his arm around a twenty-four bone corset. "How like a—a dream!" "How like oats!" retorted a disgusted Granger, "them's oats, young man."

Something Wrong in the Assessor's Office.

The Committee appointed by the Board of Supervisors for the purpose of investigating the conduct of City officers, early this morning, took possession of the Assessors Office and locked the doors.

Very Probable.

A young lady in Atlanta, Ga., having heard that Olive Logan proposed to lecture on kisses, remarked that she "could get more satisfaction from the lips of a young man on a moonlight night than a woman could impart in a thousand years."

Burkhardt's 540 Washington street.

The Infant Roscius.

The following is from the London Dispatch, of Aug. 30th:

"On the first of December, 1804—just 70 years ago—Covent Garden Theatre was crowded to its utmost by an audience comprising all the most distinguished men and women of the time, everyone of whom was anxious to witness the London debut of a young—very young—actor, who had made so great a reputation in the provinces that he had come to London with engagements at both Covent Garden and Drury Lane, at the enormous salary of fifty guineas a night. At Covent Garden he first appeared as Achmet, in the now forgotten tragedy of 'Barbarossa,' and at Drury Lane, on the 10th of the same month, he appeared as young Norval, in Home's tragedy of 'Douglas.' At both houses his success was so overwhelming that in the following year his terms rose to £100 per night, and he rapidly realized a very considerable fortune. If we add that at the time of his appearance he was just thirteen years old, many of our readers will at once understand that his name was Master William Henry West Betty, better known to fame as the 'Infant Roscius.' So thoroughly did the youthful actor 'take the town,' that on the nights when he did not perform the theatre was empty, in spite of the great names then included in the companies at both houses, and we can well imagine many of them echoing the complaint of the player in 'Hamlet,' that the town was running after children. The young Roscius was more fortunate than most infant prodigies as the money he earned was well taken care of for him, and after a comparatively short career in public he was withdrawn from the stage, and sent to the University of Cambridge, where he graduated in 1813. Once or twice after he had reached man's estate the old passion for the footlights returned, but he was then only a fair—not a great—actor, and he took his final farewell benefit at Southampton exactly fifty years ago this month. It is said that his early passion for the stage was caused by seeing Mrs. Siddons play Elvira, in 'Pizzaro,' at the Belfast Theatre, in which town his father was at the time the acknowledged leading physician. When playing in 1804, he was described as a very handsome boy, about four feet six inches in height, with remarkably luxuriant hair, and eyes of the most expressive brilliancy. For fifty years Mr. Betty lived a life of peaceful retirement, 'the world forgetting by the world forgot,' and on Monday last, having reached the goodly age of 83, he very quietly 'Shuffled off this mortal coil' at his residence, in Ampthill Square. To many readers it will come as a revelation that this celebrity of a time when Byron was yet a schoolboy, when Peel was still at college, when Sheridan was at the height of his fame, when Edmund Kean was yet a name unknown to the playgoer, was still among us only on Monday last. Let us add that till the very end of his long life, Mr. Betty retained a strong and affectionate interest in the affairs of the stage."

A Year of Healthful Discipline.

The New York Evangelist has made the discovery that the present is "a year of healthful discipline." Looking at the course of sprouts Beecher had to go through, at Glendenning's case in Jersey City, and at the various other clerical scapegraces in all parts of the country, the disclosures of ministerial depravity do show a good deal of physical health and discipline in the nature of public exposure. We think our Evangelical brother is right.

Medical Wonder

The Latest big Yarn.

A correspondent of the St. Louis Republican describes the following scene, which he says he "witnessed" on a recent voyage to China:

One day I was putting on a new hook, about the size of a boat hook, when the man at the wheel saw a huge shark under our stern. He had been following us for some time. As soon as he told me about it I got a large piece of fat pork, three or four pounds, for a bait, and dropped it overboard. His sharkship saw it and came slowly toward it. The water was nice and clear. He felt the bait with his nose and turned over on his side, opened his ponderous mouth, and took in hook, bait and all, then started. It fairly made the woodwork smoke as the heavy line played out over it.

We soon stopped him by taking a round turn on a belaying pin, and we brought him up with a sudden jerk that almost straightened out the huge iron hook. It took three men to haul him on deck, and he made things lively for a time sure. He flounced and bounced around the poop deck into the lee-scuppers. The cook went for him with a carving-knife, and the first lick he made at him he missed him. The shark gave a bounce, striking the cook with his tail behind both legs. The deck being slippery, the cook's legs flew from under him, and he dropped on the flat of his back as flat as a flounder. The cook, nothing daunted, went for the shark again, and this time cut him clean open. That didn't take the fight out of him. It took two men, with a board across his tail to hold it down to the deck, while two men held the line with the hook in his mouth.

The shark is the sailor's greatest enemy at sea. Jack hates him worse than poison. They took the insides out of the fellow. His heart beat for two hours and twenty minutes afterwards by the watch. We pitched him overboard, and he kept flopping about as if he wanted something, so we threw him his insides, minus the heart, which he no sooner saw than he gobled them up and started off; but they fell out again through the slit the cook made in him. He kept picking them up and dropping them so often that he must have got tired of that job, for he finally took them in his teeth and make a dive below out of sight.

A Grasshopper Story.

Phillips county, in the State of Kansas, has had a remarkable sensation. A Miss Bummersheim, a native Carolinian, was in the habit of chewing earth, or clay. That whole section of the State having been infested with grasshoppers, the earth was saturated with their eggs, which got into the stomach of poor Miss Bummersheim, where they incubated and brought forth several thousands of hoppers. The young lady began to expand, she jumped and grew flighty, acted in every way like a locust, and finally she bursted and died. A coroner's jury sat on her case, and a doctor made a post-mortem, and found that she was filled with grasshoppers, of which surfeit of animal life she came to her end. The story is a queer one, yet it may be true, or not. Nevertheless, if grasshoppers can live in a human body, perhaps somebody in Plymouth Church, desiring to commit suicide, might adopt this novel method, swallow a bushel of grasshoppers' eggs and burst.

A Pleasant Welcome.

One of the modes of welcome adopted at Munich to honor the fifty-two choral societies at the recent festival was a dissolving view of the Reveil de l'Empereur, Barberousse, which, disappearing, discovered a monstre butt of beer, surrounded by "Blondes Bacchantes," who presented the guests with pale ale in silver cups; this compliment was naturally preparatory to the performance of Handel's Alexander's Feast and the German drinking "Lieder."

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen!
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that.
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They've clams and crabs and terrapins
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name.
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So there they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Opera House.

In the first part performance to-night, Billy Emerson, Ben Cotton, J. T. Oberist, G. W. Harley, J. N. Davis and others will appear, and in the finale J. B. Kemble, Billy Rice and Billy Arlington will appear in surprising feats. After this Lottie and Frank will appear in their thrilling performance entitled "Transvolation," Billy Rice will deliver a lecture on "Astronomy." Billy Emerson will appear in some of his best specialties, "The Grass Valley Sports" will be performed by Billy Arlington, Ben Cotton and J. B. Kemble, and the evening's entertainment will conclude with the sketch entitled "The Boy of the Period," with Billy Rice as the Boy.

California Theatre.

Charles Read's play of "Dora" founded on Tennyson's poem of that name will be produced at the California Theatre this evening, with Mrs. Chanfrau as Dora, Miss Rilie Wilton as Mary Morrison, Walter Leman as Farmer Allen, John Wilson as William Allan, Robert Pateman as Luke Bloomfield, Henry Coad as Jem Blount, Murry Woods as Harry Newell, and Mamie Darling as Little Willie. The play will be well mounted and will doubtless be well performed.

Maguire's New Theatre.

The performance at this house to-night will commence with the three act drama of "The Broken Sword," in which Mlle. Marie Zoe made such a success last week in the character of Myrtillo. After this the wonderful ventriloquist, E. D. Davies, will introduce his talking figures Tom and Joe, and will we may safely assert keep the audience in a roar of laughter during the whole of the time he is on the stage. The performance will terminate with (for the first time in California), the play of "Nita, or Woman's Constancy," written expressly for Mlle. Zoe. A number of songs and dances occur in the piece, and a burlesque Can Can is one of the features.

Bella Union Theatre.

Miss Kate Raymond and O. B. Collins are playing a highly successful engagement at this house they are in their tenth week and are as popular as ever. This evening will be presented, for the first time on any stage, a new local burlesque written by Harry B. Willey, entitled "Pygmalion and his Gal-a-Dear." The piece was written expressly for Harry Braham, who will appear in it with Miss Lizzie Watson. E. Zimmer has arranged new music for it. "The Mysteries and Miseries of New York," and an olio of amusing specialties will make up a good bill.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Among the acts to be performed at this house to-night are "Inside and Outside Servants" by Frank Mortimore, Harry Devey, and Hughey Robinson, "Handy Andy" by Frank Mortimore and Johnny Tuers, and "Captain Blowhard's Troubles" by Ned Buckley, John Kelly, Miss Katie Zoe and others.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Notes.

Harry Rickards, the celebrated London comic singer, who has been for the last two years performing in Australia, arrived here on Saturday. He is accompanied by his wife. Mr. Rickards will probably appear at one or other of Thomas Maguire's theatres.

J. C. Williamson and Miss Maggie Moore have made a prodigious hit in Melbourne. "Struck Oil" ran for five weeks. The Williamson's took $4926 for their share for the first three weeks. Their entertainment is entirely new in Melbourne, and has consequently caused a furore.

Madame Anna Bishop will leave for Sydney on the City of Melbourne, on October 10th.

The benefit of Baker and Russell, which we before referred to, is to come off at Platt's Hall on Friday next.

There was a debut at Maguire's New Theatre last night, when the Spanish Company performed, which caused some amusement. The young actor didn't like to make his appearance on the stage and had to be fairly driven on. His pantomime was very expressive but he suffered so much from stage fright that he excited more pity than admiration. He appeared in the bull fight scene and his name was Signor Tenere. Some said however, that all things considered, his performance must be confessed to have been "bully."

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-x

Thoughts at Thirty.

Under this heading F. W. A. a correspondent of the New York Mercury, expresses himself as follows:

At fifteen years I thought a man of twenty was rather advanced in years. At twenty-five I looked on eighteen as a boy. To-day it seems to me that forty is not so very old.

I have learned that the best friend of man is—a woman.

To satisfy yourself of the friendship of a man, put it to the test; to safely count on the love of a woman, do not test it.

I have never been able to decide which of two lovers is the happiest—the one who deceives or the one who is deceived. It would never do to be both.

As we grow old the more young girls attract us. At eighteen all ages please us; at twenty-four we are often in love with a woman of thirty-six; but at thirty we prefer them of twenty-three or four. Probably as we get gray we shall love only the young girls.

Formerly I was affected by a pathetic tragedy or by certain singing. Age has come. I weep no longer, but amuse myself less.

In friendship I like resemblances—in love contrasts.

When we fall in love we believe we shall never fall out, When we have fallen out we wonder how we can fall in.

As life advances, we acquire experience but we lose illusions. Experience renders us mistrustful—illusions make us happy. I fear we lose more than we gain.

When I recall my follies of eighteen years for objects which deserve them so little—I am sometimes regretful. When I think of the pleasures I found in committing them I wish I was foolish again, so that I might recommence them:

I can understand how one can become tired of balls and society. I cannot comprehend how we can ever lose the taste for love, music and reading.

At the age of twenty I thought gray hairs made a person appear quite old—I don't see that it changes the physiognomy—for several months past I have found several.

Dead Broke.

"Can't find nothing to do but loaf around the wharves and gallop up and down the alleys, eh?" remarked his Honor as a young man named Millar, charged with vagrancy, was rushed out.

"I am a stranger in this town—dead broke and nobody to borrow of," replied the prisoner, his hair climbing up to a perpendicular as Bijah glared down upon him. During the momentary pause a boy in the alley was heard singing:

"Not a shilling in my pocket,
Pulling hard against the stream."

"I can't help it that you are dead broke." said the Court; "I'd be glad if everybody owned a silver mine and two coach dogs.

"The officer says you have been wandering aimlessly around, sleeping on bales of hay, taking free lunches and making no effort to amass a fortune. You didn't seem to have any aim—any ambition."

"Yes I have," replied the prisoner.

"Where is it, sir; where is it?" asked His Honor, leaning forward. "Did you ever hear of Cicero taking free lunches? Did you ever read that Plato gamboled through the alleys of Athens? Tell me, sir, did you ever hear any one say that Demosthenes slept under a coal shed or on a bale of hay? If you want to be a Plato there would be fire in your eye; your hair would have an intellectual cut; you'd step into a clean shirt and you'd hire a mowing machine to pare those finger nails. 'Sir, you have got to go up four months."

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Great Bargains in Clothing:

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks, and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-x

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the professian and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully rescored and is now a modle of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Mr. Meyer, in his new and elegant premises, will be able to better accommodate his numerous patrons. 7-bg

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsible house. 7-bg

CENTRE MARKET.

WHO OCCUPY THE STALLS.

Hepburn has opened stall 4, with fresh meats of all kinds. Families and restaurants supplied on the shortest notice.

Stall 38, Hoim & Boyle have a splendid assortment butter, eggs, cheese and a general assortment of fancy groceries. Goods delivered free.

Stalls 39 and 40 are occupied by Kerlin & Hassard, dealers in fruits, vegetables, etc., of the best and freshest. Delivered free of charge.

BOSTON OYSTER HOUSE.—L. O. Pratt has opened stalls 89 and 90 in Centre Market. Oysters in every style. Chops and Steaks of the choicest. Ladies private rooms up stairs. 7-x

Stalls 91, 92 and 93, have been opened by Anderson & Marshall as the Long Branch oyster house. They are among the oldest oyster men in the city.

Swain's original bakery has opened a magnicent place at 213 Sutter street, near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-oj

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. D. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-r

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 209 Sutter street near Kearny. 8-bg

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies, The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapmen & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-1

OF THE BRILLIANT EMOTIONAL ACTRESS,

MRS. HENRIETTA CHANFRAU!

Who will be found to have reserved for this evening week of her prosperous engagement, several of those ordinary treasures with which her name is most delightfully associated.

THIS EVENING..... SEPTEMBER 28

Production of the exquisite dramatic idyl, in three acts, the EXCLUSIVE PROPERTY OF MRS. CHANFRAU, entitled,

DORA! DORA!

BY TENNYSON, THE POET, and CHAS. READE, THE NOVELIST.

DORA..... MRS. HENRIETTA CHANFRAU

WITH TENNYSON'S "SONG OF THE BROOK."

As originally performed by her at the Globe Theatre, Boston, for 200 Nights.

This renowned impersonation is one of the most prominent triumphs of the American Stage, and no lover of the beautiful in art can afford to miss its enjoyment. The character was originally performed by Mrs. Chanfrau for over 200 nights in Boston, and the fascinating charm and the simple grace of the effort were again and again acknowledged by audiences including Longfellow the poet, Whipple, the essayist, Weiss, the philosopher, and others equally as eminent in the walks of literature and art, together with hundreds of the students of Harvard. The play, which is one of the most beautiful and humanizing in the whole range of the drama, will be given from the original text of its author.

Contrasted Eloquence.

The Washington Capital has the following: I am sorry that so much trouble has been taken for my reception, but it was the fault of the committee, and not any fault of mine, as all entertainment has been forced upon me, and I have been met at every town of my visit with the same kindness, for which I am deeply gratified.—Grant's Speech at New Bedford.

This is a little hard on the Queen's English; but as the Queen has declined making son-in-law Sartoris a nobleman it serves her right.

How this burst of eloquence reminds one of the simple yet striking utterances of the colored divine in Richmond, Virginia, when he said:

"De fore part ob de church will please sit down so de hind part ob de church can see de fore part, for de hind part can't see de fore part of de fore part persist in standin' before de hind part to de utter exclusion of de hind part by de fore part."

A Smart Man.

He never gets drunk. That's the kind of man he is. He says so, and he ought know. He was seen, however, the other evening, in close conversation with a lamp-post. He informed that lamp-post that he was an ill-used man. All his friends had proven untrue, his love had deserted him, his washerwoman had refused to trust him, and he had nothing more to live for. Wasn't he right? The lamp post didn't say anything; but just then it got slippery, and he could'nt hold it any longer, and he reclined in the gutter. As he pillowed his head on the curbstone he said: "Can't fool me. Not much. I'm smart enough, I guess. Ain't I right?" And he slept the sleep of innocence, and sweet forgetfulness, and bad whisky.

A Hard Hit.

A distinguished clerical gentleman of Wisconsin, is somewhat noted for parsimony, and for "dead-heading" his way on lecture tours, etc. He had been a great traveler, and at a social party in Madison, in conversation with the hostess, he said: "Madam, do you know that I also, like Leander, and Lord Byron, swam across the Hellespont?" The lady said: "I have no doubt but that you did, rather than pay your fare on a steamboat."

Did she, Indeed!

One of our veracious Eastern contemporaries says:

An actress in California, a Miss Kinlin, lately married a professional named Wood, and her stage-name is now hyphenated into Mme. Kinlin-Wood.

We do not know any stick of that name on the California stage.

ONE TOUCH OF NATURE.

It was about three o'clock in the afternoon. Mr. Smith was away at his place of business on Kearny street, Mrs. Smith, her daughter, aged twelve years, and an infant of fourteen months, were in their house on Mission street, without male protection. The door bell rang. Mrs. Smith went to the door and a big, brutal dissipated-looking man forced his way into the house. Mrs. Smith asked "What do you want?" "I want money" replied the ruffian "and I mean to have it." "Mrs. Smith retreated into the sitting room where her elder daughter and her infant child were. The monster followed. He was nearly six feet in height. His clothes were ragged and dirty, his torn under shirt exposed a hairy breast, his eyes were bloodshot, his face was covered with a thick growth of hair. He was horrible to look at. "I have no money" said Mrs. Smith, shrinking to the side of her daughter. "I've got to have money" growled the monster. "I've got to have five dollars to get out of San Francisco with." The baby, sitting on the floor playing with a hair brush, a paper of buttons, a shell, a pair of earrings, a sock, and a shoo fly cracker, cooed. The burly monster stooped down, seized the child in his huge hands, held it aloft above his head and exclaimed, "Now get me five dollars—— quick, or by——I'll drop the brat. Don't play no shenanigin, or down goes the baby." The infant screamed with delight and clutching the man's whiskers in her hands advanced her face open mouthed towards his. As the man gazed at that happy face and saw that little dewy mouth begging a kiss, he relented. He said "I was a little darling like this once." Mrs. Smith and her daughter speechless with fright, looked pleadingly at the man. Baby cooed. He said. "It ain't business I know, but she's touched my feelings.' Give me two and a half and I won't drop her. If you dont by——"Mrs. Smith gave him two a half and he went When Mrs. Smith came home he said his wife was a cursed fool to give the fellow anything, but Mrs. Smith knew that she was wise. It was only a touch of nature and wasn't worth more than two and a half.

A Grasshopper Story.

Phillips county, in the State of Kansas, has had a remarkable sensation. A Miss Bummersheim, a native Carolinian, was in the habit of chewing earth, or clay. That whole section of the State having been infested with grasshoppers, the earth was saturated with their eggs, which got into the stomach of poor Miss Bummersheim, where they incubated and brought forth several thousands of hoppers. The young lady began to expand, she jumped and grew flighty, acted in every way like a locust, and finally she bursted and died. A coroner's jury sat on her case, and a doctor made a post-mortem, and found that she was filled with grasshoppers, of which surfeit of animal life she came to her end. The story is a queer one, yet it may be true, or not. Nevertheless, if grasshoppers can live in a human body, perhaps somebody in Plymouth Church, desiring to commit suicide, might adopt this novel method, swallow a bushel of grasshoppers' eggs and burst.

London Comic Singers.

The Spirit of the Times says:

In our issue of February 14th, 1874, appeared an interview between our critic and Tony Pastor, "the Bowery autocrat," in which he discussed the London comic singers and their salaries. At the eleventh hour Mr. Ware, an ex-manager of London and Provincial music halls, sends us the following statement. The time for discussing the remarks made by Mr. Pastor has long since expired, but as Mr. Ware gives us some interesting particulars consisting the high salaries paid to prominent English comic singers we publish his letter in full as a matter of some interest to the profession in America.

GLOBE THEATRE OFFICE, TORONTO, CANADA, September 12, 1874

DEAR SPIRIT:—Permit me to correct some errors that Mr. Tony Pastor has made with respect to the salaries of English artists in variety halls. Mr. Pastor only speaks from hearsay, but every one of the vocalists he names has been engaged by me, and I will state the salaries I paid them. I commence with Vance. Mr. Vance refused 100 guineas ($505 gold) for six nights at Sunderland, and at the time I offered him that I was paying George Leybourne £21 ($105 gold) per night (I have the contract), and James Milburn £75 for twelve nights, and half clear benefit. He put £103 in for his benefit. The last time I engaged Arthur Lloyd I paid him 60 guineas ($315 gold) per week at the Whitebait, Glasgow. His terms are much higher now. For over eight years before he died Harry Clifton did not sing in variety halls, but gave concerts. He was a very extravagant man, and for many years kept two or three horses, and left over $40,000, and I should think for years made over £100 or $500 per week. The last salary I paid Mr. Jolly Nash was £90 for twelve nights. Jolly Nash will be here next week, and will confirm my statement. Seven years ago I paid James Taylor £34 per week for three months and all his expenses; and the artists named Mr. Pastor—Vance, Leybourne and Nash—can command in England from £90 to £100 per week, according to the towns. I can assure you this is a positive fact. The salaries in America I consider are not better. Many of the engagements are only a few cents for the journey, and not once in a year will a $5 journey occur. Here you have at times to lose a week of your engagement, and only about one-third of the halls pay when you get there. I have been beat in five engagements out of twelve I have had in the country. I have been thirty years in the business, and only lost one week's salary by managers till I came to America. There is a deal of truth in Tony's remaks, but he greatly errs in the salaries of the "stars" he named.

I am, sir, yours truly, GEORGE WARE,
Late manager of London and provincial music halls.

P. S.—Mr. Jolly Nash has since shared an engagement with me, and our joint share was over £480 for six nights at the Curzon Hall, Birmingham—that is, $2,400. It is absurd to think that Vance, Jolly Nash, Leybourne, and the late Harry Clifton only commanded $50 per week. Whoever informed Tony, was guying him. G. W.

A Pleasant Welcome.

One of the modes of welcome adopted at Munich to honor the fifty-two choral societies at the recent festival was a dissolving view of the Reveil de l'Empereur, Barberousse, which, disappearing, discovered a monster butt of beer, surrounded by "Blondes Bacchantes," who presented the guests with pale ale in silver cups; this compliment was naturally preparatory to the performance of Handel's Alexander's Feast and the German drinking "Lieder."

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
Their cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name.
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That there have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there his truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

California Theatre.

"Dora" as produced at this house last night proved a decided success. It was well cast, well mounted, and well played throughout. Mrs. Chanfrau has appeared to better advantage in no part which she has played during her engagement than she did in that of Dora, last night. Her acting was simple and natural, and her reading generally good. Walter M. Leman did some splendid acting in the character of Farmer Allan, the man whose will was law. Robert Pateman as Luke Bromfield, was very good, never straining for effect, but rather keeping the character from thrusting itself into undue prominence. As William Allan John Wilson favored the public with some of the best acting he has afforded them for some time; he gave a consistent rendition of the character throughout, and made a great success in the death scene. Miss Ellie Wilton acted the ungracious role of Mary Morrison very cleverly, and everyone did well, or as the Chronicle critic expresses it this morning, "really outdone themselves." "Dora" is a treat for those who can appreciate wholesome sentiment and natural acting. It will be repeated to-night.

Maguire's New Theatre.

The performance last night commenced with the play of "The Broken Sword" in which Mlle. Marie Roe was very effective as Myrtille, and E. J. Buckley did some splendid melodramatic acting as Rigolio. After this E. D. Davies made his appearance, and was received with loud and long-continued applause. Mr. Davies made a very brief speech in which he expressed the satisfaction he felt at being once more back in San Francisco, and then proceeded to introduce his boys Tom and Joe. Then the fun commenced. The audience fairly screamed with laughter at the witticisms of the irrepressible Joe, for Joe was to them a real person, and Mr. Davies, merely the interlocutor, who gave him a chance to say smart things. There was scarcely a local topic of the day that did not receive attention, and every speech was a hit. Mr. Davies is certainly the most wonderful ventriloquist in the world, and he has in addition to this gift that of natural humor. On the conclusion of his performance, he was called out again and again until the audience became convinced that they could not induce him to go through his entertainment again. The play of "Nita," the most lively and attractive of all in which Mlle Marie Roe proved herself a very agreeable actress in speaking parts and was ably supported. The burlesque Can-Can, which is neat, and not at all "improper," caused much applause. The same bill will be presented this evening.

Opera House.

As a matter of course, this house was crowded to excess last night. It would be strange indeed if this had not been the case, considering the attractions. All did their best to please, and Billy Emerson was at his very best. The great act of "Transvolation" by Lottie and Frank, was received with the usual shouts of applause. The same bill will be presented this evening.

Platt's Music Hall.

A concert for the benefit of J. G. Russell and W. F. Baker, will be given at the above named hall, on Friday evening, October 2d. The following artists will appear: Miss Marian Singer, Miss Eunice Barstow, Signor Carmini Morley, Henry Baker, W. F. Baker, C. Makin, Jos. Dauphin, J. G. Russell and Louis Bodeker. J. G. Russell and W. F. Baker are deservedly great favorites with the public and their fine voices will be much missed here when they leave for the East. The public will, we are sure, unite in making this farewell testimonial, a worthy one.

Bella Union Theatre.

The new local burlesque of "Pygmalion and Gal-a-Dear" produced at this house last night was cleverly acted by Miss Lizzie Watson, Harry Braham, Louise Somers and H. B. Archer, and caused considerable fun. Miss Kate Raymond and O. B. Collins delighted the audience by the excellence of their acting in "The Mysteries and Miseries of New York," and altogether an excellent entertainment was given. It will be repeated to-night.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Johnny Tuers in his "Quintessence," never fails to bring down the house, Ned Buckley is great in "Captain Blowhard's Troubles," and Miss Ida May, Hughey Robinson, Miss Ida Fisk and others give a very agreeable performance.

Woodward's Gardens.

There are always thousands of attractions at these gardens. On Sunday next Mons. Baisley will make an ascension in the Gas Balloon Sierra Nevada, and start for a long trip. On Saturday and Sunday Little Sallie Parker character songstress and Ash and Parker song and dance men, will appear.

Mrs. Wilson, wife of John Wilson, the circus manager, died in this city on Thursday night. The funeral took place on Sunday.

John Piper, the well-known Virginia City manager, is stopping in town for a day or two accompanied by his family. He has engagements ahead until next May, and his dramatic season will expand uninterruptedly until that time.

Wilkins, the former scene painter of the California Theatre has been engaged for Piper's Opera House for the season.

Roe will play a week at Piper's Opera House before proceeding East.

Maggie Moore writes from Australia, "we have struck oil for mother."

Frank Mayo and Miss Rosa Rand open in "David Crockett" at the California Theatre, next Monday next.

Harry Rickards, a London comic and character singer of repute, who has been starring in Australia arrived by the last steamer. He will appear at Maguire's New Theatre on Monday. Manager Maguire is piling talent into his New Theatre.

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-x

VICTORIA GREY.

A giddy young girl was Victoria Grey;
One proud, and determined to have her own way;
And rather than bend,
She would lose her best friend—
She was one upon whom one could never depend.

That she thought herself charming was plain to be seen
By her confident manners and satisfied mien;
She was one of that kind
That one often will find,
With a small, selfish heart and diminutive mind.

Victoria Grey had a passion for dress.
Though taste and good judgment she did not possess;
On the street she would flirt,
And sweep through the dirt
With thirty-six yards of light silk in her skirt.

She had many lovers, it may be a score—
She had promised to marry a dozen or more;
All felt happy and gay,
At the confident way
They were treated and loved by Victoria Grey.

Augustus Van Quirk was her fortunate flame;
(Victoria loved his euphonious name,)
A weak little fellow,
Whose whiskers were yellow,
With little white hands, and a voice rather mellow.

He took her to operas, dances and plays,
He courted and wooed her in various ways,—
He whispered a store
Of affectionate lore
That blighted the hopes of a dozen or more.

They were married at last, 'twas a famous affair.
Made brilliant by presents of real plated ware—
'Twas a transient display,
The talk of the day,
And this was the end of Victoria Grey.

Five years have gone by, and Augustus Van Quirk
Has never been guilty of going to work;
Just over the way
Is a small sign to-day:
"BOARDING—Mrs. Van Quirk," (once Victoria Grey).

German "Domestics."

A writer in the Washington Critic says: In Germany the girls not only of the middle, but of the higher classes, are obliged by custom after they leave school to serve a regular apprenticeship in the families of friends or relatives to the acquiring a thorough knowledge of the mysteries of domestic economy and house-keeping; their education is not considered complete without it, neither are they permitted to marry until they know how to manage a household in all its details. They are not allowed to waste time and money at school on accomplishments for which they have no talent, but devote both to more solid and useful studies. The Germans are a long-headed people, who have a grave outlook for the future, perceiving that their daughters will, in the natural order, be wives and mothers a fact which seems to be lost sight of in the training of ours; that is, it is not taken into account in the right way; for, with some, the end and aim of existence seems to be the making of an eligible match, which means marrying a girl to the highest bidder be he old, middle-aged, a divorcee; halt or blind, refined or vulgar, unprincipled or not; it makes no difference so that the pomps and vanities, the purple and fine linen are secured.

Such things take place in all countries, you say; so they do, but not to the same extent as in this, where such marriages are especially silly on account of the sudden panics in trade, and the vicissitudes of fortune that all monied people are more or less subject to, which sweep away to-morrow that for which one barters life and happiness to-day. There's not even the prospect of stability to excuse it; and then when the reed breaks, what has our fashionably educated girl to lean upon?

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Pepper's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks, and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-x

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Mr. Meyer, in his new and elegant premises, will be able to better accommodate his numerous patrons. 7-bg

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsible house. 7-bg

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the professian and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully rescord and is now a model of taste and ele-

CENTRE MARKET.

WHO OCCUPY THE STALLS.

Hepburn has opened stall 4, with fresh meats of all kinds. Families and restaurants supplied on the shortest notice.

Stall 38, Holm & Boyle have a splendid assortment butter, eggs, cheese and a general assortment of fancy groceries. Goods delivered free.

Stalls 39 and 40 are occupied by Kerlin & Hassard, dealers in fruits, vegetables, etc., o the best and freshest. Delivered free of charge.

BOSTON OYSTER HOUSE.—L. O. Pratt ha opened stalls 89 and 90 in Centre Market. Oysters in every style. Chops and Steaks of the choicest. Ladies private rooms up stairs. 7-x

Stalls 91, 92 and 93, have been opened by Anderson & Marshall as the Long Branch oyster house. They are among the oldest oyster men in the city.

Swain's original bakery has opened a magnicent place at 213 Sutter street, near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Night to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-oj

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. D. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-t

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 289 Sutter street near Kearny. 8-bg

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies. The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapmen & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-t

OF THE BRILLIANT EMOTIONAL ACTRESS,

MRS. HENRIETTA CHANFRAU!

Who will be found to have reserved for this closing week of her prosperous engagement, several of those powerful triumphs with which her name is most favorably associated.

THIS EVENING.....SEPTEMBER 30

Last Night of the exquisite dramatic idyl, in three acts, the EXCLUSIVE PROPERTY OF MRS. CHANFRAU, entitled,

DORA! DORA!

BY TENNYSON, THE POET, and CHAS. READE, THE NOVELIST.

DORA.....MRS. HENRIETTA CHANFRAU

WITH TENNYSON'S "SONG OF THE BROOK."

As originally performed by her at the Globe Theatre, Boston, for 200 Nights.

This renowned impersonation is one of the most gracious triumphs of the American stage, and as lover of the beautiful in art can afford to miss its enjoyment. The character was originally performed by Mrs. Chanfrau for over 200 nights in Boston, and the fascinating charm and the simple grace of the effort were again and again acknowledged by audiences including Longfellow, the poet Whipple, the essayist, Weiss, the philosopher, and others equally as eminent in the walks of literature and art, together with hundreds of the students of Harvard. The play, which is one of the most beautiful and humanizing in the whole range of the drama, will be given from the original text of the author.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
W. H. AIKEN, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW AND Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic in California and Nevada, gives prompt attention to the collection of Additional Travel Pay, now due California and Nevada Volunteers discharged more than three hundred miles from home. Soldiers can depend on fair dealing. Information given free of charge. When writing enclose stamp for reply, and state company and regiment, and whether you have a discharge. Congress has extended the time for filing claims for additional Bounty and for Act of July 28, 1866, to January 1875 after which claims must be made before that time. Original Bounty of $100 has been allowed all volunteers who enlisted before July 2d, 1861, for three years, if not paid the same when discharged. Land Warrants can be obtained for services rendered before 1856, but not for services in the late war. Pensions for late war and war of 1812 obtained and increased when allowed for less than disability warrants, but no pensions are allowed to Mexican and Florida war soldiers. State of Texas has granted Pensions to surviving veterans of Texas Revolution. New Orleans and Mobile Prize Money is now due and being paid. W. H. The Boston Exposition.

They are holding a Mechanic's Exposition in Boston. The Commercial Bulletin says "some funny mistakes are made in the art gallery, as for instance an individual halting opposite a large landscape, was told it was by Hart, and replied, "O yes! funny fellow, Bret Harte. I've read some of his poems, and what a good picter he paints." Another stopping opposite Merle's splendid painting of the boy with a large French loaf in his arms, wondered "what that boy is goin' to do with that big stone." A third, after examining the bronze figure of Mercury springing from the mouth of Aeolus, thought "the fellow who was balancin' that man on his chin must be a Japanese smuggler." Good gracious! We thought all the people of Boston knew something about Art.

We Should Think Not.

The Washington Chronicle says: "Even California with her earthquakes, does not want to change localities with the people this side of the Sierras. They are unwilling to barter their dry Summers, healthy climate, and forests of heavy-headed wheat for thunder, lightning, snow, hail, Pittsburg floods, reservoir horror, child-stealing, shipwrecks, yellow fever, consumption, sunstroke, conflagrations, Plymouth Church, Tilton, Beecher and Butler.

California Favorites in Washington.

The Washington Critic says: Carrie Armstrong and James A. Larkin, the celebrated artists from California, are creating quite a furore at the Theatre Comique this week, and are already acknowledged favorites. Frank Janes, the Musical Moke and Ethiopian, is a "whole team," and brings down the house every time, and the others of the company always please the audience.

Wanted to Hear.

"Your honor," said a prisoner to a Paris judge, "my lawyer is not here, and I request a delay of the case for eight days." "But," said the judge, "You were caught in the act of theft, what can any lawyer say for you?" "That is just what I should like to hear," said the prisoner, and the court laughed, but sentenced him to a year.

Like Plymouth Church.

Recently in a Columbia county (Ga.) church, when the congregation arose to sing, a pistol fell from the pocket of one of the worshippers and wounded a Mr. Peeler, who remarked as he was being carried out, "Take care you don't make me drop mine."

An Unpleasant Name.

Deacon Gaudam flourishes in Lock Haven, N. Y. When the minister wishes a collection taken up for the little heathen on "India's coral strand," and says: "Deacon Gaudam, you please pass the hat," he has to be careful how he places his commas.

Irreverent.

Policeman (on the occasion of a "confirmation"): "Stop! stop! Go back! You musn't come in here! "We're expectin' o' the Bishop every minute!"—Cabby (fortissimo!): "All right! Why, I've got the old buffer inside!"

An Indignant Peddler.

"Who asked if yer wanted anything?" said a Lowell peddler to a lady who said that she did not as soon as she opened the door. "Mind yer peeuness, and don't refuse to buy t ill you are asked."

A Connoisseur.

Judge Crocker's gallery of pictures recently purchased by him in Europe, has been on exhibition in Sacramento for the benefit of a local charity. The Bee of a recent date says:

Woodward, of Woodward's Gardens, San Francisco, told our reporter to-day that he had just come from looking through Judge Crocker's gallery; and while there he fancied himself in Europe. "We talk," he said, "of going to Europe, to see pictures, while here they are at our very doors, and there are not many galleries in Europe superior to this one. I am surprised both at the number and quality of pictures it contains."

This same collection when it was exhibited in San Francisco, attracted but little attention, though the pictures were nearly all new and beautifully framed. It is pitiful how little our people appreciate Art. Now Mr. Woodward, of Woodward's Gardens, who has been nearly all over Europe, gives his opinion. What does he say? He calmly and reflectively observes that "he fancied himself in Europe." It is really absurd for Californians to waste time and money in going to Europe for the purpose of studying Art, when an authority like Mr. Woodward, who has been there, remarks that there are not many galleries in Europe superior to that of Judge Crocker. The collections of the Louvre, Brussels, the Vatican, the National Gallery of England, the Dulwich Gallery, and a few others will, we are sure, even such a connoisseur as Mr. Woodward will admit, compare favorably either with Judge Crocker's gallery or with the Art Gallery at Woodward's Gardens. The latter gallery we regret to observe, has lately lost some of its greatest works, Mr. Woodward having removed seventy six of the paintings of Virgil Williams to his private residence. With our climate, our scenery, and such noble and accomplished art patrons as Mr. Woodward of Woodward's Gardens, it will not be long before San Francisco instead of Rome, becomes the Mecca of devotees of Art.

A Fighter.

A young man of somewhat stalwart frame was parading himself on Stevenson street, one evening last week. He had evidently been to "see somebody" as his gait wasn't quite straight, and his breath was very strong "I want to see somebody as kin lick me. I'm ready for any man to take hold on. I'm a fighter, I am. Waltz up, gentlemen, and tackle me! Oh, I won't run away. I'm a hull artillery of fight, I am. Crawl around me, half a dozen of ye. Who's the man as can lick me, that's what I want to know?" Just then a tall, but not stout, female burst through the crowd that surrounded the man that was such a terrible fighter. She grasped him by the collar and shook him. "You're drunk again, are you? You want to fight! The only thing you can fight is a glass of rum. If you don't come right home I'll thrash you within an inch of your life, you big, whisky-guzzling loafer." And he walked off quietly with the woman, and didn't attempt to tear to pieces any of the crowd who jeered at him, and asked how humble pie tasted. He was the mildest mannered fighter just then that ever squared before any imaginary opponent.

Weddings.

The New York Courier makes the following sensible remarks concerning the disgusting mode of celebrating weddings at present in vogue:—

As the semi-annual bridal season is at hand, it is the time to plead for a reform in weddings. Every year this sacredest of all occasions is turned more and more into a mere opportunity for display, and for replying to some fancied social obligation. Instead of the time when a few of the closest friends gather to witness the solemnest compact human beings can frame, it is chosen as the moment for bringing together the larger part of a family's social circle, to show the bride in her bridal garments; to prove how many flowers and refreshments the family can afford; and, with shame be it said, to exhibit to criticism and light comment the precious tokens that should have come with tender regard to the maid on the eve of her new life. A wedding must not be uncheerful; but it must certainly be solemn to all who realize what it is. On the one side, it is renouncing old ties, promising to begin with faith, and hope, and love a new and wholly untried existence. On the other, it is the acceptance of a sacred trust, the covenant to order life anew in such ways as shall make the happiness of two instead of one. Can such an occasion be fit for revelry? Is it not wiser, more delicate, to bid only the nearest of friends to a marriage ceremony, and leave the feasting and frolic for a subsequent time? We are sure there are few girls who, if they reflect on the seriousness of the step they are about to take, will not choose to make their vow merely within the loving limits of their home circle. All our best instincts point to the absolute simplicity and privacy of wedding services; only a perversion of delicacy could contemplate the asking of crowds of half-sympathetic or wholly curious people to attend the fulfillment of the most solemn of contracts. Let there be as much party-making, rejoicing, and pleasure-taking afterwards as hearts desire; but let the solemn vows be made in the presence only of those nearest and dearest.

Tit for Tat.

A young lady, the daughter of the owner of the house, was addressed by a young man who, though agreeable to her, was disliked by her father. Of course he would not consent to their union, and she determined to elope. The night was fixed, the hour came, the lover placed the ladder to the window, and in a few moments the young girl was in his arms. They mounted a double horse, and were soon some distance from the house. After awhile the lady broke the silence by saying: "Well, you see what proof I have given you of my affection I hope you will make me a good husband." He was a surly fellow, and gruffly answered: "Perhaps I may, and perhaps not." She made no reply, but after a silence of some minutes she suddenly exclaimed: "Oh, what shall we do? I have left my money behind me in my room." "Then," said he, "we must go back and fetch it." They were soon at the house, the ladder was again placed, the lady remounted, while the ill-natured lover waited below. But she delayed to come, and so he gently called: "Are you coming?" when she looked out of the window and said: "Perhaps I may, and perhaps not;" and then shut down the window, leaving him to depart alone.

The McIntosh.

Perhaps the best specimen of open wit now in circulation is that of the London cabby's retort to the head of the Highland clan McIntosh. "Do you know who I am?" asked the haughty Highlander of a cabman attempting, as McIntosh thought, to overcharge him, "I'm the McIntosh!" "I don't care," said the cabby, "if you were the umbrella, I mean to have my fare."

The fun is not perceptible to those who are not aware that an India rubber overcoat is, in England, always called a Mackintosh, after the inventor.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend. "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that.
And if your month don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
Their cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name.
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Maguire's New Theatre.

E. D. Davies, the wonderful ventriloquist and funniest man living, appears here every night. Mlle. Zoe appears in "Nita" and "The Broken Sword." A rich entertainment is afforded to all who visit this house.

Opera House.

The Great Transvolation Feat by Frank and Lottie, Billy Emerson in his best specialties, and Ben Cotton, J. B. Kemble, Billy Rice and others in acts, are attractions sufficient to keep this house always crowded.

California Theatre.

"Dora" with Mrs. Chanfrau in the title role, drew a good house last night. It will be repeated this evening for the last time. To-morrow night Mrs. Chanfrau will appear as Christie Johnson in the play of that name. In no part does she appear to better advantage.

Platt's Music Hall.

A concert for the benefit of J. G. Russell and W. F. Baker, will be given at the above named hall, on Friday evening, October 2d. The following artists will appear: Miss Marian Singer, Miss Eunice Barstow, Signor Carmini Morley, Henry Baker, W. F. Baker, C. Makin, Jos. Bauphin, J. G Russell and Louis Bodeker. J. G. Russell and W. F. Baker are deservedly great favorites with the public and their fine voices will be much missed here when they leave for the East. The public will, we are sure, unite in making this farewell testimonial, a worthy one.

Bella Union Theatre.

The new burlesque of "Pygmalion and his Gala-Dear" by Miss Lizzie Watson and Harry Braham, the drama of "The Mysteries and Miseries of New York," by Miss Kate Raymond, O. B. Collins and the dramatic company and a fine olio of songs and acts make up a good bill at this house.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

"Hard Cheek," "Handy Andy," "I Want to be a Doctor," and "Captain Blowhard's Troubles," are among the acts to be performed this evening by Johnny Tears, Ned Buckley, Frank Mortimore and others.

Woodward's Gardens.

There are always thousands of attractions at these gardens. On Sunday next Mons. Buislay will make an ascension in the Gas Balloon Sierra Nevada, and start for a long trip. On Saturday and Sunday Little Sallie Parker character songstress and Ash and Parker song and dance men, will appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Notes.

Madame Anna Bishop, prior to her departure for Australia, on the City of Melbourne on the 10th prox., will take leave of the public of San Francisco at a concert. It will be given on next Wednesday, at Platt's Hall, and Stephen Marsh, the harpist, will make his first appearance.

Frank Mayo and Miss Rosa Rand will arrive here to-morrow night.

The Sacramento Record, speaking of Langrishe & Glenn's Troupe says: The Black Crook Company has had the most successful engagement in this city since the days of Alice Kingsbury or Mrs. Bowers. It has played here to remarkably large audiences, and its scenery is the best ever put on the Metropolitan stage.

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-x

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Mr. Meyer, in his new and elegant premises, will be able to better accommodate his numerous patrons. 7-bg

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsible house. 7-bg

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Perse's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-x

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. B. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 212 Kearny street, from 1 to 8 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. E

Burkhardt's 510 Washington street.

French calf boots made to order for $8; box toed gaiters made to order for $6; oxford tie shoes made to order for $4; boys' boots made to order for $6; and large assortment of boots and shoes, all of Burkhardt's own make, at equally low sales, at 510 Washington st reet. 9-x

WHAT IS THE USE?

What is the use of trimming a lamp
If you never intend to light it?
What is the use of grappling a wrong
If you never intend to right it?

What is the use of removing your hat,
If you do not intend to tarry?
What is the use of wooing a maid,
If you never intend to marry?

What is the use of buying a coat,
If you do not intend to wear it?
What is the use of a house for two,
If you never intend to share it?

What is the use of gathering gold
If you do not intend to spend it?
What is the use of planting a field,
If you never intend to reap it?

What is the use of buying a book,
If you never intend to read it?
What is the use of a cradle to you,
If you never expect to need it?

Feminine Vagaries.

If to her share some female errors fall,
Look on her face, and you'll forget them all.

A French speculator is going to bring a four-legged girl over to England.

The San Francisco ladies have established a home for Chinese women.

Danville, New Jersey, is proud of the diabolical profession of a young lady who miraculously "turns milk-blood red."

An Ohio belle who went to Saratoga in hopes to find a count came away engaged to a man who makes water-proof blacking.

Nevada is proud of a woman resident who, when the stealthy savage approached her, just pulled off her hair and gave it to him.

A Delaware widow has two thousand acres of peach trees, and no wonder all the men around there think she is "just old peaches."

The married women of Dubuque have driven into exile a female barber, who settled there, not choosing to let their husbands get into such scrapes.

A lady wrote with a diamond on a pane of glass:

"God did at first make man upright, but he—"

To which a gentleman added:

"Most surely has continued so; but she—"

"Patty de for grass," reads Mrs. Parvenu from the table d'hote bill of fare at Saratoga; "here, you waiter, you, bring me some of her," pointing to the French words on the bill which she had endeavored to pronounce.

"Death is a sad thing," remarked a Schenectady woman, as she stood beside an open grave. "Yes, poor thing," replied another, "how he did like to sit down to a good biled dinner where the pork was just right."

The newest thing in fans is of ostrich feathers so arranged as to form a square. In the centre is a small mirror, surrounded by imitation pearls, the feathers are of every color, but the entirely black fans appear to be the most fashionable.

The first requirement of fashion for the next six months is, apparently, jet everywhere and on most everything. So much ornament never was dreamed of before. A fashionable woman will glitter from the top-head on the crest of her highest finger-puff, to the last loop on the velvet bow that covers her foot from instep to toe. Jet embroidery covers the bust and is massed on the back. It encircles the waist in a broad band from which depend heavy fringes and points. It is sewn thickly in the lace or silk apron of the overskirt. It flows down the underskirt, and is involved in all the intricacy of the elaborate and bouffant sash. It winds in and out among sleeves and flounces, now narrowing to a mere thread, and then swelling to a stream or broadening into a good-sized lake.

Locomotive Caprices.

It is perfectly well known to experienced engineers that if a dozen different locomotive engines were made at the same time, of the same power, for the same purpose, of like materials, in the same factory, each of those locomotive engines would come out with its own peculiar whims and ways, only ascertainable by experience. One engine will take a great deal of coal and water at once; another will not allow of such a thing, but insists on being coaxed by spadefuls and bucketfuls. One is disposed to start off when required at the top of its speed; another must have a little time to warm at his work and get well into it. These peculiarities are so accurately mastered by skillful drivers that only particular men can persuade engines to do their best. It would seem as if some of these "excellent monsters" declared on being brought from the stable, "If it's Smith who is to drive, I won't go; if it's my friend Stokes, I'm agreeable to anything." All locomotive engines are low-spirited in damp and foggy weather. They have a great satisfaction to their work when the air is crisp and frosty. At such a time they are very cheerful and brisk, but they strongly object to haze and mists. These are points of character on which they are united. It is in their peculiarities and varieties of character that they are the most remarkable.

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter st les.

THE EXAMINER, with latest telegraphic dispatches every evening, is delivered by carriers

Desecrating the Lord's Day.

The Los Angeles Herald says:

Some time ago Captain Goodall and Dr. O'Farrell, both of Goodall, Nelson & Perkins' Steamship Line, spent a few days admiring the beauties of Los Angeles. One Sunday morning the doctor seated himself on a boot black stand for the purpose having his calf-skins polished. The work was well and speedily done, and the doctor handed the "intelligent contraband" two bits, which he slipped into the seat pocket of his pants. After awhile the doctor inquired kind o' careless like, about his change. "Nuthin' cummin', sah, and I charge one bit for de shinin' o' your boots, and one bit for desecrating de Lord's day, sah." Dr. O'Farrell saw the point but he never saw the change.

All Alike.

A crusty, unmarried person, of the male gender, writes an article in the New York Home Journal under the caption, "Nursing Babies as an Art and Pastime." He says: "They are nearly all alike, the only perceptible points of difference between them being that some are uglier and more ill-behaved than others." Some men are born babies, others acquire babies, while some have babies thrust upon them. The writer evidently belongs to the third classification.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Gorville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-oj

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-x

Family Oyster Rooms.

It is fashionable for ladies, now-a-days, to go to Joe Giusti's new Family Oyster Rooms, 105 California Market, for their meals: Joe, with natural gallantry, saves for them his finest oysters, the fattest quails and the choicest chops and steaks. Open night and day. 9-bi

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies. The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapmen & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-x

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

W. H. AIKEN, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW AND Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic in California and Nevada, gives prompt attention to the collection of Additional Travel Pay, now due California and Nevada Volunteers discharged more than three hundred miles from home. Soldiers can depend on fair dealing. Information given free of charge. When writing enclose a stamp for reply, state regiment and company, and when you have a discharge. Congress has extended the time for filing claims for additional Bounty under Act of July 28, 1866, to January 1875 and all such claims must be made before that time. Original Bounty of $100 has been allowed all volunteers who enlisted before July 2d, 1861, for three years, if not paid the same when discharged. Land Warrants can be obtained for services rendered before 1856, but not for services in the late war. Pensions for late war and war of 1812 obtained and increased when allowed for less than disability warrants, but no pensions are allowed to Mexican and Florida war soldiers. State of Texas has granted Pensions to surviving veterans of Texas Revolution. New Orleans and Mobile Prize Money is now due and being paid. W. H. A Stupid Mistake.

The London correspondent of the New York Mercury says:

There is scarcely a ripple to be seen on the stagnated theatrical ocean. The final performance of "Led Astray" passed off pretty quietly. Mr. Charles Thorne made a speech of thanks at the end of the third act, in answer to a recall, and intimated that Mr. Stuart Robson would like to say a few words. Mr. Robson thereupon came forward and expressed himself well satisfied with the kind reception given to him by the English public, but he did not stop here. He went on to say that he had scarcely been fairly treated by the English press. He remarked that if our newspapers had pointed out any grievous faults in his acting they would have covered themselves with more credit than they had done by merely condemning him for his American accent. I knew that Mr. Robson had a complaint to make, and I was not much surprised to find him come to the footlights and make a statement. The Gaiety audience, I think, were rather astonished, and considered it bad taste. Mr. Thorne's few words were anticipated, for he was recalled, but Mr. Robson was not asked to come forward, and his speech was not welcome.

Taking Things Pleasantly.

Male protector (leaning over the banisters with a lamp in his hand)—"If there are any persons down there who wish to rob the house, they will find all the silverware and valuables in the dining-room closet, the key is underneath the clock on the mantle. Please shut the door when you go out." Male protector retires and locks himself in his bedroom, with the calm sense of having done his duty.

Heaven Forfend Us.

The Schleswig-Holstein question is to be revived! Lord Palmerston used to say there was but one man on earth who understood that intricate question, and that was himself, and he had wholly forgotten it. If it should be revived, we might see lunatic asylums filled with newspaper editors and statesmen trying in vain to solve the knotty problem.

A Bogus Affair.

The N. Y. Mail says:

Some man in Boston publishes a paper called the Kingdom of Heaven, for seventy-five cents a year. Of course, it is a bogus affair. The genuine Kingdom of Heaven can be had without money and without price.

A Saving old Man.

The Brooklyn Argus says:

One of the best preserved men of his time is Commodore Vanderbilt. He attributes his condition to wearing of woollen socks the whole year round, and says they prevent the escape of electricity.

Blessed old man! He won't even let any of his electricity go if he can help it.

Travail of a Life.

In a late London paper appeared the following, appended to a notice of a woman starved to death:

"On Thursday her landlord opened the bare room, whence all the furniture had been taken bit by bit for food. There was no fuel, no food in the room; only a skeleton that a few days before had laid down her pen, never more to take it up again—laid it down in that moment when her childhood's home had risen before her, just as the waters of life rolled into eternity's deep sea!"

Who was it that thus went out a famished thing into the world to come? Her journal contained these words, the name of the owner having been carefully erased:

Fire I have gone without for days, and now I am trying to see how long this tired body can endure without food. Strange, that during the last few days I have lived over again my girlhood's life. I am again in the old rectory, once more I hear through the open church windows the flow of the river, I hear the hum of the bee, and smell the sweet-scented hay; and amidst all this dreamy, delicious Sabbath silence, a voice is preaching the law of charity to simple listeners. "Faith, hope, and charity; but the greatest of all these is charity;" so far I have again listened, and I am off again, eyes and thoughts following the gayly-winged butterfly which has just come in at the window.

We penetrate into the very heart of the dense copse, and somebow or other silence keeps our tongues. The ripened nuts fall softly upon the dried leaves, and the nimble little squirrel overhead is eyeing us askance. Suddenly my brother leaps to his feat to gather some flowers growing near. I am by his side; he has extended his hand, but it is rapidly withdrawn—a viper's head had darted up from among the moss.

Hunger tortures me, and the water I drink is icy cold; but I am in sunny France—sunny Southern France, and our convent grounds slope to the swift Rhine. We, a knot of happy girls, are talking of our future. I do not look so far as they; my eye is following the laden grape-carts as they wind slowly down the opposite hill, and some grape-gathers are singing in their soft patois, so musical and sweet when draped in poetry. Schiller's "Maria Stuart" rings in my ears, mixed with the murmur of the Rhine, and I stay my pen to listen to its waters as they leap over Schaffhausen's Falls; the murmur grows louder the waters are dashing along a mighty flood; they deafen me—they are coming nearer and nearer!—But "Wie die Arbeit, so der Lohn" repeats itself again and again: "As the labor, so the reward." I have labored, and my reward is hunger, cold, a pauper's grave. I will try a little longer. "Appeal to your relatives," I am told each time I ask for help. I did appeal. One sent me five shillings, another sent me two, and told me to make use of my education—that would find me bread. I dropped the seven shillings into the poor-box last Sunday when I dragged myself to church. I could not buy bread with anything so grudgingly given. The four walls of my desolate room close around me, the roar of the cataract of the Rhine comes nearer, but a voice from its din of waters says: "The greatest of these is charity." Have I lived in vain? Shall I die in vain?

A Touching Spectacle.

Forty-one Georgians stood around the death-bed of old Mr. Perkins, their rich relative, and shed tears as the cold hand of death was laid upon his brow. When the will was opened and they found that he had left all his property to found a college, forty-one Georgians started for home, exclaiming, "Kussim."

The Reward of Patience.

Bill Jones, although an excellent druggist, was unable to find employment. One day Mr. Pillulat, an apothecary, told Bill that he would give him the next place that might become vacant in his extensive establishment. Pillulat's first clerk was a pleasant fellow, who liked to chat with Bill Jones whenever the latter came into the store. He told Bill that he made a good deal of money, aside from his salary, by selling, on his own account, opium and morphine to the unfortunate eaters of the drugs in question. Bill resolved to turn this information to account. One day, therefore, he informed the clerk, John Dryer, that he had just visited the Tombs, and was still shuddering over what he had seen there. Dryer remarked that he had heard it described as a horrible place. "Horrible!" cried Jones; "I should say so; I would rather die than remain in the Tombs for twenty-four hours!" "So would I," responded Dryer. The same day Jones sent a boy to Dryer to procure an ounce of morphine. Dryer sold the poison, the boy having assured him that it was for a lady, who was accustomed to take fifteen grains of it a day. Next morning a friend of Jones, a rough-looking fellow, rushed into Pillulat's store, and with mock indignation reprimanded Dryer for having sold poison to his wife in order that she might commit suicide. "Poor woman!" raved the man, "she was depressed in spirits for some time, and hence I watched her closely. But yesterday she eluded my vigilance and obtained the poison from you. She swallowed the entire contents of the bottle." "What!" interrupted Dryer, in dismay, "the whole bottle?" "Yes!" continued the stranger. "It killed her in less than ten minutes. But, sir, I will make you smart for it. I shall take out a warrant for you at once, and arrest you as the cause of her self-murder, and have you put in the Tombs." So saying he rushed out. John Dryer hastily left Pillulat's store, packed up his things, and crossed over to Jersey, where he took the next train for the West, first addressing a letter to Pillulat stating that unforseen circumstances had compelled him to leave so unexpectedly. When Pillulat received the letter, Bill Jones, who had arranged the "little job," was at the store awaiting events. He obtained Dryer's vacated place, forthwith, and said next day: "Patient virtue always meets reward."

A Troublesome Lodger.

The Washington Critic says:

We once overheard a conversation between two servants at a first-class hotel:

"What's de matter wid No. 8 dis morning, Mr. Johnsing?"

"Why, you see, he come in berry drunk last night an' got in on No. 20, dat rasible ole man, an' he just took him fur a thief, an' then he took him in the countenance. Dat's all."

"What de debble does 20 leave his doah unlocked for den, eh?"

"'Cause de onreasonable ole cuss just lays in de bed an' rings dat bell all night."

"Numbah 20 is de troublesomest ole cuss we eber hab."

Poetry and Prose:

"Nay, Heaven's angels whisper golden words as they kiss your darling cheeks," wrote a La Crosse man to his Betsy only last Spring, and now he wishes Heaven's angels would whisper to him how his breach-of-promise suit is coming out, as his lawyer is doubtful.

The Helmet Hat.

The Winter style of hat for gentlemen is made with such a stiff crown that if one goes home drunk and is struck on the head with a poker, he merely thinks he grazed the ball lamp while passing.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
Then'd clams and crabs and terrapins'g
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have fenna, I would seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

Billy Emerson and his great band of minstrels and the wonderful gymnaste Lottie and Frank will appear this evening in a very entertaining bill. The new act introducing the great "effect" of the panther robe is quite a success.

California Theatre.

To-night Mrs. Chanfrau will appear in the character of Ubristie Johnstone in the play of that name. It was in this part that during her last engagement at the California Theatre, Mrs. Chanfrau received the most commendation from dramatic connoisseurs. To-morrow night Mrs. Chanfrau will take her benefit. "The Hunchback" will be presented with a strong cast.

Maguire's New Theatre.

Some people laugh easily, others laugh with an effort and there are some who never laugh unless they are forced to. Even this last named class cannot resist E. D. Davies the ventriloquist. The audience is unanimous. All laugh loud, long and heartily. A wonderful man is Davies. Mlle. Zoe appears nightly in "Nitia," and in "The Broken Sword."

Bella Union Theatre.

The sensational drama entitled "The Mysteries of New York" is admirably performed by Miss Kate Raymond, O. B. Collins and others, Miss Lizzie Watson and Harry Braham appear in sentimental and comic songs, and in burlesque, and the bill is generally attractive.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

F. Mortimore and H. Devoy in "Hard Cheek," Ned Buckley, and others in "Capt. Blowhard's Troubles," Johnny Tuers in song and dance, and others in various specialities will afford amusement to visitors to this house to-night.

Platt's Music Hall.

A concert for the benefit of J. G. Russell and W. F. Baker, will be given at the above named hall, on Friday evening, October 2d. The following artists will appear: Miss Marian Singer, Miss Eunice Barstow, Signor Carmini Morley, Henry Baker, W. F. Baker, C. Makin, Jos. Dauphin, J. G. Russell and Louis Bodeker. J. G. Russell and W. F. Baker are deservedly great favorites with the public and their fine voices will be much missed here when they leave for the East. The public will, we are sure, unite in making this farewell testimonial, a worthy one.

Woodward's Gardens.

There are always thousands of attractions at these gardens. On Sunday next Mons. Buisiay will make an ascension in the Gas Balloon Sierra Nevada, and start for a long trip. On Saturday and Sunday Little Sallie Parker character songstress and Ash and Parker song and dance men, will appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-x

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Mr. Meyer, in his new and elegant premises, will be able to better accommodate his numerous patrons. 7-bg

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsible house. 7-bg

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks, and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-x

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescoed and is now a modle of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 212 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. x

Burkhardt's 540 Washington street.

French calf boots made to order for $8; box toed gaiters made to order for $6; oxford tie shoes made to order for $4; boy's boots made to order for $6; and large assortment of boots and shoes, all of Burkhardt's own make, at equally low sales, at 540 Washington st eet. 9-x

Music Hath Charms.

Pianos tuned and repaired, at moderate prices and satisfaction guaranteed, by one that understands the business. Also, will perform on Piano at Evening Parties, etc. Orders left at 754 Market or 54 Third street, will receive prompt attention by G. W. Morgan. 6-x

MR. L. JALLWEIN, No. 240 Kearny street, New and Second-Hand Clothing, of all descriptions, bought and sold. Store closed on Saturday until 6 P. M. jyx

THE TWO ANCHORS.

BY R. H. STODDARD.

It was a gallant sailor man
Had just come home from sea,
And as I passed him in the town
He sang "Ahoy!" to me.
I stopped, and saw I knew the man—
Had known him from a boy;
And so I answered, sailor-like,
"Avast!" to his "Ahoy!"
I made a song for him one day—
His ship was then in sight—
"The little anchor on the left,
The great one on the right."

I gave his hand a hearty grip,
"So you are back again,
They say you have been pirating
Upon the Spanish Main;
Or was it some rich Indiaman
You robbed of all her pearls?
Of course you have been breaking hearts
Of poor Kanaka girls!"
"Wherever I have been," he said,
"I kept my ship in sight—
"The little anchor on the left,
The great one on the right!"

"I heard last night that you were in;
I walked the wharves to-day,
But saw no ship that looked like yours,
Where does the good ship lay?
I want to go on board of her,"
"And so you shall," said he;
"But there are many things to do
When one comes home from sea.
You know the song you made for me?
I sing it morn and night—
"The little anchor on the left
The great one on the right!"

"But how's your wife and little one?"
"Come home with me," he said.
"Go on, go on; I follow you.
I followed where he led,
He had a pleasant little house,
The door was open wide,
And at the door the dearest face—
A dearer one inside!
He hugged his wife and child; he sang—
His spirits were so light—
"The little anchor on the left,
The great one on the right!"

'Twas supper-time and we sat down—
The sailor's wife and child,
And he and I; he looked at them,
And looked at me, and smiled.
"I think of this when I am tossed
Upon the stormy foam,
And though a thousand leagues away,
Am anchored here at home."
Then, giving each a kiss, he said,
"I see in dreams at night
This little anchor on my left,
This great one on my right!"

Equal Nuisances.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean, speaking of the silly people who are eternally trying to appear intellectual, says: "In music they affect a classical severity of taste. Vocal music they find trivial; instrumental music, if merely beautiful, is worthless. Depth of thought is what they are after. In painting they jabber about symphonies in green, harmonies in white, and nocturnos in all sorts of colors. They beg of you to admire the tremulous tones of an atmosphere, or the swell of a foreground, or the diapason of scarlet in sunset. They themselves might not inaptly be described as inharmonious swells in green, and it is difficult to say which are the greatest nuisances, these really soulless wind bags, whose appreciation is all affectation, or the honest, but uncultivated countryman, who listens to a sonata of Beethoven and exclaims: 'Oh! dry up that scrapin' and give us a Virginia reel."

A Dazed Devil.

A young lady on the train waved her handkerchief at the "devil" in the Oregon City Enterprize office, and the young imp has been nearly crazy ever since. He has written her name on the snow white walls of the office, from floor to ceiling, and on every blank sheet of paper in the sanctum, and, on being reprimanded, shied a "shooting stick" at the foreman. He has "pied" a column of type, and stood on his head in the ink keg, at the same time trying to balance a "galley" of "live matter" on each foot.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Family Oyster Rooms.

It is fashionable for ladies, now-a-days, to go to Joe Gaut's new Family Oyster Rooms, 105 California Market, for their meals: Joe, with natural gallantry, saves for them his finest oysters, the fattest quails and the choicest chops and steaks. Open night and day. 9-bl

THE EXAMINER, with latest telegraphic dispatches every evening, is delivered by carriers at twenty-five cents per week.

A "Providential" Mistake.

The Rev. William Curry, after having preached a year in Swampville, Indiana, had been chosen pastor of the Presbyterian Church, in Huntington, in the same State. His new congregation was greatly pleased with him, although, in reality, he hardly deserved credit, for he only repeated to them every Sunday one of the old sermons he had originally delivered to his parishioners in Swampville. One Sunday, just as Mr. Curry had ascended the pulpit and drawn from his pocket the manuscript he was about to peruse, he discovered, to his dismay, that by mistake he had brought with him the farewell sermon he had preached to the Swampvillians after having received his call to Huntington. Mr. Curry was exceedingly embarrassed. There was no help for it, however, and so he began to read the farewell sermon in a tremulous voice. The congregation was not a little surprised to hear their pastor announce in such pathetic tones that this was the last time he expected to preach to them. Everybody was deeply moved, and when the service was at an end the parishioners crowded round him making eager inquiries as to the cause of his sudden resolve to leave. The elders took him aside and asked if his salary were too low. If so, they would gladly raise it a couple of hundred dollars. Mr. Curry saw at a glance what a lucky mistake he had made. "My brethren," he said to the elders, "it is true that I wanted to look for a more remunerative field. The salary you have paid me is insufficient to enable me to purchase such books as I need for my theological studies, and—" The elders assured him that the mere announcement of this fact was sufficient, and immediate steps should be taken to secure him more pay. A meeting was held at once, and Mr. Curry's salary was increased three hundred dollars per annum. Of course the pastor consented to remain at Huntington.

Immense Liberality!

The Boston Transcript asks the following conundrum: Where out of Chicago could there be found a "church member of thirty years' standing" who could write to the papers, "I feel sure that the masses of our city would be more edified by a visit to the great exposition on Sunday than is accomplished by all the sermons delivered in all our churches?"

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-oj

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-x

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies. The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapmen & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-x

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

"Christie Johnstone" was presented last night with Mrs. Chanfrau in the title role; she acted it capitally and won much applause for the songs of "Caller Herrin," and "You and I." She was ably supported by T. W. Keene, Henry Edwards, Robert Pateman, Mrs. Sophie Edwin, Miss Ellie Wilton, Miss Belle Chapman and others. To-night for the benefit of Mrs. Chanfrau, "The Hunchback," will be performed with the beneficiary as Julia, Miss Belle Pateman as Helen, T. W. Keene as Sir Thomas Clifford, Henry Edwards as Master Walter and a generally strong cast. At the matinee to-morrow "Christie Johnstone" will be played.

Maguire's New Theatre.

To-night and at the matinee to-morrow Mlle. Marie Zoe "the Ondan Sylph" will appear in the play of "Nita," and the drama of "The Broken Sword," and between the pieces, E. D. Davies the wonderful ventriloquist, will introduce his precocious boys Tom and Joe, and other amusing personages, including the favorite little "gurrl" Mary Jones.

Opera House.

Billy Emerson, Ben Cotton and others will appear in a brilliant first part, Lottie and Frank in their wonderful feat of "Transvolation," Billy Rice in his lecture on Astronomy, Billy Emerson in his "Album of Gems," and Billy Arlington, Ben Cotton and J. R. Kemble in the act of "Grass Valley Sports." The evening's entertainment will terminate with the sketch entitled "The Boy of the Period." The same bill will be played at the matinee to-morrow.

Platt's Music Hall.

The concert for the benefit of J. G. Russell and W. F. Baker, will take place at this hall to night. The programme is an excellent one as may be seen by referring to our first page. The following artistes will take part in it: Miss Marian Singer, Mrs. Eunice Barstow, Signor Carmini Morley, Henry Baker, W. F. Baker, O. Makin, J. Dauphin, J. G. Russell and Louis Bodeker. J. G. Russell and W. F. Baker are well appreciated in San Francisco and the public will no doubt seize this opportunity of paying a compliment to these clever artistes.

Bella Union Theatre.

A new bill will be presented to-night, and Miss Fanny Young will make her first appearance at this house. After the new local burlesque of 'Pygmalion and Gal-a-dear" by Miss Lizzie Watson, Harry Braham and others, Tom Taylor's capital play of "The Ticket of Leave Man" will be produced with Miss Kate Raymond as Sam Willoughby, O. B. Collins as Hawkshaw, Miss Fanny Young as Mrs. Willoughby, H. A. Archer as Bob Brierly, and Harry Braham as Melter Moss.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Among the acts to be performed at this place of amusement to-night, may be mentioned, "Quiet Lodgings," by Ned Buckley, Harry Devoy and Frank Mortimore, "The Tobacconist's Daughter," by Miss Maggie Brewer, Hughey Robinson and others and "Before the Dawn" in which Hughey Robinson will appear as Dennis Murphy and Barry O'Neil.

Woodward's Gardens.

There are always thousands of attractions at these gardens. On Sunday next Mons. Buisley will make an ascension in the Gas Balloon Sierra Nevada, and start for a long trip. On Saturday and Sunday Little Sallie Parker character songstress and Ash and Parker song and dance man, will appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-x

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Night to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Burkhardt's 540 Washington street.

French calf boots made to order for $8; box toed gaiters made to order for $6; oxford tie shoes made to order for $4; boy's boots made to order for $6; and large assortment of boots and shoes, all of Burkhardt's own make, at equally low sales, at 540 Washington street. 9-x

Music Hath Charms.

Pianos tuned and repaired, at moderate prices and satisfaction guaranteed, by one that understands the business. Also, will perform on Piano at Evening Parties, etc. Orders left at 764 Market or 54 Third street, will receive prompt attention by G. W. Morgan. 6-x

THE WHITEWASH BRUSH.

The whitewash brush, the whitewash brush,
Is greater than Allab, greater than Josh;
In letters and science, in commerce and art,
It plays its wondrous, powerful part;
Aye, all its haughty compeers are bosh
Compared to the mighty whitewash brush.

Commanded by influence or gold,
It is the protector of young and old.
Every department of modern life
Reeking with wickedness and strife,
Society, politics, religion—Hush!
They are all safe 'neath the whitewash brush.

Scandal and gossip, the signs of our times,
Petty sin and unheard of crimes;
Judge and president, priest and flock,
May boldly at public opinion mock;
Whatever the peril, let them rush
And hide in the shade of a whitewash brush.

With a few quick strokes it covers shames,
Paints all fairly the blackest names;
Investigation it renders short,
With a friendly committee's swift report;
And behold, instead of the sinner's crush,
A coat laid on by the whitewash brush.

All other emblems, let us lay down,
The cross and the sword, the mitre and crown;
Ner learning, nor justice, nor faith should miss
To take for their standard a task like this:
Without a scruple, without a blush,
The gilded sign of a whitewash brush.

The Deceit of Song Writers.

The Fat Contributor discourses as follows on the deceit of the ballad writers of the day:

The man who wrote "Home, Sweet Home" never had a home.—Exchange.

No, of course not. All his folks at home say he didn't. Nobody who writes about anything ever had it. If a man is out of anything he immediately goes and writes about it. No man writes so many "headings" as the man who is out of his head.

Certainly he didn't ever have any home. The man who wrote the "Old Arm Chair," never had an arm chair in all his life. The best he had was an old split-bottom chair without any back to it.

The author of "Take Me Back to Switzerland," never was in Switzerland. The nearest he ever came to it was sitting in the William Tell saloon eating switzer-cass—kase why, that was the best he could do.

"Mother, I've Come Home to Die," has not spoken to the old woman for years, and wouldn't go near the house. Besides, he is of that class of spiritualists who don't believe he will ever die. His health was never better.

There is the author of "The Old Oaken Bucket," too. There wasn't a bucket on the old farm, water being drawn with a tin pail and cistern pole.

"If I Had But a Thousand a Year" stated privately to his friends that he would be contented with half that sum, as he was doing chores for his board and three months schooling in the winter.

The author of "Champagne Charlie," never drank anything but ten cent whisky.

"Shells of Ocean," is a humbug. The plaintvie poet who represents himself as wandering one summer eve with sea-beat thought, on a pensive shore, was raised in the interior of Pennsylvania and never ten miles away from home in all his life. "Gathered shells," did he? All the shells he ever gathered were some egg-shells back of his mother's kitchen.

"Hark, I Hear The Angels Sing," spent all his evenings in a beer saloon. Angels, indeed!

The man who wrote the "Song of the Shirt" hadn't a shirt to his back, wearing a wampus for the most part.

"Oft in the Stilly Night" used to get on a spree and make the stilly night howl till daylight.

The author of "We Met by Chance," knew very well it was arranged beforehand. He had been for weeks contriving it—and she admired his contrivance.

The author of "I Know a Bank," etc., did not know one where he could his note discounted. The only check he ever held was white check at a faro bank. He never held a red check in all his life.

"What are the Wild Waves Saying?" knew very well that they were reproaching him for running away from Long Branch without paying his hotel bill.

"Who Will Care for Mother Now?" Who, indeed? You took the old woman to the poor house just before writing the song, and there is nobody but the poormaster to care for her now.

"Hear Me Norma," was deaf and dumb. He couldn't make his pa hear, nor ma.

"My Mother, Dear," used to thrash the old woman within an inch of her life.

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Mr. Meyer, in his new and elegant premises, will be able to better accommodate his numerous patrons. 7-bg

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsable house. 7-bg

Family Oyster Rooms.

It is fashionable for ladies, now-a-days, to go to Joe Girsti's new Family Oyster Rooms, 105 California Market, for their meals: Joe, with natural gallantry, saves for them his finest oysters, the tenderest quails and the choicest chops and steaks. Open night and day. 9-bl

Still Unsatisfied.

The Danbury News Man in his last letter home, makes a clean breast of it in the following manner:

To be truthful, my secret longing in coming to Europe was to see a ruin. There is enough of romance about me to clothe a ruin—whether of church or of castle—with all the glory of chivalry. I hankered to get into a castle, to throw stones into the neglected moat, to hear my footsteps echo in the vacant corridors, to stand and meditate in the banqueting rooms, to stride through the lofty halls, and walk languidly up the grand but crumbling staircase. All the fictions of English and French origin have one or more ruins in them, and, looking upon them as the only remaining remnants of that grand and glorious past, they became endeared to me, and I thought, from a boy up, that if I could but go to Europe and see a ruined castle, I would be willing to give up my life and all its pleasures. I have seen the ruin, but the willingness spoken of has not yet got along.

Well Applied.

A lady undertook to chase the flies out of her room the other day with a towel-pin, when her husband, darting carelessly in, received a whack on the head which could be heard all over the house. Upon recovering his senses he gazed on her with a look of mingled pain and melancholy, only to remark: "I even wish that you were dead."

He Didn't Like It.

Butler told the Gloucester boys, in his speech the other day, "that he knew all the ropes in Washington," but when somebody asked him if he could pick out the one he was going to be hanged with, he just put his game eye "under his wing," and said nothing.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-oj

The Old Mint Restaurant,

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-x

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies. The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapmen & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-x

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks, and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 1-x

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the professian and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescord and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

Soldiers can depend on fair dealing. Information given free of charge. When writing enclose stamp for reply, and state company and regiment, and whether you have a discharge. Congress has extended the time for filing claims for additional Bounty and r Act of July 28, 1866, to January 1875, so all such claims must be made before that time. Original Bounty of $100 has been allowed all volunteers who enlisted before June 2d, 1861, for three years, if not paid the same when discharged. Land Warrants can be obtained for services rendered before 1855, but not for services in the late war. Pensions for late war and war of 1812 obtained and increased when allowed for less than disability warrants, but no pensions are allowed to Mexican and Florida war soldiers. State of Texas has granted Pensions to surviving veterans of Texas Revolution, New Orleans and Mobile. Prize Money is now due and being paid. W. H. How a Pedagogue Makes Love.

Mr. Mills, Southside School Superintendent, says the Indianapolis Sentinel, makes out examination questions for teachers in a way peculiar to himself, winding up every question with "If so, why?" or, "If not, why not?" One of the teachers tells this story about him: She says she boarded once at the same place where his "girl" boarded. One night he came, rang the bell, and asked the servant, "Is Miss —— in, and if so, why? Is she engaged, and how?" Then he went in, and the little tattletale, listening at the keyhole, heard him say, "My darling, do you love me? If not, why not?" After awhile—"Give a synopsis of your employment during the week. Analyze thoroughly and completely the state of your sentiments toward me." When he left, after kissing her, he remarked, "Be prepared on next Sunday, at half-past 2 p. m., to state, accurately and concisely, when, where, and by whom, and under what circumstances, our marriage shall be performed."

California Ahead.

When California does anything it is done in a style to make those people who live in the Eastern States burst with envy. They have two or three thunder storms a week during the Summer, but tell us what State ever got up such a brilliant electrical display as that of Monday night. It was beautiful and harmless. The canopy of Heaven was one sheet of flame and thousands of electrical serpents wriggled about playfully in the blaze. We don't often enjoy lightning, but when we do it is superior to the Eastern article—it beats even Jersey lightning.

An Obscure Hiding Place.

A down East gentleman showed considerable alarm the other evening when he discovered that his wife had loaned the family Bible. When he returned from the house where the Bible was, he brought with him $1,000, which he had placed in it for safe keeping.

Equal Rights.

A Fair Proposition.

The telegraph brought a very close condensation of Theodore Tilton's second statement which appeared in the Graphic. It comprises, among other interesting documents a letter from Mrs. Tilton to her husband, in which she says:

"Theodore, your past is safe with me, rolled up, put away never to be opened, though it is big with stains of various hue, unless you force me for the sake of my children and friends to discover it in self defense, or their defense. Would you suffer were I to cast a shadow on any lady whom you love? Certainly, if you have any manliness you would. Even so every word, look, or intimation against Mrs. B, though I be in no wise brought in, is an agony beyond the piercing of myself a hundred times."

Further on she says:

"Once again I implore you for your children's sake, to whom you have a duty in this matter that my past be buried—left with me and my God. He is merciful. Will you, His son, be like Him?"

Mrs. Tilton, we see from the above, was willing to balance accounts and declare a stand off. If Tilton would say nothing about the man she loved, she would be willing to refrain from hurting the feelings of any lady whom he loved. Really every one in this business seemed inclined to behave decently and unselfishly, except that wretched selfish sensualist, the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, pastor of Plymouth Church.

Mrs. Harriet Beecher.

Some surprise has been expressed because nothing has been heard from Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe in connection with the scandal. She hasn't been idle she has written a letter to the Rev. William H. Allen of Burnley, England, and he has published it in the London Christian World. Here is an extract from it:

Your letter to my dear brother in this season of trial is most cheering and most helpful. It is a true communion of saints, when, from across an ocean, the hand of Christian fellowship is stretched, and we feel that there is a real unity of all who love the Lord Jesus. It is my comfort so thoroughly to know that my brother is suffering for his very faithfulness to the spirit and teachings of his master.

Beecher is a martyr, but he will tell lies. All the Beechers, hen and shes, may stand up on their hind legs and howl till doomsday, but they can't make the world believe that Beecher is honest.

So Very Simple.

On your head place a divers' helmet. On your hands wear steel gauntlets. On your feet put spiked fishing boots. On your breast fix a small railway buffer. Stand firmly with your back touching a stone wall. And then you may fire the Martini-Henry rifle with some chance of not finding your shoulder black and blue, your cheek bleeding, or yourself knocked on your back, from recoil and kick together.

Heavenly Boston!

A stranger has been to Boston, and he writes home to Washington thus: "Think of a hackman taking one in a clean, comfortable carriage through the length of the city, with baggage, for fifty cents—and no bargain made beforehand."

Acquiring Fame.

The fact that General Beauregard has been made President of a base ball club, is bringing him prominently into public notice. One exchange says: "He will now probably not accept the position offered in the Argentine Republic."

Left His Card.

There is yet nothing to mark the burial place of Charles Sumner, in Mount Auburn cemetery, but a visiting card fastened to a take, on which is written, "Charles Sumner's Grave."

A Working Woman:

George Sand is seventy years old and is said to to have earned $600,000 by her pen since she began to write.

After Confession.

The Burlington Hawkeye says:

There is a man living on Fifth street who is a good man, endeavoring to train up his children in the way they should go, and as his flock is numerous and two of them are boys, he has anything but a sinecure in this training business. Only a day or two ago the elder of these male olive-branches, who has lived about fourteen wicked years, enticed his younger brother, who has had only ten years' experience in boyish deviltry, to go out on the river in a boat, a species of pastime which their father had many a time forbidden. Both the boys went this time, trusting to luck to conceal their depravity from the knowledge of their pa, and in due time they returned, and walked around the house, the two most innocent loooking boys in Burlington. They separated for a few moments, and at the expiration of that time the elder was suddenly confronted by the father, who requested a private interview in the usual place, and the pair adjourned to a woodshed, where, after brief but highly-spirited performances, in which the boy appeared most successfully as "heavy villain," and his father took his favorite role of "first old man," the curtain went down, and the boy, considerably mystified, sought his brother.

"John," he said, "who do you suppose told? Have you been licked?

John's face will not look more peaceful and resigned when it is in his coffin than it did as he replied:

"No; have you?"

"Have I? Come down to the cow-shed and look at my back."

John declined, but said:

"Well, Bill, I'll tell you how father found us out. I am tired of acting in this way, and I ain't going to run away and come home and lie about it any more. I'm going to do better after this, and so when I saw father I couldn't help it, and went right to him and confessed."

Bill was touched at the manly action on the part of his younger brother. It found a tender place in the bad boy's heart, and he was visibly affected by it. But he asked:

"How did it happen the old man didn't lick you?"

"Well," said the penitent young reformer, "you see I didn't confess on myself, I only confessed on you; that was the way of it.

A strange, cold light glittered in Bill's eyes.

"Only confessed on me!" he said. "Well, that's all right, but come down behind the cow-shed and look at my back."

And when they got there * * *

An Urgent Appeal.

The Richmond Journal says:

A few nights ago, an hour after midnight, Justice Potter was awakened by some one pounding on his door. He arose and asked what was wanted, and a voice replied that he must go over to Mascomb street and marry a couple.

"Go home, mister, this is no hour to marry any one," he replied.

"But I can't wait," called the man, his voice betraying great anxiety.

"But you'll have to."

"Oh! come now, Judge," coaxed the man. "I want to make a dead sure thing of it. I have been courting and courting, and she's hung off and hung off, but I've finally got her to say 'Yes,' and there is no knowing how long the fit'll last. Git up and make tracks right away, for she's worth two cows and a horse and wagon!"

His Honor couldn't resist the appeal, and the marriage was solemnized at two o'clock in the morning.

Logan English.

"Almost quite too exceedingly trying" is one of the favorite phrases in Olive Logan's new play.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend. "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins'd
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Soldiers can depend on fair dealing. Information given free of charge. When writing enclose stamp for reply, and state company, regiment, and whether you have a discharge. Congress has extended the time for filing claims for additional Bounty under Act of July 28, 1866, to January 1875, so all such claims must be made before that time. Original Bounty of $100 has been allowed all volunteers who enlisted before July 2d, 1861, for three years, if not paid the same when discharged. Land Warrants can be obtained for services rendered before 1856, but not for services in the late war. Pensions for late war and war of 1812 obtained and increased when allowed for less than disability warrants, but no pensions are allowed to Mexican and Florida war soldiers. State of Texas has granted Pensions to surviving veterans of Texas Revolution. New Orleans and Mobile Prize Money is now due and being paid. W. H. PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—The Black Crook Company play at the Metropolitan Theatre up to Friday, when they had to leave to take the steamer for Mexico. They drew good houses.

SAN JOSE.—Last night, the Luque Spanish Dramatic Company performed at the San Jose Opera House. They will give another another entertainment this evening. On Monday, when the Fair commences, the Templeton Star Alliance will begin an engagement at the Opera House. The bill will consist of the drama of "Dora," and Fay Templeton in her specialties. New scenery has been painted for the theatre by Carl Browne.

GRASS VALLEY.—Montgomery Queen's Great Show exhibited here on the 30th ult.

SAN JUAN.—Last Sunday Montgomery Queen's Great Show gave an exhibition which drew a large crowd.

VIRGINIA CITY.—On Monday William Gill, an actor of excell nt attainments and high reputation in Australia, who has as yet failed to get an opening in San Francisco, commenced an engagement at Piper's Opera House, with Miss Rose Bain (Mrs. Gill) and the stock company. The Footlights of Tuesday says: "Fettered," an intensely emotional drama, from the pen of Watts Phillips, Esq., was produced in excellent style. Mr. Gill acquitted himself admirably in the part of "Tom Pitt," displaying to fine advantage his ability as a comedian of the first water. Miss Rose Bain is a lady of splendid personal appearance, with brilliant black eyes, and one of the sweetest of faces. Her acting in the difficult part of Mrs. Fortescue was marked with a great deal of power. We will say further concerning it to-morrow. The after piece "A Regular Fix" is indeed a screaming farce and provoked bursts of mirth and merriment.

The same bill was given on the following evening. On Wednesday, the bill consisted of "The Flowers of the Forest" and "The Toodles." On Thursday evening "The Colleen Bawn" was produced with W. Gill as Myles Na Coppaleen and Miss Rose Bain as Eily O'Connor. Dr. Healy's Hibernian Gems will be exhibited on the 7th.

PORTLAND.—Mrs. Fanny Morgan Phelps opened the Oro Fino Theatre on the 25th ult. Miss Amy Stone appeared in the drama of "Cigarette." On Monday, "The Pearl of Savoy" constituted the bill, and Robert Fulford made his first appearance. On the 26, the San Francisco Circus closed after doing pretty good business for rainy weather.

SALEM.—Morrill's San Francisco Minstrels were at Reed's Opera House on the 28th ult. They have engaged a building on the Fair ground and will play during the Fair.

FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

No less than five London theatres are advertised "to let" viz: The Princess', Queen's, Royalty, Holborn and Holborn Amphitheatre. Why doesn't Bouciault go back?

Miss Minnie Walton, who is traveling with Mr. Sothern, was very favorably received by the Edinburgh (Scotland) critics.

Mr. John L. Hall, a well-known Australian and American comedian, is engaged for the St. James Theatre, London.

Lydia Thompson's Troupe, augmented by Alfred Bishop, opened the season at the Charing Cross Theatre, London.

"Chancarty" has had its 150th representation at the Olympic, London.

Mr. J. B Clarke is playing a short engagement at the Adelphi, London.

"La Fille de Madame Angot" was revived on the 7th, at the Lyceum, London, with Miss Emily Soldene as Mlle. Lange.

Mrs. John Wood is playing in "An American Lady," at the Gaiety Theatre, Glasgow, Scotland.

Miss Rose Coghlan accompanied Mr. Barry Sullivan as leading lady on his farewell provincial tour in England.

In reply to a proffered engagement at the Imperial Opera of Vienna, Madame Christine Nilsson has demanded the modest sum of 5,000 francs ($1,929) a night, and half the gross receipts over and above the sum of 15,000 francs. The director has asked for time to consider his decision—and to take breath.

How long an operatic artist takes to learn his or her part is frequently a subject of discussion, but we question, says the London Graphic, whether all singers would accept the following conditions, copied from the engagement of a French artiste: "M. X. undertakes to learn one act of an opera or operetta in a week, two acts in ten days, three acts in twelve days, four and five acts in a fortnight." Fancy learning the part of Raoul, in the "Huguenots," in a couple of weeks!

Theodore Wachtel, son of the tenor, and himself a tenor singer at the Court Theatre of Dessau, has taken leave of the stage for the reason given in the following: "To my former respected colleagues; I announce that, having lost my voice, I have abandoned the stage and returned to the trade to which I was apprenticed. I have commenced business at Dessau as a jeweler in gold and silver, and keep a large stock, which I recommend to my fellow artists, and promise them my goods at very moderate prices. Any order from any part shall be promptly and conscientiously executed.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
White mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins,
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call such nice dinners.
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain!
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 5-r

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Mr. Meyer, in his new and elegant premises, will be able to better accommodate his numerous patrons. 7-bg

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies. The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-I

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. SATURDAY.....OCTOBER 2, 1874

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

MAGUIRE'S NEW THEATRE.—Mlle. Marie Zoe, the Cuban Sylph, has appeared every evening this week, the play of "Nita," and in the melo-drama of "The Broken Sword" in each of which she has done some spirited acting and won considerable applause. E. D. Davies who appears nightly at this house is, as was the case when he made his previous visit to this city, the sensation of the day. He is irresistibly funny. His entertainment is always new and original, and his local hits are wonderfully sharp. He will appear at the matinee to-day, to-night and to-morrow night.

OPERA HOUSE.—Lottie and Frank in their daring act entitled "Transvolation," Billy Emerson in his most original specialties, Billy Rice in his lecture on Astronomy and Billy Arlington, Ben Cotton, J. R. Kemble and others in amusing acts, present an entertainment hard to beat. The bill which has crowded this house during the week will be repeated at the matinee to-day, to-night and to-morrow night.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—"The Hunchback" was performed last night. How well Henry Edwards plays Master Walter every one is well aware. Miss Pateman acted the part of Helen well, and Robert Pateman was an excellent Modus. At the matinee to-day and again this evening "Christie Johnstone" will be performed. There is not a character in Mrs. Chanfrau's repertoire in which she appears to so good advantage as in that of the hearty Scotch girl. There should be a good house to-night, when Mrs. Chanfrau makes her last appearance.

NEW BELLA UNION THEATRE. — The entertainment given at this theatre is of a very varied description. The bill always comprises a good piece well played. Last night in addition to the burlesque of "Pygmalion and his Gal-a-Dear" in which Miss Lizzie Watson and Harry Braham appeared. "The Ticket of Leave Man" was well performed with Miss Kate Raymond as Sam Willoughby, O. B. Collins as Hawkshaw, H. R. Archer, as Bob Brierly, Miss Fanny Young as Mrs. Willoughby, and a generally good cast. The same bill will be played to-night.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE. — Johnny Thorn continues a great favorite at this house and with Ned Buckley, Miss Ida May, Frank Mortimore, Hughey Robinson and other favorites succeeds in keeping the audience thoroughly amused. The bill for to-night and to-morrow night is published on our first page.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—More novelties. There are always thousands of attractions at these gardens. On Sunday next Mons. Baisley will make an ascension in the Gas Balloon Sierra Nevada, and start for a long trip. On Saturday and Sunday Little Sallie Parker character songstress and Ash and Parker song and dance men, will appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms. Guido Mangenberg, the proprietor, gets up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

GRAND SUNDAY EXCURSION.—The steamer Antelope leaves San Francisco every Saturday at 2:30 P. M. and on Sunday at 8 A. M. from Front Street Wharf, connecting with the cars of the S. F. & N. P. Railroad at Donahue for Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Healdsburg and Cloverdale. Excursion tickets are issued at reduced rates, and are good from Saturday to Monday. Those who wish to enjoy a little country air at the end of the week could not choose a finer trip than this excursion offers. Last excursion trip of the season Sunday October 4th.

EXCURSION TO GREEN POINT, ALVISO, SAN JOSE AND SANTA CLARA.—To accommodate excursionists, the swift and elegant steamer Pilot will leave Front-street Wharf on Sunday, Oct. 4th, at 10 o'clock A. M., affording the cheapest and most pleasant excursion on the Bay. Excursion tickets to Green Point and Alviso and return $1: excursion tickets to San Jose and Santa Clara and return, $1 50.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain Railroad.

NOTES.—The New York Spirit of the Times says: That wonderful hat which Raymond wears every night at the Park Theatre as Col. Sellers was worn from Australia to San Francisco some years ago by the lamented Walter Montgomery. He gave it to Mr. Raymond in exchange for a "tile" which didn't attract so much attention from the young hoodlums, who generally saluted it with "shoot it!" or "hoist with a derrick!" or "cut it up and sell the pieces!" etc. It is a marvellous character hat, and ought to make Raymond's fortune; in fact there's "millions in it," we mean, of course, metaphorically.

Miss Helen Tracy is engaged at Booth's Theatre.

On Monday, Frank Mayo our California actor who since he was in this city ten years ago playing leading business at Maguire's Opera House, has won golden opinions from all sorts of people in colder climes, will make his appearance at the California Theatre. The play will be "Davy Crockett." Mr. Mayo is accompanied by Miss Rosa Rand, whom we remember as a very pleasing and promising actress about seven years ago, and who since she left California, has made rapid progress in her profession. "Davy Crockett" caused a veritable sensation in Boston a short time ago and will doubtless prove as great a success here as it did on the occasion of its former production.

On Monday Harry Richards the famous comic and character singer, and Miss Carrie Richards comedienne and vocalist, will make their first appearance at Maguire's New Theatre. Manager Maguire seems determined to have half a dozen star performers at the same time at each of his houses. The public certainly get the worth of their money.

Miss Ann Eliza Young, nineteenth wife of Brigham Young, will deliver her lecture entitled "My Life in Bondage," at Mercantile Library Hall, on Monday and Tuesday evenings of next week.

Madame Anna Bishop's farewell concert will take place at Platt's Hall on Wednesday evening October 7th.

A very good programme was well performed last night at Platt's Hall when the complimentary benefit tendered to J. G. Russell and W. F. Baker came off. Miss Marian Singer, Mrs Eunice Barstow, Signor Carmini Morley and others appeared.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, the opera season at the Academy of Music opened very successfully on the 26th ult. with "La Traviata." Mlle. Marie Heilbron appeared as Violetta, Signor Benfratelli as Alfredo, and Signor Del Puente as Germont. On Wednesday evening "Aida" was performed, and Signor Carl Carpi, the tenor, made his debut, and achieved a great success as Radames. Mlle. Potentini sang the role of Aida.....The season of French Opera Bouffe at the Lyceum Theatre, terminates on the 7th of October, in order to open the way for Miss Neilson and the English dramatic company, which will on the 19th commence its brief season. Prior to the termination of the opera bouffe campaign, however, "La Fille du Madame Angot" will be revived, for the purpose of introducing M. Dequercy, the new tenor from the Paris Opera Comique, who will make his debut in this opera, with Mlle. Aimee and a far stronger distribution of all the leading roles than has ever previously been presented to the New York public.....The Deluge" continues to be the attraction at Niblo's.....At the Olympic Theatre, Howard Paul, the protean performer made his appearance on the 21st ult.....At Booth's Theatre, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams are playing in Charles Gayler's drama "The Connie Soogah".....At Fifth Avenue Theatre "The School for Scandal" continues to be a great attraction. Daly has copyrighted his "arrangement" of it..... John T. Raymond is drawing crowded houses at the Park Theatre in Mark Twain's "Gilded Age." The criticisms of the actor and the piece in the New York papers agree in every point with what FIGARO said when the play was produced at the California Theatre.....At Wallack's, J. L. Toole was playing in H. J. Byron's drama entitled "Dearer than Life".....They have a Shakesperian revival at the Bowery Theatre—"Macbeth" with J. G. Coggeswell, our California actor, in the title role. Go East, young actor, to be appreciated..... E. L. Davenport was playing in "Richelieu," at Wood's Museum.....At the Theatre Comique, Harrigan and Hart, Miss Emma Day, Miss Kitty O'Neil and other favorites were engaged.....The latest addition to the company at the Metropolitan Theatre was Miss Minnie Loder, who has become a great favorite in the East. Go East young woman, to be appreciated.....At Union Square Theatre the regular season commenced on the 21st, when Miss Clara Morris appeared in "The Sphinx"..... Mackin and Wilson, song and dance men, have lately joined the San Francisco Minstrels....Bob Hart is king pin of Bryant's Minstrels. ....At Tony Pastor's, Gus Williams, the Dutch comedian is a whole company in himself.

Mrs. F. B. Lander is due at the Grand Opera House, Cincinnati on October 5th.

The New York Dispatch says: A series of entertainments of remarkable novelty and merit may be looked forward to at the Lyceum Theatre, where the Soldene English Opera Bouffe Company will appear early in November. The performances of this troupe have won for it, in England, an immense reputation. For three years past, Miss Emily Soldene and her artists have been steadily kept at work delighting London and its provinces. They interpret the whole opera bouffe repertoire, and do so with unsurpassable vivacity, and with an ensemble hardly attainable, even on the French stage. Just now, the company is fulfilling a farewell engagement in London. Miss Soluene first came into notice at the Philharmonic Theatre in "Genevieve de Brabant," and the splendid representations of this opera immediately transformed the once unknown house into a favorite place of resort of the fashion of the metropolis. Since that period English Opera Bouffe, as rendered by Miss Emily Soldene and her matchless company, has been a staple article among amusements of the capital. The correctness, dash and sympathy of the recitals will, it is believed, commend them with equally flattering results, to the approval of New York audiences.

Fred McCabe, a clever English artist, who can himself, unaided, more thoroughly entertain an audience than any man now on the parlor stage, opens at Steinway Hall on October 14th.

Miss Ada Dyas will play the role of Lady Clancarty on the production of the drama of that name at Wallack's Theatre, during the regular season.

Mr. Augustin Daly and Miss Fanny Morant have come to terms, and the latter remains at Union Square Theatre for the season.

Mrs. J. B. Booth opens at Robinson's Opera House, Cincinnati, on October 5th.

Miss Carlotta LeClercq is in Boston visiting friends.

Mr. John McCullough has purchased from Messrs. George W. Hows and W. L. Alden the right to produce their romantic drama, "Two Lives," in California. It will be brought out at the California Theatre, San Francisco, during the present season, with entirely new scenery and effects.

After Miss Charlotte Cushman's engagement in New York, she will make a farewell appearance as an actress on the Philadelphia stage, supported by the company of Booth's Theatre and under the management of Jarrett & Palmer, at the Academy of Music there. She will apear for six nights only, begining Nov. 9.

Paul Falk, proprietor of the Tivoli Gardens in New York, was struck with apoplexy on the 13th ult.

The celebrated and prosperous Berger Family of Swiss Bell Ringers, Ladies' Orchestra, and Ladies' Silver Cornet Band, have been entirely reorganized and reconstructed for the current season, with Fred G. Berger, manager; W. W. Fowler, business manager; and Charles H. Pratt, advance agent.

Joe Emmett and company, New Brunswick, N. J., 29th ult.

The following is the route of the Blaisdell Comedy Company, with John Dillon, Grand Island, Oct 1; North Platt, 2d; Cheyenne, 5th and 6th; Denver, 7th one week; thence back to Cheyenne, one night, and through to San Francisco.

Robert McWade, Robinson's Opera House, Cincinnatti, 21st.

Little Nell, the California Diamond, commenced an engagement at Rochester on the 21st ult., in the new play "No Name."

The Philadelphia City Item of the 24th ult., speaking of the reproduction of "The Geneva Cross" at the Chestnut Street Theatre says: "The Geneva Cross" was brought out at the Walnut last season, with Miss Clara Morris as Gabrielle. Even her charming performance only made it hold the boards a week. The piece, although cleverly constructed, and mounted with the exquisite taste the Walnut can display, when so disposed, made no direct impression upon the public. They were pleased, but there it ended. They were satisfied with having seen it once, and it would require an effort (something a Philadelphia audience, proverbially cold, is not accustomed to,) to witness it a second time.

But the play made a hit in New York! True, but most successes in the "Empire City," seem to be inspired by causes that have no accord here. The same may be said of Boston where "Dora," after proving utterly "flat, stale and profitless" to a New York audience, made a brilliant success!

The New York Spirit of the Times speaking of "The Sphinx" says: Mlle. Favart first essayed the role of Blanche de Chelles outside of Paris, and presented the original version of "The Sphinx" in London. It was a total failure. Mlle. Beatrice, an actress who achieved a complete success in London as Frou-Frou, playing in English, next produced Mr. Campbell Clarke's adaptation of "The Sphinx" in Edinburgh with a similar result. But this was attributed to the apathy of the "canny Scot" for dramatic art, and she rushed off to London for the fame the Scottish nation would not accord to her. Her company was selected with care, and included such actors as Wenman, Harvie, Dewhurst, Carter-Edwards, and Miss Louie Moodie; the adaptation was careful and scholarly. None of the adjuncts to success, however, could make it go, and "The Sphinx failed for the third time. It was produced in this city on Monday evening last, and we cannot chronicle for it the triumph its friends calculated upon. No one, who has read the many reviews of this play in European journals, will deny that Orolette's death scene, which ends the play, was the sole cause of its remarkable success in Paris. Robbed of this terrible melo-dramatic sensation there is nothing either in its incident, plot, situation, or language to make it a good play. Without it, it would have been simply another diagnosis of impure and guilty passion. The hideous and novel death incident was added to make the subject, worn and hackneyed even in libidinous Paris, more attractive, and the "sensation," not the play, was the raison d'etre of "The Sphinx." Paris is not the world, thank Heaven, and we are not all Frenchmen. We do not care for these various phases of French life. We find no diversion in the torture of others, and the sight of a fellow-creature suffering agonies, which are as impossible for our pen to describe as it is for the artist to paint a dying groan, is revolting to our natures. On these grounds, therefore, "The Sphinx" can never attain popularity in this country, if indeed, anywhere beyond Paris. Clara Morris with all her strong talents, and Miss Charlotte Thompson's imperturbable sweetness, which hangs like a halo around the black picture, cannot accomplish it. The many admirable resources of company, scenery and appointments which have made the Union Square Theatre noted throughout the land cannot make the play triumph over prejudices. Looking at this death-scene in a purely artistic view, we pronounce it unnatural and inartistic. The intense suffering portrayed by Miss Morris passes that point where the best writers tells us nature would give way and succumb. No human system could stand up under such terrific and protracted torture. Unconsciousness or death would intervene before those painful and unreal convulsions could manifest themselves. No woman's nervous system could endure them an instant.

LETTER FROM ST. LOUIS.

[FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT.]

ST. LOUIS, September 22d.

DEAR FIGARO:—Theatricals, at present, in St. Louis, are buoyant, both the Olympic and DeBar's, have excellent companies, the one at the former is pronounced the best ever seen here. The season opened at both theatres on the 7th, with Baker and Farron in "Chris and Lena," at the Olympic, and Edwin Adams in "Enoch Arden" at DeBars. Mr. Adams filled in the time the late Mark Smith would have played. Dominick Murray is playing "Willy Reilly" to good business at the Olympic. On Thursday next, his new drama of "Escaped From Sing Sing," will be produced and will continue the balance of the week. Next week is the last of his engagement here, he presents two new plays "Quinn the Actor" and "A Fool of Love." The "Sphinx" is being played at DeBars this week with Miss Jane Coombs as the stellar attraction. Both the lady and the play have been received much favor by the public. Speaking of the plays, by the way, it will not be amiss to say that Charles R. Pope has in active rehersal his new biblical play of "Samson," the piece is a truthful translation from the Italian of Ypelite D'Aste, by W. D. Howell of the Atlantic Monthly. Scenic artists, costumers, and others are pushing things rapidly with a view to its production on the 5th proximo. "Samson" will be played one week, and it is said to be the most gorgeous affair ever got up in this city. Deagles Variety Theatre is being well attended, as is also Mitchell's Theatre Comique. The companies at both theatres are excellent.

Opera House.

Lottie and Frank in their tremendous feat entitled "Transvolation," J. R. Kemble, Billy Rice, and Billy Arlington in their great circus, Billy Emerson in first part and interlude, Billy Rice in a burlesque lecture, Ernest Linden in prima donna airs, and a great variety of other attractions are offered at this house to-night.

California Theatre.

To-night the favorite actor Frank Mayo, will make his appearance at this theatre in the title role of his play "Davy Crockett." Miss Rosa Rand will make her first appearance in many years in San Francisco, and will assume the role of Eleanor Vaughn. Mrs. Judah, John Wilson, and Nelson Decker are in the cast. New scenery has been painted expressly for this play, and the scene of the hut with the wolves trying to force their way in, will be more effectively presented than before.

Maguire's New Theatre.

There is no end to the attractions at this house. To-night M. D. Davies the ventriloquist, who is a host in himself, will appear in his original entertainment; the dashing Mlle. Marie Zoe will play Narramattah, in the romantic drama entitled "The Wept of Wish-to-Wish." Harry Rickards the famous character vocalist will present his original impersonations, "Beautiful Girls," "Brown the Tragedian," "The Gal Wot I Calls Mine," and "General Jinks" and Miss Carrie Rickards will appear with Mr. Rickards in The Roman Fall and the Grecian Bend. There will certainly be an overflowing house to-night.

Bella Union Theatre.

This theatre is in the full tide of success. To-night that excellent actor Harry Thompson will make his reappearance; he will play Bob Brierly in the "Ticket of Leave Man." Harry Braham will sing his famous songs "Brown the Tragedian," and "Behold Me, a Poor Married Man." The full programme is published on our first page.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Ned Buckley, Hughey Robinson, Johnny Tuers, Miss Sadie Zelma, Miss Katie Zoe, and a great number of other favorites will appear to-night in an attractive bill.

Woodward's Gardens.

These gardens are in beautiful order at present. On Sunday next the Baisley Family will take a farewell benefit and present a grand bill. The Hot Creek Indians will appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Mechanics' Institute Fair.

The Ninth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute closed Saturday night, after running 41 days. The Fair has been a success. The total receipts for admission were $79 460.

Notes.

The lioness in Montgomery Queen's Menagerie, gave birth to four cubs at Georgetown, El Dorado county, October 2d.

Montgomery Queen's Circus and Menagerie will winter in this city. Mr. Queen is undecided whether to give entertainments or make a still Winter of it.

We take the following from the Alta: Mr. Barton Hill, Manager of the California Theatre, received news on Thursday of the death of his father. Charles John Hill, in New Jersey, of cancerous formation in the œsophagus. Mr. Hill, senior, was Stage Manager for Elliston, in 1832; filled the same position in the theatre of Mrs. Macready, in Bristol, in 1836, was Manager of the Surrey Theatre, London, in 1838; and afterwards Manager of his own theatre in Cheltenham, Gloucester and Brighton: came to America in 1841; played light comedy parts in the Old Park Theatre, New York; and managed the principal theatres in Boston; also in Cincinnati, Louisville, and other large cities of the United States. Mr. Hill was widely known among the old theatre-goers, and respected by all, both in the olden and later times. His son can be assured of the condolence of all his friends in his sad bereavement.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the east,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Gerville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 209 Sutter street near Kearny. 8-bg

S. Tobiman, the renowned Stove & Crockery dealer so long established on Third St., has removed to his Magnificent new store 216 Sixth St between Howard & Folsom, where he will be pleased to meet his old friends and customers. 7-bg

Fresh and Sweet.

Results of a Bride's Little Joke;

The Menasha, Wisconsin Press relates the following:

Out in the town of Harrison, Calumet county, about eleven miles from Menasha, a wedding occurred but a few weeks ago, the particulars of which we have just been told. Previous to the happy event, arrangements were made for a wedding tour of several days' duration. In due time the ceremony was performed, and at a proper period the bride was conducted to her chamber. The happy husband soon followed, and having reached the door rapped gently, but listened in vain for the anticipated welcome. He knocked again, more nervously than before, but still no answer was heard. He gently raised the latch; the door was locked. He called to the little mischief within, but she answered him not, and he was finally compelled to seek other quarters. At an early hour in the morning, the carriage which had been engaged for the wedding tour was driven to the door, and our hero stole gently down stairs, entered the the carriage, bade the driver apply the lash, and was soon out of sight. He did not return until after the lapse of ten days, during which time he visited every place contemplated previous to his marriage. On his return he found his wife's bedroom door open! yes, he did. You bet!

Where He Had the Advantage.

Just at the close of the war of 1812, a United States man-of-war entered Boston harbor. The Commodore was known as a bully of the first water. Entering a barber's shop in Boston, and finding no one but the boy present, he demanded in an insolent and overbearing way, "Where is your master?" "Not down, yet, sir." "Well, I want to be shaved." "Yes, sir, I can shave you." "You?" "Yes, sir!" "Well, you may try it, but look here, my youngster,"—laying his loaded pistol on the table—"the first drop of blood you draw on my face I'll shoot you." "All right, sir, was the reply. The boy shaved him, and did it well. After the operation was through, the bully turned to him as he took up the pistol, and remarked, "Weren't you afraid?" "No sir," retorted the boy. "Didn't you believe I would shoot you?" "Yes, sir." "Then why weren't you afraid?" The boy very coolly replied, "Because I had the advantage." "Advantage, how?" demanded the irate bully. "Why," said the boy, with the utmost nonchalance, "if I had drawn blood, I should have taken the razor and cut your throat from ear to ear!" The bully turned pale, but never forgot the lesson.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-r

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Mr. Meyer, in his new and elegant premises, will be able to better accommodate his numerous patrons. 7-bg

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies. The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-r

Great Bargains in Clothing:

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Pesser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks, and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-r

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the professian and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescoed and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. r

A Circus of Fleas.

The latest excitement in Berlin is the exhibition of drilled fleas. The exhibition takes place on a large slip of white paper fastened upon an ordinary table, to which all the spectators approach in turn, so as to be able to witness in all details the extraordinary manœuvres of these little, but marvelously powerful and gifted rascals. Here you see one of the muscular fleas rolling a small barrel along with his feet, as the men do in the circus; there you see a slim, voluptuously built madam of the species walking along in crinoline and carrying her parasol, with all the affectation of a city miss; at another place a well trained fellow performs on the flying trapeze—without any danger of his neck, however, since the biggest fall would not hurt that; while below the trapeze, on the paper, a host of little ones are turning somersaults at a fearful rate. The largest specimens of the collection have been trained to draw wagons, drays, carriages, etc. To fix the harness properly on them, the flea tamer places his pupils on a piece of paper covered with mucilage, where they have to stick. He then, by aid of a watchmaker's loop, arranges a strong gold thread around their bodies and attaches it to the wagon or carriage. The ladies of Berlin attend the exhibition in large numbers, and seem to take an extraordinary delight in the performance of the little creatures, who are fed regularly every morning from the arm of the great flea tamer.

An Enterprising City Editor.

Four hundred and seventy-seven persons who met our city editor on Friday, after the balloon ascension, says the Cleveland Leader, took a fiendish delight in pelting him with such taunts as: "Fraid to go, wuzzent ye?" "Dassent go up in the b'loon, dast ye?" "Fore I'd be a coward!" ad infinitum. He "denies the allegations and defies the alligators." He wishes to say to all such evil-minded persons that he did go up in the balloon. While the concern was loafing about the west side, before shooting over the lake, he saw a horse running away on Detroit street, dragging after him a man, a woman, and thirteen small children. Supposing they would all be killed, and this would make a more exciting "item" than the balloon affair, he jumped out, being only about a half mile up. Guiding his descent with consummate skill, he alighted squarely upon the top of St. Malachi's Church steeple. Pausing awhile to get his breath, he then "shinned down the steeple and went about his business. He was back on the east side within an hour. He hopes the above will prove satisfactory.

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 706 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-r

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. B. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 212 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. 8

MONDAY.....OCTOBER 5, 1874

At it Again.

McRoberts of the Call went up in a balloon again yesterday. It is surprising how lessons of experience are thrown away on some men. Now, here is a man who on his last balloon trip was kept out all night, and would have broken his neck in the descent made on a pine tree top, near the summit of the Sierra Nevadas, if a stout pair of breeches had not caught on a projecting limb and thereby saved his life. As it was the breeches were torn in a vital part. One such thrilling experience would have served as a warning to any reasonable man, but it has no apparent effect upon the miserable irreclaimable balloonatic of the Call. Ah, how strong our conviction is that it will be our unpleasant duty to write poor Mac's biography some day, if Harry Andrews doesn't put a stop to his going up in balloons!

An Indignant Composer.

Verdi is highly indignant at learning that his Requiem Mass has been executed at Ferrara in a circus with quite insufficient soloists and chorus; at Bologna his work has been still more shamefully treated, as it has been given there with a simple pianforte accompaniment. The composer has written to his publisher to ask if the law does not give him any protection against such abuses, and if so, to demand the most rigorous application of it.

Called for an Explanation.

During the recent flood in Middlefield, N. Y., a little five year old boy, when the water had reached the height of two or three feet around the house in which he was, fell upon his knees and uttered the following prayer: "O, Lord, I don't like this; take it away. You said when you set your bow in the skies, you would have no more floods. Now, how is this? Amen."

Cowardly.

The Plymouth Church people gave Beecher a tremendous reception on his return from his vacation. The telegraph says:

Their room was beautifully decorated with flowers and banners, on which latter was inscribed the word "Love."

The cowards didn't dare put "Free Love" on their banners, but that is what they meant. Beecher is endorsed.

The Spasmodic School.

The late Sydney Dobell belonged, according to the Pall Mall Gazette, to the spasmodic school of poets, of which Alexander Smith and Gerald Massey were the only other disciples. This trio used to be seen walking down Prince's street, Edinburgh, of evenings, arm-in-arm.

If you see a new set of furs going along Kearny street encircling a pretty face you will be justified in asserting that it is the champion pretty girl; and all the fellows will believe you.

The next man to go up in a balloon Coroner Rice.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen!
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend. "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins'll
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Ocean House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

THE IDIOTIC NEWS LETTER.

Those who remember the News Letter, when A. Bierce, wrote the Town Crier department, can scarcely recognize the paper as it is now. It is still alive and drags out a miserable weakly existence. That a Jackass is editing the Town Crier department, at present, is sufficiently proved by the following, which appeared in Saturday's issue:

FIGARO comes out as an art journal. It has always been our humble opinion that San Francisco was better on cocktails than on art, but FIGARO settles the matter. We are an artistic community. Dresden is nowhere; Munich a sham; Italy an artistic fraud. FIGARO says that no one need go to Europe to see pictures while Crocker's and Woodward's galleries are full. This relieves us infinitely. Whenever we feel like going to Europe, we'll take a trip to Woodward's instead. Thus has FIGARO torn the cobwebs from our musty fancies. Thus is the utter inferiority of artistic Europe fully proven. Great is FIGARO. Before forcing this down the throats of our readers, however, we beg to submit that the San Francisco School of Art is something entirely novel, a new Renaissance in fact, and that FIGARO among newspapers is unquestionably an ass.

In order that our readers (the majority of whom we are sure are not so thick headed as to be unable to appreciate satire) may be able to enjoy the exquisite idiocy of the above. We republish the article which called it forth:

"Judge Crocker's gallery of pictures recently purchased by him in Europe, has been on exhibition in Sacramento for the benefit of a local charity. The Bee of a recent date says:

"Woodward, of Woodward's Gardens, San Francisco, told our reporter to-day that he had just come from looking through Judge Crocker's gallery; and while there he fancied himself in Europe. "We talk," he said, "of going to Europe, to see pictures, while here they are at our very doors, and there are not many galleries in Europe superior to this one. I am surprised both at the number and quality of pictures it contains."

The same collection when it was exhibited in San Francisco, attracted but little attention, though the pictures were nearly all new and beautifully framed. It is pitiful how little our people appreciate Art. New Mr. Woodward, of Woodward's Gardens, who has been nearly all over Europe, gives his opinion. What does he say? He calmly and reflectively observes that "he fancied himself in Europe." It is really absurd for Californians to waste time and money in going to Europe for the purpose of studying Art, when an authority like Mr. Woodward, who has been there, remarks that there are not many galleries in Europe superior to that of Judge Crocker's. The collections of the Louvre, Brussels, the Vatican, the National Gallery of England, the Dulwich Gallery, and a few others will, we are sure, even such a connoisseur as Mr. Woodward will admit, compare favorably either with Judge Crocker's gallery or with the Art Gallery at Woodward's Gardens. The latter gallery we regret to observe, has lately lost some of its greatest works, Mr. Woodward having removed seventy-six of the paintings of Virgil Williams to his private residence. With our climate, our scenery, and our noble and accomplished art patrons, it will not be long before San Francisco instead of Rome, becomes the Mecca of devotees of Art."

After this we are ready to believe that if we were to say that the News Letter was the ablest, most honest and honorable of journals, the Town Crier man would swallow it all in, and would believe we were in dead earnest. The mysteries of nature are illimitable, but who could have supposed that any one would so deliberately write himself down an ass. Poor News Letter! We must cry ichabod.

"The Sphinx" in New York.

Octave Feuillet's drama, "The Sphinx," has been produced at the Union Square Theatre, New York, and has met with a questionable reception. The papers are not any too lavish in their praise. The World says:

"It is a story without a single redeeming trait of nobility in anybody. The character of the heroine is not only censurable, it is repugnant, and her loathsome death is an act of cowardice which not even the sophistry of French art can redeem."

"Of course, it was beautifully produced. But its performance in point of merit bore no resemblance to other works that have preceded it at this house. Miss Morris alone gave it the interest of an intensely emotional characterization, and in the matter of genuine passion it fell much below the standard of her abilities. Its general tone is artificial and sophisticated. Its characters are few and its plot is left to three of them after the first act. The one scene of the poisoning in the last act is painted and repulsive, and owes its success, if success it can be called, entirely to the theatric device by which Miss Morris heightened the ghastliness of her supposed dissolution."

"We find it impossible to bestow any praise upon the piece, and only a moderate amount of commendation upon the players. Mr. McKee Rankin, the Henri de Savigny, may be said to go through with the doubts and despairs of a weak-minded Frenchman with becoming ferocity; and Miss Thompson's lack of spontaneity became painfully apparent in the lighter and brighter comedy passages."

"The setting was simply superb, and, as usual, the scene-painter was honored, with all the other participants in the play, with a call. Owing to the long waits it was 12 o'clock before the piece concluded."

TUESDAY.....OCTOBER 6, 1874

Explained it to Her.

Yesterday morning, says the Detroit Free Press, an old lady, who lives in the West part of this county, was selling some butter to a grocer on Michigan avenue and some one mentioned something about the Beecher scandal. "What is that thing, anyhow?" asked the old lady. "It's been in the papers, but my eyes are poor, and I haven't felt like reading." "Well, it's just this," replied the grocer as he scraped out the crock; "you see, Beecher hired Mrs. Tilton to knit him twelve pair of socks, and when she got 'em done he tried to pass a counterfeit bill on her." "Is that so?" exclaimed the aged dame; "Well, I don't blame the papers a single bit for showing him up—he's worse'n a vagabond!"

Strong Milk.

A good story is told of a judge in Vermont well known as a pronounced teetotaler, to illustrate the value of some men's professions. Invited to attend some agricultural festival, the judge was asked upon his arrival if he would have a glass of milk, and upon responding "Yes," was proffered a glass of what looked like milk, but was, in fact, most potent milk punch. Taking a sip at first, the judge soon returned to the glass and drained it to the bottom, when he returned it to his entertainer with the exclamation: "Lord, what a cow!"

A Warning.

This is an item not to be printed in the Sunday School books: A crowd of bad boys went bathing in Skunk River, Iowa, on the Sabbath day, and while the Rev. Jabez Lyone was reproving them and vainly endeavoring to induce them to come out, a thunder-storm came up and the minister was killed by a flash of lightning. None of the boys were drowned.

Taking Precautions.

The New York Dispatch speaking of the church militant known as Plymouth says: Beecher has returned, and will preach today. It is rumored that Moulton will be present, but as the guns of the Roanoke command Plymouth Church and the United States troops in garrison hereabouts are ready to move at a moment's notice, no trouble is anticipated.

Bad.

The average Burlington, Iowa, saloonkeeper must be bad indeed! A learned divine in that city recently addressed one of them as follows: "Wretched man! If the bed of that river was bank-high with the suds of salvation, and a June rise of piety coming down from the mountains, there wouldn't be enough to wash your feet."

Pretty Dry.

It must indeed be dry in Kansas, if it be true as a local paper says, that "the suffering catfish lies stranded on the blistering bottom of his late happy home, waving his tail in the crisp breezes as a signal of distress."

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen!
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
Over which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and by their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style: just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins'g
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

New California Play.

The Sacramento Bee says:

Now that the Black Crooks, the Marionettes, the circuses, the Bonnicastlians, have come and gone, and Winter is coming, the amusement loving world is naturally thoughtful as to what will be produced in the future for its delectation. California has produced pieces for the stage—some of the sensational, some of the serio-spectacular, some of the low comedy, some of the dramatic and some of the literary order—which have made their mark, and many of which are still winning meeds of praise as well as dollars in various portions of the world. And the end is not yet, for like the making of books, so of the making of plays, there is no end. It has recently been our fortune to read a drama written by a citizen of Sacramento. Its author is the venerable George Chapman—himself a fine actor in a certain line of business—who comes of a line of play actors and playrights, as long as was the line of Banquo's succession that stretched out before Macbeth's troubled vision, and who in their various days and generations by their Thespic talents and acquirements, won applause and fame in nearly every clime. The title of this production is "Florence," and it is a fine dramatization of a thrilling romance. The story is laid in England, and is throughout full of startling interest. There is a baron, who is basely murdered and leaves a lovely daughter; a heavy villain who endeavors to steal the murdered baron's estates; the sinning widow of a wealthy gentleman who knows not his erring mother; a gypsy queen who has been betrayed by the gentleman, and a host of interesting minor characters. The author has handled his theme with the skill of an artist, producing a continued series of thrilling and startling effects and attractive scenery that are calculated to hold an audience entranced from the opening to the closing scene, and send them home well pleased with the manner in which modest virtue is in the end rewarded and daring villainy punished. There are at least some four first-class "parts" in this drama, while scarce one of the characters is of an insignificant nature, and it will require a first-class company to produce it properly: Though there have been some negotiations concerning the presentation of this piece, it has not been decided when or where it will be first produced. There is little doubt, however, that it will be produced before Sacramento and San Francisco audiences before the Winter is over, when no doubt, they will bestow upon it as warm commendation as a careful reading and analysis of the production has compelled us to award this excellent drama.

A Vigorous Drummer.

Quick, the comedian, who flourished one hundred and forty years ago, one day passing through Moorfields, was seized upon by a drummer of a furniture shop, who without ceremony pulled him in, and began puffing up his chairs and tables. Quick, being old and infirm, made but little resistance, but asked the man if he were master of the shop. "No, sir," said the drummer, "but I will fetch him immediately." The man returned with his master, to whom he put the same question—"Are you the master of the shop?" "Yes sir; what can I do for you?" "I want you just to hold your man a minute, while I go out."

Things.

An exchange asks: "Where does the cotton go?" We know where a good deal of it goes, but don't like to tell.

A circus lion is roaming around Weston, Missouri, and people have a good excuse for remaining away from prayer-meetings.

"Mary Jane, have you given the goldfish fresh water?" "No, ma'am. What's the use; they haven't drunk up what's in there yet."

When a young lady has to stay at home from a party on account of a sty on her eye, it is useless to tell her that providence doeth all things for the best.

"Of course we couldn't have him roaming around here and putting on Congressional airs," says a Nevada paper in explaining how a horse-thief came to his end.

The Indiana man who worked three days in a harvest field and received therefor a litter of pups, has come to the conclusion that it is not more currency we need but a better currency.

A New York State Quaker was found in a patch of grass behind a fence looking at a circus procession, and he turned it off by asking, "Friend, hast thee seen the kingbolt of my wagon around here?"

In Troy they throw red hot pennies to organ grinders. This action kills two birds with one cent. It records a charitable action in the eyes of the world and disables the hand organ man.

"The able Dobbs looked grander than ever on the rostrum," wrote Spriggins, of the Muckletown Telescope and People's Champion. "The able Dobbs looker grander than ever," was the fowl perversion of his intelligent compositor.

A Maine paper is publishing a list of all the accidents by drowning during the last forty or fifty years, and the little boys are greatly impressed by it, and frequently read the sad chronicle while waiting for their hair to dry after they come out of the river.

General Sherman won't talk about the Presidency, but interviewers still keep calling upon him, owing to a bad habit he has fallen into of asking, with thoughtless generosity, as soon as a reporter shows himself, "Young man, will you take brandy or grasshopper juice?"

Human nature is a grand and mysterious study, and no one can count on it with any safety. For instance, who would have thought that Mrs. Taylor, of Fort Scott, would have hung herself because her sister's hair would curl and her's wouldn't. Even straight-haired people have a few little things in this world living for.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

Long before the curtain rose last night the announcement "standing room only" was posted at the box office. Frank Mayo on making his appearance was received with vociferous applause and it was some time before the play was allowed to progress. Miss Rosa Rand is as pretty as ever, and made an interesting Eleanor Vaughn. The scenery was very good, the wolf scene being particularly well managed. Mr. Mayo has commenced his engagement auspiciously, and judging from the favor with which the performance was received last night will play a splendid engagement.

Maguire's New Theatre.

Mlle. Marie Zoe appeared to good advantage last night in the drama entitled "The Wept of Wishton-Wish," and J. S. Lindsay, who made his first appearance at this theatre on this occasion made a decidedly favorable impression in the character of Connanchet. After the play Harry Rickards, the London comic vocalist, who has lately arrived via Australia, made his appearance. He was decidedly nervous in his first song, but in his second and third attempts recovered himself, and won considerable applause. His "General Jinks" was a capital bit of character acting. Miss Carrie Rickards appeared with Mr. Rickards in "The Grecian Bend" and "Roman Fall" and E. D. Davies wound up the evening's entertainment with his wonderful ventriloquial performance.

Opera House.

Billy Emerson in his remarkably clever specialties, the charming Miss Katie and her brother Frank in the great act of Transvolation, Ben Cotton, Billy Rice, Billy Arlington, Ernest Linden and a host of others give an entertainment which can scarcely be equalled elsewhere. The after-piece entitled "More Suitors Than One" is a great success.

Platt's Music Hall.

To-morrow night, Madame Anna Bishop, the sweetest singer in the world, who is a verification of the saying "Bright things can never die," will give her last concert in San Francisco All the musical talent in the city will rally on this occasion to the support of one whom they delight to honor, and we are sure that the public will not be backward. Madame Anna Bishop will positively leave on the next Australian steamer. The programme is an excellent one. The great cantatrice will sing "Casta Diva," and we are sure when she is encored, will favor the audience with "Home, Sweet Home," though it is not on the programme. Stephen Marah the celebrated harpist, will, on this occasion, make his first appearance in America. Madame Bianchi will sing a duet with Madame Anna Bishop, Walter Campbell will sing the ballad, "Looking Back," Frank Gilder and Louis Boedecker will play Syaberg's duet from "Don Juan" arraigned for two pianos, Signor Morley will sing "My Own My Guiding Star," and altogether there will be a rich musical feast. The price of admission has been placed at fifty cent to all parts of the house.

Bella Union Theatre.

Miss Kate Raymond and O. B. Collins continue prime favorites at this house. The bill is a capital one, comprising the sterling play of "The Ticket of Leave Man," character impersonations by Harry Braham and Miss Lizzie Watson, and many other attractive performances.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

A new bill will be presented at this lively variety theatre to-night. It will comprise many favorite acts by popular performers. To-morrow evening Charley King the ethiopean comedian and banjoist, will make his first appearance.

Woodward's Gardens.

These gardens are in beautiful order at present. On Sunday next the Baisley Family will take a farewell benefit and present a grand bill. The Hot Creek Indians will appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 200 Sutter street near Kearny. 3-bg

Removal.

S. Kohlman, the renowned Stove & Crockery dealer so long established on Third St., has removed to his Magnificient new store 216 Sixth St between Howard & Folsom, where he will be pleased to meet his old friends and customers. 7-ze

CONVERSE.

BY HENRY J. VAN DYKE, JR.

I count that friendship little worth
Which hath not many things untold,
Great longings that no words can hold,
And passion-secrets waiting birth.

Along the slender wires of speech
Some message from the heart is sent;
But who can tell the whole that's meant?
Our dearest thoughts are out of reach.

I have not seen thee, though mine eyes
Hold now the image of thy face;
In vain, through form, I try to trace
The soul that loves: that deeper lies.

A thousand accidents control
Our meeting here. Clasp hand in hand,
And swear to meet me in that land
Where friends hold converse soul to soul.

Reforming Jenny Welch.

The Detroit Daily Free Press tells about it thus:

"I'm a lone woman," said Jenny Welch, as she was brought around to his Honor.

"I can't help it if you haven't a friend in America," he answered, motioning for the officer to come foward and swear.

"'Twas just a little drop—just a little tonic," she urged, as the officer went on to say that it was a bad case of drunkenness. He found her sitting on a doorstep, swinging her bonnet and singing:

"Fazzer, dear Fazzer, c' 'ome wis me now—
Clock in 'er zeeple strikes wun."

And she couldn't tell him where she lived, who she was, how many tomatoes she had canned this Fall, nor anything else:"

"I was just fooling, yer Honor," she put in, trying hard to laugh.

"It's my solemn duty to warn you, Jane Welch," he said, "that you are on the high road to degradation. This court is a hedge-fence, as it were, standing between you and misery, seasoned with sobs for breakfast and hashed up with tears and groans for supper."

"Is that so?" she asked greatly surprised.

"The solemn truth, madam," he answered. "This court—this hedge-fence—is going to send you to the house of correction for sixty days, with only a feeling of kindness. You will have time to reflect; your nose will lose its rosy hue; you'll have a chance to comb your hair and make yourself a bustle, and I have not a doubt that before you come out that you will have such high aims that a policeman can't get within ten rods of you."

She said she would if he thought it was best.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-aj

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-r

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Mr. Meyer, in his new and elegant premises, will be able to better accommodate his numerous patrons. 7-bg

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies, The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapmen & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-r

Great Bargains in Clothing:

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 1-x

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the professian and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescoed and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

From one tooth to a full upper set, from $5 to $20. Filling reasonable. By Dr. Crowell, D. D. S., No. 30 Kearny street, near Market. 2-j

Did Not Remember.

An amusing anecdote is told of a well known French General who played a conspicuous part in a cavalry charge. This gallant warrior had been severely wounded on that occasion, having received a sabre-cut on the head and a bullet in his left thigh. Such an allowance might have satisfied a man of quiet tastes, but was far from sufficient for the fire-eating General. In relating the charge, which he did at every dinner-party, he was in the habit of throwing in a half a dozen bayonet thrusts and a couple of stray splinters from a shell, and he invariably appealed for corroboration of his narrative to an aid-de-camp who had ridden by his side. On one occasion, having imbibed more than his usual allowance of '47 Chateau Yquem, he drew a more than usually startling picture of his riddled and perforated condition. A cannon ball had killed his horse, a dozen sabres had descended at once on his head, a couple of lances had passed through each of his arms, and all the bullets and bayonets of Germany seemed to have given each other a rendezvous in his body! "You remember it well, don't you?" he added, turning to his aid-de-camp. The well-trained subaltern had suffered long in silence. The bayonets, bullets, lances, etc., he had got used to by long practice, but the cannon ball was the last straw that broke the camel's back. "No, General, I don't remember it. How could you expect me? You know as well as I do that the very cannon ball that killed your horse struck the breastplate of a cuirassier behind us, and then bounded back and took my head off!"

An Example for Beecher.

If Beecher was as spunky as that Missouri preacher he would have been out of the woods long ago. When they started a slander about the Missouri preacher he exclaimed from the pulpit: "This diabolical story about me and Mrs. Podhammer is an infernal lie, and if I can't snatch the son-of-a-saw-horse everlastingly bald-headed who started it, then pronounce me a bob-tailed purp and kick me ten miles hellwards."

THE CLIFF HOUSE,—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain Railroad.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms. Guido Mangenberg, the proprietor, gets up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on MRS. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-r

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 212 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. E

WEDNESDAY.....OCTOBER 7, 1874

Ah! Ah!

The following extract from the report of the proceedings of the Board of Supervisors of San Francisco, should fire the female heart to such an extent that the war for woman's rights be at once inaugurated:

The order prohibiting females from remaining or being in any place where liquors are sold between the hours of 6 o'clock P. M. and 6 o'clock A. M., was finally passed.

If the Board of Supervisors of San Francisco were to pass an ordinance prohibiting any persons regardless of sex, race or color from remaining or being in any place where liquors are sold, between the hours of six o'clock P. M. and 6 o'clock A. M. how very speedily such an ordinance would be carried before the Supreme Court of the United States, and be by it declared unconstitutional. Women and Indians appear to be the only beings in the United States who require special legislation in order to prevent them from becoming demoralized from the absorbtion of or contact with intoxicating liquors. The male American is perfectly able to take care of himself, but the female requires special legislation. We wonder if, in course of time, women cannot be educated up to the point where they can with safety be granted the same degree of liberty accorded to niggers.

We Should Think So.

The Philadelphia City Item says:

For some time past there has been on foot a movement to relieve the distress of Hans Christian Andersen. Now comes the said H. C. A., and being duly sworn, deposes and says he's pretty well to do, thank you. Still Hjalmer Hjorth Boyeson, whoever he is, recommends that such sums as have been collected be laid out in a present for the genial poet of childhood.

It would be a very jolly thing for every child in the world to subscribe a cent to buy something "nice" for the author of "The Ugly Duckling," whether he wanted it or not. Hans Christian Andersen has created as much happiness as any other writer who ever lived.

Anti-Cremation.

The first practical attempt to introduce cremation in England has not proved very successful. At West Hartlepool a member of the town council proposed that that mode of disposing of the dead should be adopted. His proposal did not find a single supporter, and it provoked an energetic protest from the women of the town, who mustered in great force in the council chamber, and clamorously urged the council to adhere to the Christian method of burial. Sir A. Thompson unfortunately was afterwards mobbed, and will probably not think it prudent to bring the subject again before a popular body.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen!
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here!
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that!
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name.
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

Feminine Vagaries.

If to her share some female errors fall,
Look on her face, and you'll forget them all.

The handsomest lady in a horse-car is not always the one that is passing fare.

There will be no post-office clerks in Heaven, unless the girls stop directing their letters "catti-cornered."

Sowing and reaping.—When a young lady hems handkerchiefs for a rich bachelor, she probably sews that she may reap.

An ignorant old lady was asked by a minister visiting her, if she had religion. She replied: "I have slight touches of it occasionally."

Anna Dickinson parts her short and curling hair on the side, instead of in the middle, so as not to be mistaken for a nice young man of the period.

According to a writer in the Gazette des Beaux Arts, woman's face is shorter by a tenth than that of man. In America we reckon it by quality, not quantity, good Gazette.

Some French novels bear the legend: "A mother need not forbid the reading to her daughters." This could not be used as a motto for the papers that published the Beecher-Tilton scandal.

A lady lately remarked to a well-known professor, whose services she had just engaged, "You will be pleased with my daughter as a pupil, I feel sure; she is exceedingly clever, and has such a nice heavy touch for sacred music."

Miss Jay, of Independence, Missouri, is not to be forced into a marriage against her will, for when her friends tried the experiment the other day she kicked the minister's hat off, knocked the young man down, and rode off on a mule, with one foot on each side of him.

Gold beads, as necklaces, from the single to the quadruple strand, are coming in use. The beads are either perfectly plain or chased, or, the handsomest, in alto-rilievo. When they are other than plain, only one row of beads is used, they being large and of beautiful workmanship.

A Rhode Island clergyman says that meeting a good woman soon after a great railway horror, she exclaimed, "Oh, Mr.——, such a terrible thing has happened! The engine and cars on the——— road collapsed, and before they could execrate the passengers twenty of them were sophisticated."

Whenever a person sitting alongside of a woman in the street car gets up to leave, in nine cases out of ten the woman will immediately try to spread herself so as to cover the vacant seat as well as her own. In the present scant-skirt fashion the effort to do this from mere force of habit is more funny than effective.

The jet is still used in profusion, but the newest thing out is the blue steel. This will be lavishly used for trimming dresses, polonaises, cloaks, and also bonnets and hats. All the new passementerie mingles the jet and blue steel with fine effect. In gimps and fringes the favorite designs for this season appear to be squares, diagonals, and other stiff, decided figures.

It is stated that the last new society formed is one of tourists who are going to scour England on tricycles, not bicycles; and ladies are also to be members. There is no indelicacy, says the promoters, in a lady using one. One gentleman and his wife "did" North Wales last summer, he taking the luggage and she the baby, and their pace was from eight to ten miles an hour.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

What Cheer Laundry

Is the best Laundry in San Francisco.

A Quiver Full.

"He that hath wife and children," quoth Lord Bacon, "hath given hostages to fortune, for they are impediments to great enterprises either of virtue or mischief." But old Mr. Rabun of Augusta, Georgia, has thirteen children, and in giving them their names he has most certainly shown great enterprise—though it is somewhat doubtful whether he was actuated by a virtuous or mischievous motive. In the case of the thirteenth child we are inclined to think that his intentions were not strictly honorable, for he knew the Borgia's, he must in all probability, have known the Borgia's character. However, here is a list of the Rabun offspring:—

1. Mary Ann Elizabeth.
2. Cornelia Ann Miranda Jane.
3. Effie Ann Savannah.
4. Sarah Ann Molissio Vaudusen Ianthies.
5. Drusilla Ann Frances Reena.
6. Lany Lucinda Eliza Willie Ann Alice.
7. Roxa Ann Archiba Margrate Amason.
8. Mazie Gerucia Ann Silvira.
9. Annginette Sefronie Martha Ann Erastus.
10. Eldora Matilda Louisa Ann Pilcher.
11. Pilcher Wicker Brinson Franklen Lee Beauregard Jackson Swain Estes. (The only son.)
12. Ella Ann Sansil Virgina Theodosia Milanta Eugenia Gibson.
13. Love Ann Estellaville Caladonia Desalonda Lucretis Borgia Neal.

If old Mr. Rabun is impeded in great enterprises, he believes in making the most of the opportunities of his station. He has but seven of his girls at work in a factory in Augusta, where they can earn together $150 a month clear of expenses. Happy, indeed, is the man who hath his quiver full of children like these.

CENTRE MARKET.

WHO OCCUPY THE STALLS.

Hepburn has opened stall 4, with fresh meats of all kinds. Families and restaurants supplied on the shortest notice.

Stall 38, Holm & Boyle have a splendid assortment butter, eggs, cheese and a general assortment of fancy groceries. Goods delivered free.

Stalls 39 and 40 are occupied by Kerlin & Hassard, dealers in fruits, vegetables, etc., o the best and freshest. Delivered free of charge.

BOSTON OYSTER HOUSE.—L. O. Pratt ha opened stalls 89 and 90 in Centre Market. Oysters in every style. Chops and Steaks of the choicest. Ladies private rooms up stairs. 7-z

Stalls 91, 92 and 93, have been opened by Anderson & Marshall as the Long Branch oyster house. They are among the oldest oyster men in the city.

The original "Swain's Bakery" is now established in their magnificent new place at 213 Sutter street, near Centre Market, and has added a lunch room and ice cream saloon. This is their only place of business.

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsable house. 7-bg

Family Oyster Rooms.

It is fashionable for ladies, now-a-days, to go to Joe Ginotti's new Family Oyster Rooms, 105 California Market, for their meals: Joe, with natural gallantry, saves for them his finest oysters, the fattest quails and the choicest chops and steaks. Open night and day. 9-bi

WAR CLAIM AGENCY

No. 34 Montgomery Block,

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

W. H. AIKEN, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW and Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic in California and Nevada, gives prompt attention to the collection of Additional Pay, now due California and Nevada Volunteers discharged more than three hundred miles from home. Soldiers can depend on fair dealing. Information given free of charge. When writing enclose stamp for reply, and state company and regiment, and whether you have a discharge. Congress has extended the time for filing claims for additional Bounty and Pay Act of July 28, 1866, to January 1875 so all such claims must be filed before that time. Original Bounty of $100 has been allowed all volunteers who enlisted before July 2d, 1861, for three years, if not paid the same when discharged. Land Warrants can be obtained for services rendered before 1861, but not for services in the late war. Pensions for late war and war of 1812 obtained and increased when allowed for less than disability warrants, but no pensions are allowed to Mexican and Florida war soldiers. State of Texas has granted Pensions to surviving veterans of Texas Revolution. New Orleans and Mexican Prize Money is now due and being paid. W. H. Aiken also attends to General Law and Collection Business. jy14-

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Maguire's New Theatre.

"The Wept of the Wish-ton-Wish," dramatized from one of Cooper's novels, with the clever Mlle. Marie Zoe in the character of Narramattah, the Indian girl, has made quite a success at this house, and with E. D. Davies the ventriloquist, and Harry Rickards and Miss Carrie Rickards in their character impersonations, afford an entertainment that cannot fail to please. The audience last night was very good.

Opera House.

Billy Emerson, Ben Cotton, J. G. Russell, Billy Rice, and a number of others appear in the first part performance at this house. The fascinating Katie, and the daring Frank nightly perform their great trapeze feat of "Transvolation," and J. R. Kemble, J. F. Oberist and others appear in amusing acts.

California Theatre.

Frank Mayo has opened his engagement very successfully. "Davy Crockett" drew another splendid house last night in every part of the theatre. The dress circle, the balcony, and the gallery were all full, and judging by the favor with which the performances were received, the piece will run for many nights. The beautiful set scene in the first act was the theme of universal praise.

Platt's Music Hall.

To-morrow night, Madame Anna Bishop, the sweetest singer in the world, who is a verification of the saying "Bright things can never die," will give her last concert in San Francisco. All the musical talent in the city will rally on this occasion to the support of one whom they delight to honor, and we are sure that the public will not be backward. Madame Anna Bishop will positively leave on the next Australian steamer. The programme is an excellent one. The great cantatrice will sing "Casta Diva," and we are sure when she is encored, will favor the audience with "Home, Sweet Home," though it is not on the programme. Stephen Marsh the celebrated harpist, will, on this occasion, make his first appearance in America. Madame Bianchi will sing a duet with Madame Anna Bishop, Walter Campbell will sing the ballad, "Looking Back," Frank Gilder and Louis Boedecker will play Syaberg's duet from "Don Juan" arraigned for two pianos, Signor Morley will sing "My Own My Guiding Star," and altogether there will be a rich musical feast. The price of admission has been placed at fifty cent to all parts of the house.

Bella Union Theatre.

Tom Taylor's drama of "The Ticket of Leave Man" is excellently performed at this house, with Harry Thompson as Bob Brierly, Miss Kate Raymond as Sam Willoughby, G. B. Gollins as Hawkshaw and a generally strong cast. Cook and Hart appears nightly in "The Mulchay Twins," Miss Lizzie Watson and Harry Braham in character songs and others in various specialties. The company has never been so strong at this theatre as it is at present.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

To night in addition to the many attractions, Charley King, Ethiopean comedian and banjoist, will make his first appearance at this house. Buckley's is now supplied with a big, working ventilator, and the audience is kept cool by its aid.

Woodward's Gardens.

These gardens are in beautiful order at present. On Sunday next the Buckley Family will take a farewell benefit and present a grand bill. The Hot Creek Indians will appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corvillie keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Night to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 269 Sutter street near Kearny. 8-bg

Washing Returned in One Day

And we never disappoint, at the What Cheer Laundry. No Chinamen employed.

Blankets and Flannels

Well washed and not spoiled, at the What Cheer Laundry.

TIRED MOTHERS.

A little elbow leans upon your knee,
Your tired knee that has so much to bear;
A child's dear eyes are looking lovingly
From underneath a thatch of tangled hair,
Perhaps you do not heed the velvet touch
Of warm, moist fingers holding yours so tight;
You do not prize this blessing overmuch;
You are almost too tired to pray to-night.

But it is blessedness. A year ago
I did not see it as I see to-day—
We're all so dull and thankless, and too slow
To catch the sunshine till it slips away,
And now it seems surpassing strange to me
That, while I wore the badge of motherhood,
I did not kiss more oft and tenderly
The little child that brought me only good.

And if, some night, when you sit down to rest,
You miss this elbow from your tired knee—
This restless, curly head from off your breast,
This lisping tongue that chatters constantly;
If from your own the dimpled hands had slipped,
And ne'er would nestle in your palm again;
If the feet into their grave had tripped,
I could not blame you for your heart-ache then.

I wonder so that mothers ever fret
At little children clinging to their gown;
Or that the footprints, when the days are wet,
Are ever black enough to make them frown,
If I could find a little muddy boot
Or cap or jacket on my chamber floor;
If I could kiss a rosy, restless foot,
And hear it patter in my home once more;

If I could mend a broken cart to-day,
To-morrow make a kite to reach the sky—
There is no woman in God's world could say
She was more blissfully content than I.
But, ah! the dainty pillow next my own
Is never rumpled by a shining head;
My singing birdling from its nest has flown;
The little boy I used to kiss is dead!

SELF-MADE MEN.

How often do we hear a man say, when speaking of his business, that he has more than he can attend to. With few rare exceptions, no one has ever built up a business that he can not attend to. Sometimes one will commence a small business, that, by some fortuitous circumstances—such as a good locality, or the want of some energetic man in that line in the same location, etc., and will find that his business has gone far ahead of his expectations, then he is apt to be satisfied with what comes to him without much effort on his part, and talk about having more than he can attend to.

Did one ever hear of Stewart, of Vanderbilt, or Scott, or in fact any of the self-made men of America, ever using the above-named phrase? On the contrary, all, or nearly all of this class of people commenced business in a small way, commensurate with their capital, and by constant application built up their business little by little until they became known to the whole mercantile world.

A large business cannot be built up in a day or a week, but by energy, fair dealing and moderate prices, it can be done in a short time. As a case in point, we will refer to Mr. P. Beamish, a merchant of this city, who, a few years since commenced business on a small scale, but with the determination of increasing that business as much as he could. It was early a principle with Mr. B. to buy for CASH and sell for CASH so that he had no bad debts to counteract the profits on his sales; particular attention was given to the fitting and making of White Shirts so that he soon became known throughout the city by the quality of his work, his low prices, etc.

One other point, Mr. B. has always been careful in, and that is, to GUARANTEE all of his goods to be as represented. His stock consists of probably the best selected and most complete lines of Gents' Furnishing Goods, White Shirts, etc., etc., on this coast. Mr. Beamish early recognized the fact that Market street was destined to become in time, the principal thoroughfare of the city, and being of that view, he took a lease of the store on the corner of Market and Third street (Nucleus building). It was not long before he had more business than he could accommodate—in the store he then occupied. So he leased the large store adjoining fronting on Market street, and stocked it with one of the most complete assortments of Gents' Ready Made Clothing to be found in this city. Mr. Beamish did not enlarge his business until his capital justified him in doing so, and result was that when he went into the wholesale market as a cash buyer, he not only obtained the latest and most desirable styles but he purchased at a low figure, and as he sells for cash, he, of course, has no outstanding debts, and can afford to sell his goods at a small profit. A visit to his store will convince every purchaser that the goods he sells cannot be bought elsewhere of equal quality at the same figure. This is one of the great secrets of his success. Mr. Beamish remarked to us that he had all sizes of over one hundred different styles of men's and boys. Linen Shirts constantly on hand in store, besides which he keeps employed a large number of practical shirt makers and experienced cutters to fit and make to order at his manufactory.

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies. The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapmen & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-r

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks, and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 8-r

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescoed and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts.

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 312 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required.

Cooley's new Dog.

Max Adeler says: Cooley has got a new dog, and I am sorry to say that he is exceedingly vicious; so vicious, indeed, that very few of the neighbors have courage enough to enter Cooley's yard. Judge Pitman, however, had to go in there the other day for the purpose of collecting a bill, and he told me that he wasn't a particle afraid, because he possessed the power of holding a wild animal with his eye. When he looked straight into the eyes of a dog, the brute quailed before his glance, and slunk away. He said it proved the superiority of a human being with a soul and a resolute will to the mere brute creation. So he opened the gate and went in. Cooley's dog heard him coming, and immediately flew to meet him. The Judge fixed his eye on the animal for the purpose of holding it, but the dog didn't seem to notice the circumstance. But still the Judge looked, and still the dog came on. Then it seemed to occur to the Judge that perhaps his kind of an eye might not hold this kind of a dog, and he suddenly moved toward the apple-tree, with a dog close behind him. He became panic-stricken, and made a furious effort to clamber up the trunk. He had just reached the first limb when the dog arrived, and made a snap at him. The dog's teeth caught in the lower part of the Judge's trouser-leg, and as it is a bull-dog, he held on; while the Judge lay across the limb on his stomach, out of breath, frightened and uncertain what to do. If he dropped, the dog would certainly eat him; if he climbed further up, he would have to take the dog with him. He had just made up his mind to stay where he was while his strength lasted, when he thought he heard the limb cracking, and then he yelled for help. Then Cooley came out, and after making the Judge promise to take 20 per cent. discount off of the bill, he pried open the dog's jaws with the kitchen poker, and dragged him into the stable. The Judge came down, hot, breathless and mad; and he has said to me since, privately, that the next time he wants to hold a dog with his eye he will impale him on a hay fork first. That is a safe way, anyhow.

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-r

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-r

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. THURSDAY.....OCTOBER 3, 1874

Don't Frighten the Children.

It is an old warning, but as treated anew in Scribner's may not be without effect: Never frighten children; dont shut them up in dark rooms; never let them comprehend what lightning is, or thunder, or take any notice of either in their presence. It is one of the most painful things in the world to see a child run to hide itself from a thunder-storm, and in nearly all cases where it does so, some one has blundered. Never attempt to control a child by making it believe that something terrible will happen to it; "Bogie" will catch it, or the "black man" will come for it, or some terrible spectre or other will haunt it. Those children who have been shut up in dark rooms as a punishment frequently feels the effects of such torture until late in life. It is strange how these terrors cling to the person in after life—become, as it were, engrafted into them, and so firmly fixed that reason can not dislodge them. A mother, therefore, that will use such means to compel obedience is weak, cruel and unwise; a nurse who employs them is simply unfit for her position.

Shakspeare.

The Grass Valley Union says: Who wrote Shakspeare's plays? That is the question now agitating the upper circles of the Bohemian world. Some think Lord Bacon did the writing, and others that Will Shakspeare is the genuine and original chap who did the thing. It does not matter much who is the author so long as we have the plays themselves. The gift is the grand thing and the giver is not of great moment. We are inclined to think that the San Francisco Sunday Chronicle has already settled the question. Some months ago that paper in puffing Bouciault, said that he resembled as to his head and face the picture of Shakspeare. Now if Shakspeare was a humbug and a fraud, what is to become of that estimate of the Chronicle's favorite play writer. We cannot stand idly by and see the modern dramatist taken down from such a pedestal. We vote that Shakspeare did his own writing—that he even wrote Hamlet.

Distinguished Visitors Coming.

Goldsmith Maid, Gloster and Judge Fullerton are en-route for California. The two latter named horses will probably be entered for the trotting premiums of the Bay District Fair Association to come off October 1st and November 7th. The Maid trotted against her time at Dexter Park, Chicago, yesterday, making 2:17½ and 2:17. Gloster and Fullerton trotted for half the gate-money, Gloster taking the three straight heats in 2:22; 2:23¼ and 2:22.

Very True.

A recent visitor to San Francisco says that lending money at high rates of interest seems to be the engrossing idea of its people. This may be very profitable to those engaged in it, but it does not develop the great resources of California.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here,
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

A Crying Outrage.

An Eastern humorist thus discourses on unmelodious sounds:

It was Lycurgus, I believe, who remarked that a "cat has nine lives." Mr. Partridge, on Thursday night last, thought he had discovered a couple of cats which had fifteen apiece. It was his first night at home, after spending the Summer in the country; and about one o'clock he was awakened by some unusually loud caterwauling, apparently in Bowman's yard next door. He arose, went to the window and ejaculated "Scat!" several times, but without effect. The noise continued. Then he fumbled around in the closet for an old boot and projected that at the spot where thought the cats were. There was a momentary lull, but in a minute or two the screeching became more vociferous than ever. Mr. P. went for another boot, and hurled it with terific force into Bowman's yard, and then he followed it with another, and then the noise became a positive shriek. Partridge was gradually getting excited; and dashing in the closet he scooped up all the boots on the floor and the bootjack and after flinging them over Bowman's fence in quick succession, but without stopping the serenade, he danced around in a frenzy and fired off everything he could lay his hands on. Mrs. Partridge's gaiters, the soap cup, the towel rack, the pomatum jug, the cologne bottle, the footstool, Mrs. Partridge's hoops, the hair brushes, the wax fruit, the hymn book and plaster image of little Samuel saying his prayers in a night-shirt with a stubby-nosed angel in a bolster-case watching him—all these things were hurled furiously at the unseen cats; and still the duet proceeded. At last when all the available material in the room excepting the bedstead and Mrs. Partridge had been flung away, Partridge rushed down stairs for his gun and emptied both barrels into Bowman's dining-room shutters. When Bowman appeared at the back window and exclaimed:

"What in thunder is the matter?"

"Matter?" shouted Partridge, "why I'm trying to stop those diabolical cats in your yard."

"What cats?" inquired Bowman, "I don't see any cats."

"But you can hear 'em, can't you? They have been yowling around there for the last two hours like fury. There they go. Don't you hear that? Just listen to that will, you?"

"Partridge, you certainly must be drunk. Cats! Why, good gracious, man, those are Mrs. Bowman's twins over here in our room. They were born last Friday. Didn't you hear about it?"

Then Partridge suddenly shut the window down and went to bed. He is going out into the country again, to stay until it is cold enough to sleep with the window shut.

A Methodical Temperance Man.

"I'm a temperance man, gentlemen. I never was intoxicated in my life." He was holding forth in a bar-room. "But I take my liquor. I despise a man that gets drunk; he's unfit for any decent company. I take a few drinks; a couple before breakfast; then I go down town, and when I reach my place of business I take a couple more to make my food digest. About eleven o'clock I go out and take two or three so that I can get up an appetite for dinner. At dinner I always take a couple of brandies; they aid to steady the head and hand for the work of the afternoon. I then return to the office and take a nap. After this nap I write a few letters, and than I go out and take three drinks to recover from the fatigue of the day. Then I go home, and just before going to bed I take three drinks more to induce sleep. I am a methodical man, gentleman. I am a temperance man, and I despise a man that drinks so as to get drunk." He looked like a temperance man. His nose was ruby-colored, and his breath was something different from new-mown hay. But we admire a man who lives by method.

A Howl from the Righteous.

Sectarians say: "Lo, how the ungodly triumph, they glorify themselves in the besmirchment of Beecher and make it a cause of railing against Christianty." Sweet godly people the ungodly don't dislike your godliness they only object to your claim that being "godly" with the smallest of g's, changes the nature of a man. The good man who is a Christian is, if no better, certainly no worse for being one and he wears his Christianity be it of the Methodist, Episcopalian, Catholic, Baptist or Congregational pattern with such a grace that it becomes him well. H. W. B., the man at present severely under discussion does not represent Christianity, does not represent the goldly. He represents the money-making clergyman, the man whose religion is his trade, who laughs at his congregation, who does not give his flock his true ideas, the man who is a well-fed, sleek, sham. If the "righteous" think it worth their while to support such as these, then it must necessarily follow that the number of those who profess no principle, but act well, will increase, and the "professional" Christians, will fall into disrepute.

Anecdote of Wm. Sharon.

"Van Jacqelin," in the Reese River Reveille, relates the following:

A short time ago Sharon was sitting in his room in Virginia, where entered a gentleman from the "Great East," who after introducing himself, told Mr. Sharon that he was a "hell of a politician over 'our' way," and that he wanted to borrow one hundred dollars to get home on, having thoughtlessly expended the few hundred he brought over with him. Said he: "Mr. Sharon, I'm agoin' to work and vote for you any way, whether you give me the money or not; but I want to get to putting in big licks for you as quickly as possible." After listening to his story, Sharon said: "See here my friend, maybe you don't know that I am building a big hotel in San Francisco, and that it's taking about all the money I can rustle."

"Stop," said the applicant, "I don't want the money; I wouldn't have it; for I'll be dog-goned if that hotel shall stop for ONE little old hundred dollars."

Opera House.

Billy Emerson, Ben Cotton, J. G. Russell, and others appear in the first part, the daring little Katie, and the fearless Frank perform their great trapeze feat, Ernest Linden appears in his burlesque prima donna performance, Billy Emerson introduces some of his best specialties, and altogether a very lively entertainment is given.

California Theatre.

"Davy Crockett," a purely American drama, which has made a great success in Boston, is doing a good business at this theatre with Frank Mayo and Miss Rosa Rand in the leading characters. San Francisco is more apt to accept the endorsement of Boston than New York in dramatic matters.

Maguire's New Theatre.

The dashing and attractive Mlle. Marie Roe is in the last week of her engagement at this house. She will appear this evening as Narramattah in "The Wept of Wish-ton-Wish," Harry Rickards and Miss Carrie Rickards will appear in their original sketches, and the incomparable E. D. Davies will give his ventriloquial entertainment.

Bella Union Theatre.

Miss Kate Raymond, O. B. Collins, Harry Thompson, Miss Fanny Young, Harry Braham, Miss Lizzie Watson and a host of others appear nightly at this theatre in a brilliant programme, which is published on our first page.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

"The Four O'Clock Train," "The Tobacconist's Daughter" and "Before the Dawn," are some of the acts to be performed here to-night.

Woodward's Gardens.

These gardens are in beautiful order at present. On Sunday next the Buckley Family will take a farewell benefit and present a grand bill. The Hot Creek Indians will appear.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Notes.

Wilson's Circus is at present at Omaha, and will shortly return to San Francisco and open a Winter season at the Pavilion with a newly organized company of Eastern performers.

The farewell concert of Madame Anna Bishop given at Platt's Hall last night drew a crowded house, and the programme was excellently rendered. The beneficiary sang delightfully. Stephen Marsh the harpist, who made his first appearance in San Francisco, on this occasion, won much applause. Signora Bianchi, Mrs. Blake, Signor Carmini Morley and others acquitted themselves well.

Montgomery Queen was in town yesterday; he expresses himself well pleased with the result of his visit to California.

The Opera House and Art Association, on Mission street, have mortgaged their property to H. F. Dorland for $16,000, for four months, at one per cent. a month. All former liens will be removed and the work will be rapidly pushed forward to completion.

The telegram brings the news of the death of Professor August Siegrist, which occurred at Jersey City, yesterday. Siegrist was well known in San Francisco.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-aj

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 209 Sutter street near Kearny. 8-bg

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies. The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapmen & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-z

Removal.

S. Kohlman, the renowned Stove & Crockery dealer so long established on Third St., has removed to his Magnificent new store 216 Sixth St between Howard & Folsom, where he will be pleased to meet his old friends and customers. 7-bo

A MORMON HYMN.

We have left the land of Egypt
For the place of our desire;
Fallen is the gated city
And the woe whereof is dire;
The boughs of the tree are withered,
And the women set them on fire.

Lo! who is he that cometh
In the name of the Holy One?
The bearers of gladsome tidings
Before his path way run;
He bringeth us out of darkness,
As the star that brings the sun.

Hail, all hail to the prophet,
Whose reign begins to-day!
Who hath laid his firm foundations
In the dust of the world's decay;
He maketh the dry bough blossom;
He gathers the sheep that stray.

Make haste, beloved Zion!
The porch and the chamber shine:
We have gathered the myrrh and manna,
And filled the flagons with wine;
Now comfort the souls of thy daughters,
As the Lord shall comfort thine.

Bayard Taylor's Mormon Tragedy "The Prophet".

SELF-MADE MEN.

How often do we hear a man say, when speaking of his business, that he has more than he can attend to. With few rare exceptions, no one has ever built up a business that he can not attend to. Sometimes one will commence a small business, that, by some fortuitous circumstances—such as a good locality, or the want of some energetic man in that line in the same location, etc., and will find that his business has gone far ahead of his expectations, then he is apt to be satisfied with what comes to him without much effort on his part, and talk about having more than he can attend to.

Did one ever hear of Stewart, of Vanderbilt, or Scott, or in fact any of the self-made men of America, ever using the above-named phrase? On the contrary, all, or nearly all of this class of people commenced business in a small way, commensurate with their capital, and by constant application built up their business little by little until they became known to the whole mercantile world.

A large business cannot be built up in a day or a week, but by energy, fair dealing and moderate prices, it can be done in a short time. As a case in point, we will refer to Mr. P. Beamish, a merchant of this city, who, a few years since commenced business on a small scale, but with the determination of increasing that business as much as he could. It was early a principle with Mr. B. to buy for CASH and sell for CASH so that he had no bad debts to counteract the profits on his sales: particular attention was given to the fitting and making of White Shirts so that he soon became known throughout the city by the quality of his work, his low prices, etc.

One other point, Mr. B. has always been careful in, and that is, to GUARANTEE all of his goods to be as represented. His stock consists of probably the best selected and most complete lines of Gents' Furnishing Goods, White Shirts, etc., etc., on this coast. Mr. Beamish early recognized the fact that Market street was destined to become in time, the principal thoroughfare of the city, and being of that view, he took a lease of the store on the corner of Market and Third street (Nucleus building). It was not long before he had more business than he could accommodate—in the store he then occupied. So he leased the large store adjoining fronting on Market street, and stocked it with one of the most complete assortments of Gents' Ready Made Clothing to be found in this city. Mr. Beamish did not enlarge his business until his capital justified him in doing so, and result was that when he went into the wholesale market as a cash buyer, he not only obtained the latest and most desirable styles but he purchased at a low figure, and as he sells for cash, he, of course, has no outstanding debts, and can afford to sell his goods at a small profit. A visit to his store will convince every purchaser that the goods he sells cannot be bought elsewhere of equal quality at the same figure. This is one of the great secrets of his success. Mr. Beamish remarked to us that he had all sizes of over one hundred different styles of men's and boys. Linen Shirts constantly on hand in store, besides which he keeps employed a large number of practical shirt makers and experienced cutters to fit and make to order at his manufactory.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it,

"Emerson Gorville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Mens and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 8-z

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescoed and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. B. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 213 Kearny street, from 1 to 3 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. x

An Old Maid Badly Fooled.

A Phoenixville maid, quite old, becoming anxious about her matrimonial chances, recently concocted a plan to deceive a young fellow as to her age. This is the way she tried it: The old family Bible contained a faithful record of all births, marriages and deaths. This volume the maiden took to her chamber, and selecting the birth page, she managed by dint of scratching and writing to change the date of her birth to a period eleven years later than what it had legitimately been recorded. Then the Bible was placed on the sitting-room table in a conspicuous manner. That evening came along the lover. He soon began to finger with the Bible pages, and finally reached the birth record, where and when he discovered, to his surprise, than his Angelina was just one year younger than he. He thought it strange, as she appeared older. He kept his mouth shut and continued to fumble over the pages. Next he began reading the death list, and the very astonishing discovery that the radiant maiden, according to the Bible, had actually been born ten years after the decease of her father! The young man quietly arose and bid Angelina good-by, and now swears that "eternal vigilance is indeed the price of liberty."

The Skeleton Mania.

The mania for "thinness" has of late years seized upon the young Parisian ladies, and has been carried on to an extent that has seriously injured their health. They have declined all solid food, and existed on sweets and pastry. This phantom fashion, as it has been called, has already made some martyrs. One of the most brilliant actresses has lost her good looks through the starving diet to which the Moloch of fashion condemned her, and another had a narrow chance of losing her life. Fortunately, however, the high rate of mortality among these French votaries of Banting has aroused the attention of lookers-on, and a stop will probably be put to the absurd practice before long. It has been called the "transparency" fashion, since its object was to render its followers as much as possible like anatomical studies.

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-z

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-z

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. FRIDAY.....OCTOBER 9, 1874

Berkeley.

The formal inauguration of the Berkeley Ferry Company, yesterday, was a very pleasant affair. A large party of excursionists left the city on the company's ferry at 1 o'clock, and after a most pleasant sail of forty minutes, were landed at the Berkeley wharf. The wharf is 1 300 feet in length and most substantially constructed. The guests were marched to a large willow grove near the shore, and were invited to partake o a substantial lunch, spread out on temporary tables. After which speeches and dances followed. Berkeley, in its present condition, is what Oakland was eighteen years ago, the most natural site for a town in the vicinity of San Francisco. It joins Oakland on the North, and possesses the same natural advantages of location, being on the same level plateau of land, and when we consider the great increase of manufactures and imigrat on, it will doubtless become what Oakland now is, in less than that period of time. The establishment of a direct and cheap ferry communication with this city, and the completion of the railroad from the ferry landing to the University, will do wonders for Berkeley. It will at once give the new town an impetus and will be of incalculable benefit to all property in the vicinity. The boat at present makes three trips a day, the time table can be found in an adjoining column. On Sunday the new boat Berkeley, will be put on in addition and extra trips will be made for that day. Berkeley lies directly opposite the Golden Gate, is backed by a rich and rapidly growing country, and is evidently the coming new town.

An Important Question.

The Sacramento Bee asks: May men be waiters in liquor saloons after night, while women are denied that privilege? In other words, have men civil rights superior to women? This is a question that the Supreme Court may soon be called upon to decide arising out of the action of the San Francisco authorities in prohibiting girls from waiting in liquor saloons after night

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell.
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins'g
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name.
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they dook, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

Miss Clara Morris in "The Sphinx."

Toreador the dramatic feuilletonist of the New York Courier says:

You know that Croisette, the French actress, drove all Paris wild over her marvellous performance of the death scene in Octave Feuillet's "Sphinx." Well, our bonnie Clara is doing precisely the same thing for New Yorkers. She wades through three acts of the play, ranting and generally misbehaving herself, and then, all at once, she startles us all with a vivid and terrible piece of realism that is almost revolting in its horrible naturalness.

You remember how she died according to regulation in "Camile." It is no such death in "The Sphinx." The other was sheer artifice—here are art and artifice combined.

The Parisian critics said that when Croisette put the handkerchief to her mouth, after quaffing the supposed poisoned chalice, that it contained a subtle drug that changed the character and complexion of her face. I have been told, by those who should know, that the marvellous change in her countenance was effected by means of a wig that was made to come down low on her forehead, and was raised, by mechanical means, when the sublime moment came. Clara Morris does not depend upon her wig for the effect, but has some means of changing her face that is to be discovered.

Joe Howard said it was soap, on the first night.

Mrs. T. said it was horrid.

One half of the audience shuddered, all of it applauded.

I thought it was a wonderful piece of art.

Here was this woman with the wondrous eyes, frothing at the mouth, her face distorted, and her body rent with the agony she was supposed to be undergoing.

She seemed to be transformed. The whole thing was done in five minutes, but into those five minutes she has crowded more real dramatic skill than she has shown us since the mad scene in "Article 47."

It matters not to me whether she has soap or powder in her mouth to produce froth. That is but an extraneous element of an artistic whole, and this whole is so remarkable as an art work that we are tempted not so much to look at the cause as the effect.

A Persistent Woman.

The statement floating about in the papers to the effect that "a jealous Indianapolis woman has just made her thirteenth ineffectual attempt at suicide," reminds us of the case of Mrs. Barker of Harrisburg. She attempted to poison herself twenty-three times, but was always saved by the judicious use of a stomach-pump, by her friends. She was life and hope and comfort and bread and butter to the newspaper reporters, and they thought so much of her that at last they got her up a little testimonial in the shape of a silver-plated stomach-pump, with a gutta percha piston and bell-metal valves inscribed with the sentiment, "May she never succeed!" Some of her friends gave a little collation at the time, and after it was eaten, somebody proposed to test the apparatus on one of the reporters. They say that the meeting then adjourned suddenly.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Marsh in the Arena.

Old John Wiggins, of Dayton, Ohio, had a son named Marsh, who, ever since he had been twelve years old had been circus struck. The boy thought that the life of a circus rider was all play and no work; was, in fact, for indolent natures, the height of mortal happiness, and he told his father, time and time again, that he wanted to become a bare-back rider, or a grand vaulter, and nothing else. In his seventeenth year Marsh Wiggins was an excellent horseman. He had trained his little pony tolerably well, and could perform several daring feats with him. But that was all he knew. His schoolmasters had never been able to teach him much. He could barely read and write. When his next birthday came around, old Wiggins asked Marsh if he still wanted to join a circus. Marsh replied emphatically in the affirmative. "Very well," rejoined the father, "you shall go, my son; but Marsh! don't come back to my house in a few weeks and tell me you are weary of that kind of a life." Marsh ridiculed the idea, and, when the next circus came to Dayton, an arrangement was made with the proprietor to take Marsh along with him. For a month old Wiggins heard no word from Marsh; but the father always confidently told his friends that he looked every day for the boy's return. He knew very well that a circus life was not the easy thing many fancied it. Sure enough, one morning Marsh made his appearance at the paternal home, with a most woebegone looking face and with ragged apparel. His father pretended to be highly surprised. "Are you here on a visit, Marsh? Have you come to show me your laurels?" he said. "No," said Marsh; "I have come back for good. I am sick of the circus." "Sick of the circus!" exclaimed the father, still feigning wonderment. "Were you not always anxious to become a circus rider? Whence this sudden change of mind?" Marsh hemmed and hawed a moment, and then said, with downcast eyes, "Father, I've got plenty of it. I thought it fun; but instead of play, I found it labor. Circus people are no idlers. They work night and day. I would not have minded that so much; but I enacted a monkey once, just for fun, and did it so well that the proprietor of the circus said I was gloriously fitted for playing it on horseback." Old Wiggins began to laugh. "What, the monkey?" he cried. "Yes, father, he thought I was a first-class monkey, so he dressed me up like a babboon, taught me to walk on all fours, to utter horrible shrieks, and to caper round the boxes every night. It was fine fun for a time and people laughed. But I soon got tired of it, and I thought the horses knew and hated me. They were scared when I acted the baboon, and they learned to like me just as little when I wore my ordinary clothes." Old Wiggins sent Marsh to school again, and nothing can prevail on the latter now to say that he belonged to the circus. The fact became apparent to him that the circus business required not only brains, but industry, and people who dislike exertion and yearn to make money without study and toil, need never find their way to the arena.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

The attractive American idyl of "Davy Crockett" with Frank Mayo in the title role, and Miss Rosa Rand as Eleanor Vaughn, will be played to-night and also at the matinee to-morrow. It is beautifully mounted and excellently played.

Maguire's New Theatre.

To-night and at the matinee to-morrow, Mlle. Zoe will appear in the romantic drama entitled "The Wept of the Wish-ton-Wish," the talented Richards in their parlor entertainment, and that funniest of ventriloquists, E. D. Davies, in his performance with the talking figures.

Opera House.

This house is always crowded. The bill which has delighted thousands during the week will be given again to-night and at the matinee to-morrow. It comprises the act of "Transvolation," Billy Emerson in his most admired specialties, and Ben Cotton, Billy Rice and others in a very attractive selection of acts.

Bella Union Theatre.

To-night a new bill will be presented at this house. The performance will commence with the male and female minstrels in a rattling first part. After this Miss Lizzie Watson will appear in character songs, Harry Braham in comic impersonations, and Miss Kate Raymond, O. B. Collins, Harry Thompson and the dramatic company in the nautical spectacular drama of "The Cabin Boy." The performance will conclude with the sketch entitled "Dutch Justice," with O. B. Collins in his famous character of Julius Hottenduffer.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Charley King, Ethiopian comedian and banjoist, the eccentric Johnny Tuers, Miss Ida Fisk, Hughey Boonisco, Frank Mortimore and a host of others will appear to-night in a great bill.

Woodward's Gardens.

These gardens are in beautiful order at present. On Sunday next the Baisley Family will take a farewell benefit and present a grand bill. The Hot Creek Indians will appear.

City Gardens.

On Sunday October 11th, and Monday the 12th, there will be a grand celebration of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus. The Italian military companies, and many American and German Military Associations will turn out on this occasion. A feature of the celebration will be the display made by the Fisherman's Association with the ship Santa Maria and the Gardener's Association with a triumphal car representing the Goddess of Agriculture. The festivities will wind up with a ball in the Pavilion.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc., printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-oj

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 200 Sutter street near Kearny. 3-bg

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies, The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapmen & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-r

Jones & Dunbar's.

W. G. Jones and J. W. Dunbar having purchased the Saloon under the Russ House, would be pleased to see all their friends and the public generally at their symposium. The saloon has been entirely re-decorated and re-furnished. 8-x

New Wine and Oyster House.

Mr A. Freeman, formerly under the California Theatre, has opened his new Wine and Oyster House, at 224 Sutter street opposite the Centre Market. Oysters fresh from the beds, and Wines of the finest brands. 8-

WISHING.

BY JOHN G. SAXE.

Of all amusements for the mind,
From logic down to fishing,
There isn't one that you can find
So very cheap as "wishing."
A very choice diversion too,
If we but rightly use it,
And not, as we are apt to do,
Pervert it, and abuse it.

I wish—a common wish indeed—
My purse was somewhat fatter,
That I might cheer the child of need,
And not my pride to flatter;
That I might make Oppression real,
As only gold can make it,
And break the Tyrant's rod of steel,
As only gold can break it,

I wish—That Sympathy and Love,
And every human passion,
That has its origin above,
Would come and keep in fashion;
That Scorn, and Jealousy, and Hate,
And every base emotion,
Were buried fifty fathoms deep,
Beneath the waves of Ocean?

I wish—that friends were always true,
And motives always pure;
I wish the good were not so few,
I wish the bad were fewer;
I wish that parsons ne'er forgot
To heed their pious teachings,
I wish that practicing was not
So different from preaching!

I wish—that modest worth might be
Appraised with truth and candor,
I wish that innocence were free
From treachery and slander;
I wish that men their vows would mind;
That women ne'er were rovers;
I wish that wives were always kind,
And husbands always lovers!

Fashion Notes.

The newest thing in earrings are slippers of painted wood.

Models of the "coming bonnet" are coming—across the ocean.

Heavy ribbed black silks will be very fashionable next winter.

Sashes are now tied low down on the front width of the dress and looped on the left side.

Beautiful suits of black velvet are imported for the winter. They are completely covered with beads.

Waists of evening dresses are to be trimmed with insertions of lace edged with real jet beads in profusion.

Long shawls of black cashmere, trimmed with lace and rows of beads down the back are very fashionable and stylish.

Less gold jewelry is worn now than for many years past. Jet, swiss wood, ebony and coral appear to be the most fashionable just at present.

It is no longer the correct thing to wear a long scarf of Spanish net about the neck. Of course this does not apply to shop girls and housemaids.

Leghorn hats untrimmed and ornamented by a wing or plume are affected by fashionable belles at the watering places for some reason or another.

Too Clever.

"What is your line?" asked the manager, of a comely little miss who applied at the stage door in answer to an advertisement for "talent." "Oh, me, I can do most anything," said she, "play farce, comedy or afterpieces, dance, sing or cry, wash dishes, scrub and do Claude to Pauline's "Lady of Lyons!" Ah, indeed," said the manager, waving her off, "I'm afraid you're too clever for our company.

Popularizing It.

In a Chicago library a book on "self-culture" never got a reader. The librarian had it rebound, and rechristened it "A Young Man on his Muscle," and anxious readers had to wait for weeks before they could get it.

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-r

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-x

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Mr. Meyer, in his new and elegant premises, will be able to better accommodate his numerous patrons. 7-bg

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the professian and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescoed and is now a modle of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. E. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 212 Kearny street, from 1 to 5 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required.

Coffin's Invention.

Max Adeler in the Danbury News says: Some time ago my friend Coffin invented a "Patent Swinging Berth," which was a sure preventive of sea sickness: A man who occupied one of these berths, so Coffin said, might sail out to China and back without a qualm of the stomach. In order to prove the efficacy of the invention, Coffin got permission to rig one up in a steamer running from Philadelphia to Boston, and he asked some friends along to see how splendidly it worked. While going down the river Coffin was in high spirits, talking incessantly. When the boat began to round Cape May he said he felt tired and wanted to lie down awhile. About an hour after the vessel got out upon the bosom of the ocean, Coffin pulled aside the curtains of the Patent Swinging Berth, and asked if the captain was on deck. He said he wanted to see the captain about something, and he insisted upon going up instead of having the captain come down to him. He rushed up the gangway suddenly, and then the captain, looking at his white face, asked him what had scared him so badly. Coffin hurried to the side instead of replying, and seemed to manifest an interest in the appearance of the sea water. Then the captain asked him if he was sick, and Coffin leaned further over the side. He seemed to be trying to bring up a breakfast that he ate during the early part of the Mexican war, and when he had worked pretty well down towards it, he asked the steward to carry him down stairs, as he was always weak when he had a bilious attack. The steward tried to place him in the Patent Berth, but Coffin said he believed he would lie on the sofa if the steward would bring him a tub. When I went to console him he said, "How soon will we be in Boston?" "In about thirty hours," I said. "Thirty hours!" explained Coffin. "Merciful Minerva! By that time I will have thrown up my boot-heels!" When we reached Boston Coffin asked the captain for an axe, with which he proceeded to smash the Patent Swinging Berth into splinters; then he tied the patent certificate to a brick and sunk it in the dock, and then he went home by rail. Coffin says he will go to Europe when somebody discovers a way of walking thither.

SELF-MADE MEN.

How often do we hear a man say, when speaking of his business, that he has more than he can attend to. With few rare exceptions, no one has ever built up a business that he can not attend to. Sometimes one will commence a small business, that, by some fortuitous circumstances—such as a good locality, or the want of some energetic man in that line in the same location, etc., and will find that his business has gone far ahead of his expectations, then he is apt to be satisfied with what comes to him without much effort on his part, and talk about having more than he can attend to.

Did one ever hear of Stewart, of Vanderbilt, or Scott, or in fact any of the self-made men of America, ever using the above-named phrase? On the contrary, all, or nearly all of this class of people commenced business in a small way, commensurate with their capital, and by constant application built up their business little by little until they became known to the whole mercantile world.

A large business cannot be built up in a day or a week, but by energy, fair dealing and moderate prices, it can be done in a short time. As a case in point, we will refer to Mr. P. Bamish, a merchant of this city, who, a few years since commenced business on a small scale, but with the determination of increasing that business as much as he could. It was early a principle with Mr. B. to buy for CASH and sell for CASH so that he had no bad debts to counteract the profits on his sales; particular attention was given to the fitting and making of White Shirts so that he soon became known throughout the city by the quality of his work, his low prices, etc.

One other point, Mr. B. has always been careful in, and that is, to GUARANTEE all of his goods to be as represented. His stock consists of probably the best selected and most complete lines of Gents Furnishing Goods, White Shirts, etc., etc., on this coast. Mr. Beamish early recognized the fact that Market street was destined to become in time, the principal thoroughfare of the city, and being of that view, he took a lease of the store on the corner of Market and Third street (Nucleus building). It was not long before he had more business than he could accommodate—in the store he then occupied. So he leased the large store adjoining fronting on Market street, and stocked it with one of the most complete assortments of Gents' Ready Made Clothing to be found in this city. Mr. Beamish did not enlarge his business until his capital justified him in doing so, and result was that when he went into the wholesale market as a cash buyer, he not only obtained the latest and most desirable styles but he purchased at a low figure, and as he sells for cash, he, of course, has no outstanding debts, and can afford to sell his goods at a small profit. A visit to his store will convince every purchaser that the goods he sells cannot be bought elsewhere of equal quality at the same figure. This is one of the great secrets of his success. Mr. Beamish remarked to us that he had all sizes of over one hundred different styles of men's and boys. Linen shirts constantly on hand in store, besides which he keeps employed a large number of practical shirt makers and experienced cutters to fit and make to order at his manufactory.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SAN JOSE.—The Templetons opened on Monday night at the Opera House in the drama of "Dora;" on Tuesday "The New Magdalen" was played, with Miss Alice Vane as Mercy Merrick. Miss Blanche Galton, who has joined this troupe, is much admired for her vocalism, and Little Fay Templeton delights all in her specialties. Last night the troupe appeared in "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room," the operetta of "The Blind Beggars," and the farce entitled "The Youth Who Never Saw a Woman." There will be a matinee and evening performance to-day.

OAKLAND.—Madame Anna Bishop gave her final concert in Oakland last night.

MERCED.—Montgomery Queen's Great Show will exhibit here on Thursday, October 15 h.

MONTEREY.—A correspondent, writing under date of October 5th, says:—Little Mac. Jake Wallace and troupe gave two entertainments at the Washington Hotel here last week. The hall, quite a capacious one, was filled both nights, and the entertainments gave general satisfaction. Mac is a "trump" and we hope he will soon return to the old quondam capital by the sea.

VIRGINIA CITY.—On Monday, Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau commenced an engagement at Piper's Opera House in "Was She Right?" This piece was repeated on the following evening, and drew an immense crowd on each occasion. On Wednesday evening "Jealousy" was played. On Thursday, "Aurora Floyd" was produced; and last night Mrs. Chanfrau took her farewell benefit. The Footlights says: That gentlemanly and talented comedian Willie Gill, has been selected as stage manager of this popular place of amusement, and will undoubtedly fill it to the satisfaction of every one. Dr. Healy's Hibernian Gems have been exhibiting during the week at National Grand Hall to overflowing houses. On Wednesday evening of next week Mlle. Marie Zoe will commence an engagement at Piper's Opera House.

PORTLAND.—The Fanny Morgan Phelps Dramatic Troupe is playing a very good engagement at the Oro Fino Theatre, with Miss Amy Stone, H. F. Stone, Robert Fulford and other favorites in the Company. The bill last Monday consisted of the drama entitled "Griffith Gaunt; or, Man, Wife and Pastor."

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

Miss Neilson is in Paris busily occupied in preparing her wardrobe for her Winter campaign, which is to be undertaken under the generalship of the renowned Strakosch. She is now engaged in studying the character of Isabella in "Measure for Measure," a play which has been banished by reason of its innate indelicacy, from the stage ever since the days of Mrs. Siddons.

Mr. Alberry's comedy of "The Two Roses" was revived, on September 12th, at the London vaudeville.

Mr. J. S. Clarke began, on September 12th, an engagement of eighteen nights, at the London Adelphi.

Mrs. John Wood is on a tour of the English provincial theatres, with Mr. H. J. Byron's play of "An American Lady."

"The Two Orphans," adapted to the English stage by John Oxenford, was produced at the London Olympic Theatre, Sept. 14.

Mr. Coghlan, the comedian, who was to have come hither with Miss Neilson, has relinquished his intention of visiting the United States.

Miss Augusta Dargon, the well-known actress, who has passed the Summer in Dublin and Paris, will shortly arrive home, and will resume the labors of her profession.

The stage of the London Haymarket is just now occupied by "Our Friends"—the English version of M. Sardou's "Nos Intimes"—which is played by Mlle. Beatrice's Comedy Company.

Miss Marion Terry, a younger sister of the celebrated Kate Terry, now acts Lady Betty in "Olancarty," in London.

A London theatrical paper has actually the temerity to suggest the Beecher-Tilton difficulty as a subject for a new play that Wilkie Collins intends writing.

We have to record with great regret the death of Mr. Thomas J. Williams, the well-known English writer, whose popular farce of "Ici on Parle Francais," has especially made his name familiar to the play-going public. Mr. Williams died at London, England, on the 8th. He was born July 19th, 1824, at Hampton Court, Middlesex, so that he had not long completed his fiftieth year. The greater part of his youth was spent on the European Continent, where he acquired a thorough knowledge of Italian, Sanish, French and German and, indeed, for the study of languages he displayed through his life a marvellous aptitude. A tale called "The Death of Darnley," written when he was sixteen, and published in The Mirror, introduced him to literature, and his first farce, "I've Written to Brown," was produced at the Olympic Theatre, London, in 1839. From this time he contributed to the stage about forty farces, which, taken collectively, have averaged longer runs than any pieces brought out within the last fifteen years.

Madame Celeste who has taken almost as many farewell benefits as Dan Rice, reappeared at the London Adelphi Theatre, Oct. 3d.

Mr. J. H. Allen, the American actor, is playing with great success at the Marylebone, Theatre, London.

Mr. Alf Burnett and Miss Helen Nash opened at the Egyptian Hall, London, on the 6th ult.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-r

SELF-MADE MEN.

How often do we hear a man say, when speaking of his business, that he has more than he can attend to. With few rare exceptions, no one has ever built up a business that he can not attend to. Sometimes one will commence a small business, that, by some fortuitous circumstances—such as a good locality, or the want of some energetic man in that line in the same location, etc., and will find that his business has gone far ahead of his expectations, then he is apt to be satisfied with what comes to him without much effort on his part, and talk about having more than he can attend to.

Did one ever hear of Stewart, of Vanderbilt, or Scott, or in fact any of the self-made men of America, ever using the above-named phrase? On the contrary, all, or nearly all of this class of people commenced business in a small way, commensurate with their capital, and by constant application built up their business little by little until they became known to the whole mercantile world.

A large business cannot be built up in a day or a week, but by energy, fair dealing and moderate prices, it can be done in a short time. As a case in point, we will refer to Mr. P. Beamish, a merchant of this city, who, a few years since commenced business on a small scale, but with the determination of increasing that business as much as he could. It was early a principle with Mr. B. to buy for CASH and sell for CASH so that he had no bad debts to counteract the profits on his sales; particular attention was given to the fitting and making of White Shirts so that he soon became known throughout the city by the quality of his work, his low prices, etc.

One other point, Mr. B. has always been careful in and that is, to GUARANTEE all of his goods to be as represented. His stock consists of probably the best selected and most complete lines of Gents Furnishing Goods, White Shirts, etc., etc., on this coast. Mr. Beamish early recognized the fact that Market street was destined to become in time, the principal thoroughfare of the city, and being of that view, he took a lease of the store on the corner of Market and Third street (Nucleus building). It was not long before he had more business than he could accommodate—in the store he then occupied. So he leased the large store adjoining fronting on Market street, and stocked it with one of the most complete assortments of Gents' Ready Made Clothing to be found in this city. Mr. Beamish did not enlarge his business until his capital justified him in doing so, and result was that when he went into the wholesale market as a cash buyer, he not only obtained the latest and most desirable styles but he purchased at a low figure, and as he sells for cash, he, of course, has no outstanding debts, and can afford to sell his goods at a small profit. A visit to his store will convince every purchaser that the goods he sells cannot be bought elsewhere of equal quality at the same figure. This is one of the great secrets of his success. Mr. Beamish remarked to us that he had all sizes of over one hundred different styles of men's and boys. Linen Shirts constantly on hand in store, besides which he keeps employed a large number of practical shirt makers and experienced cutters to fit and make to order at his manufactory.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

MAGUIRE'S NEW THEATRE.—The combination of talent at this house is very strong, comprising as it does the attractive Mlle. Marie Zoe, the talented Harry and Miss Carrie Rickards, and R. D. Davies, the world-renowned ventriloquist, who can make an audience laugh more heartily than almost any other man living. The bill for the matinee to-day, to-night and to-morrow night is published on our first page.

OPERA HOUSE.—Katie and Frank in their dashing trapeze performance, the inimitable Billy Emerson, in new songs, dances and funny sayings, Ben Cotton, Billy Arlington, J. R. Kemble, Billy Rice, and others in acts, and Ernest Linden, the burlesque prima donna in his operatic airs, give an entertainment hard to beat. The bill on our first page will be presented at the matinee to-day, to-night and to-morrow night.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—Frank Mayo and Miss Rosa Rand have commenced their engagement very auspiciously in Frank Murdoch's drama entitled "Davy Crockett" which was superbly mounted and well played. This piece will be presented at matinee to-day, and will this evening be played for the last time.

NEW BELLA UNION THEATRE. — The spectacular nautical drama entitled "The Cabin Boy" was very successfully produced at this theatre last night with Miss Kate Raymond as Julian, the Cabin Boy, O. B. Collins as Largarcette the Pilot, Harry Thompson as Berthault, and a generally strong cast, comprising Miss Fanny Young, J. W. Summers and other favorites. In addition to this attraction Miss Lizzie Watson and Harry Braham appear nightly in character scenes and O. B. Collins presents his screaming sketch entitled "Dutch Justice."

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE.—Johnny Toers and Harry Devoe in the act entitled "Clamset" make the audience shout with laughter Charley King comedian and banjoist, appears nightly and an immense variety entertainment is given.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain Railroad.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms. Guido Mangenberg, the proprietor, gets up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—These Gardens are in beautiful order at present. To-morrow the Baisley Family will take their farewell benefit and present a grand bill. The Hot Creek Indians will appear.

CITY GARDENS—GRAND CELEBRATION.—On Sunday October 11th, and Monday the 12th, there will be a grand celebration of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus. The Italian military companies, and many American and German Military Associations will turn out on this occasion A feature of the celebration will be the display made by the Fisherman's Association with the ship Santa Maria and the Gardener's Association with a triumphal car representing the Goddess of Agriculture. The festivities will wind up with a ball in the Pavilion.

NOTES.—To-morrow evening, Mlle. Marie Zoe will take her farewell benefit and make her last appearance.

Some night next week at the California Theatre, Frank Mayo will make his appearance in his great character of Badger in "The Streets of New York" in which he achieved an immense success in Boston. The play will be produced with entirely new scenes, and the fire scene will be elaborated as it has never been heretofore on the California stage.

Miss Louie V. Coleman of the Coleman Sisters, who have been giving dramatic entertainments in the interior of the State and in Nevada, died at Colfax on the 5th inst. She was fifteen years old at the time of her death.

Geo. M. Ciprico, formerly of San Francisco, sends us a little pamphlet containing a synopsis of the new Play entitled "Edmund Kean," written for him by P. A. Fitzgerald of Philadelphia, Mr. Ciprico will shortly start on a starring tour with his new play.

The liens against the Grand Opera House, Mission Street amounting to more than $25,000, have been removed, and active operations will be commenced on the building on Monday.

Runnels senior and his talented son Bonnie, have joined the Vivian party.

Montgomery Queen has made arrangements for wintering the animals of his great show with Tony Oakes, at Haywards.

Fred Runnels is now one of the attractions of Montgomery Queen's Great Show.

On Monday the Templeton Dramatic Troupe, Fay Templeton, Miss Alice Vane and others will appear at Maguire's New Theatre in "Rip Van Winkle" and specialties.

On Monday the daring and graceful Lottie who has recovered from her late indisposition, will make her reappearance at the Opera House.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, "The Sphinx," of which we have published several notices during the present week continues the attraction at Union Square Theatre. .....The New York Clipper says: Col. Mulberry Sellers, as portrayed by John T. Raymond, has proven a strong magnet, and the cosy little Park Theatre has been crowded every night since our last report. A slight change in the cast occurred on Wednesday evening, when James Dunn replaced John Matthews, as the representative of the Counsel for the Defense, and he did that character ample justice. "The Gilded Age" appears to be booked for a run.....Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams are playing a good engagement at Booth's Theatre.....The Boisset Family are among those who have been engaged to appear at the Grand Opera House, New Orleans, during the coming season.

Miss Carlotta LeClercq appeared at the Boston Theatre on Monday, October 5, in "The New Magdalen."

Trinculo in the Arcadian, speaking of Mark Twain's play of the "Gilded Age" in which Mr. J. T. Raymond has made a hit, as Colonel Sellers, says: Mr. Raymond has been a by-word in the profession for his ill-luck. It was generally understood at one time that if he was engaged by a manager the season would fail through. Rainy nights followed him like his own shadow. I believe it was the custom in certain parts of the country for the theatres to burn down when his benefit was announced. But his luck has changed now His new play will last him a professional lifetime. There are, to use his own words, "millions in it."

Mr. Edward Arnott has been received with great favor in Philadelphia, where he opened with the Union Square Company, at the Chestnut Street Theatre, Wednesday, in the "Geneva Cross." The All Day City Item says: "Mr. Edward Arnott entered into the spirit of Matthew so cordially as to make all the young ladies hate him for his realistic performance of the villain. No better praise could be asked."

The Aimes Opera Bouffe Company commence a season at the New Globe Theatre, Boston, on January 4th.

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams commence an engagement at the Boston Theatre, on November 2d.

Mrs. J. B. Booth opened at Robinson's Opera House, Cincinnati, on Oct. 5th.

Mrs. Lander opened at the Grand Opera House, Cincinnati, on Oct. 5th.

Mr. J. L. Toole will play in Boston, commencing on January 18th.

The Vokes Family were in Boston for the week commencing Oct. 5th.

Mrs. E. L. Davenport has been engaged to supply the vacancy created in the Fifth Avenue Theatre by the withdrawal of Miss Fanny Morant, and will make her first appearance there early in October.

Delehanty and Hengler and Ernest Stanley arrived from Europe in the steamship Erin on September 21st.

Joe Jefferson and troupe, Kalamazoo, Michigan, Oct. 17th.

McKee Rankin was arrested at the Jersey City Theatre on the 19th, shortly before the performance began, under a charge by a Mr. Elliott, of St. Louis, of being an absconding debtor. Bail was immediately furnished, and the performance was not delayed.

Mr. J. L. Toole appeared October 5, 6 and 7, at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn.

Mlle. Marietta Ravel is to appear at the Howard Athenæum, Boston, on the 12th.

The latest report received from Buffalo is as follows:—Shelby's Comique, Mr. and Mrs. George Ware, Charles Howard, Kitty Henderson, George F. Moore, Jenny and Albert Lament, Harry Bryant and James Clark; business fine and show excellent. Adelphi has drawn largely with Sophia and Irene Worrell. Canterbury, no arrivals.

Henry Ward Beecher, Brattleboro, Vt., Oct. 6. Salem, Mass., 7th.

Frank Chanfrau has again created a furore by his marvellous impersonation of "Kit, the Arkansas Traveler," at the Boston Museum.

Sheridan, Mack & Day's Combination still holds the boards at the Academy of Music, New Orleans, La., and that theatre still remains the only one in the city regularly opened. The excitement attendant upon the recent trouble has had an effect not altogether favorable on the attendance, and, that taken into consideration, the business has been remarkably good.

Miss Annie Graham has been engaged as leading lady at the Fifth Avenue Theatre.

Eben Plympton, whom the New York press recognize as a very promising young actor, has been added to the regular company at Wallack's for the present season.

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. B. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 212 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. 8

The Fair affords an agreeable lounging place for the ladies. The gentlemen's popular resort is Chapmen & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny streets, with the entrance on Bush. There they assemble nightly to play billiards, discuss new plays and new actors, and enjoy the good wines, liquors and cigars always kept here. 6-1

A LITTLE BOY'S LETTER.

SALINAS CITY, CAL., Oct. 10th, 1874.

DEAR PA!—Since you have been gone we have had such a good time. Ma and me have enjoyed ourselves every minute. Mr. Martin who has a big nose, has been here too, all day. He is in the parlor with ma now, and gave me five cent to go up stairs and write you a nice, long letter. Ma was crying so when you went away, and you told her to try and be cheerful and lively till you come back, and that you wouldn't be away very long. She was lively just as soon as you had gone. Mr. Martin came right in and saw her face, and said there was a strawberry on her lips, and the only thing that could do any good was for some person to kiss her: I was going to kiss her but Mr. Martin said I might get a strawberry on my lip, so he would kiss ma for me. And he did, and she laughed and she slapped him, and said he was a wretch. But I think he is a nice man, only his nose is too long. Ma is afraid of robbers, and Mr. Martin's going too stay all night. This will be so nice, won't it?

Your little son, GEORGE.

Two Scenes in a Tragedy.

Scene I. Host—"Let me introduce you to Miss Prancer for a waltz." Captain—"Don't mind twotting her out a bit—'blige you, ole fell! Just see if she'll do—aw——.' Scene II. Host—"Miss Prancer, allow me to introduce Captain Crawler," Miss P. (who must have been listening)— "Very happy—'blige you, but weally won't do at all. Twot him back again, thank you."

Labor Lost.

Imagine the wrath of a young woman who rises from her seat in a horse car to give it to an old lady when she turns round and sees that the young man opposite is looking out of the window, instead of gazing at her approvingly.

Served her Right.

Bring up a child in the way it should go. A French youth was recently put on trial for murdering his mother. The murderer was found "guilty" with extenuating circumstances, the only ground for which was, that he had never received any education.

A Real Affliction.

"Yes, Job suffered some," said an Illinois deacon, "but he never knew what it was to have his team run away and kill his wife right in the busy season when hired girls want three dollars per week."

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you'd please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

"That Mischievous Young Brother."

The moral to the following, told by the sufferer is too apparent to mention. Young ladies will hereafter run their brothers out when gentleman call:

I'm certain I wished somebody would spank the young rascal. We talked of hills, mountains, valleys and cataracts (I believe I said waterfalls,) when the brother spoke up and said:

"Why sister's got a trunk full of them up stairs; pa says they are made of horse-hair."

The revelation struck terror into me and blushes into the cheeks of my fair companion.

It began to be very apparent to me that I must be very guarded in what I said, lest the boy might slip in his remarks at unseasonable places; in fact I turned my conversation to him, he ought to go home with me and see what nice chickens we had in the country. Unluckily, I mentioned a yoke of calves my brother owned. The little one looked up and said:

"Sister's got a dozen pair of them, but she don't wear 'em only when she goes up town windy days."

"Leave the room, go! you unmannerly wretch!" cried Emily; "leave quick."

"I know what you want me to leave for, he replied; "you can't fool me. You want to set on that man's lap and kiss him like you did Bill Jones the other day; you can't fool me; I jest tell you, gim me some candy like he did, and I'll go. You think because you've got the Grecian bend, you're smart. Guess I know a thing or two. I'm mad at you, anyhow, because papa, would have bought me a top yesterday, if it hadn't been for gettin' them curls, dog yer! You need not turn so red in the face, 'cause I see the paint. There ain't no use winking with that glass eye of your'n, for I'm going out of here now, that's what's the matter with the purps, I don't care if you are twenty-eight years old, you ain't no boss of me."

John E. Owens' Ice House.

John E. Owens has a magnificent farm in the State of Maryland:

Some years ago Mr. Owens conceived the idea of building a first-class ice-house on the premises, holding that such an institution was indispensable to a well regulated farm. Proposals were invited by the actor-farmer, and bids came pouring in by the score. There being such a variety of designs, he had no difficulty in selecting one to suit his taste. Of the number there was one that seemed to meet the requirements of the case. The architect said it would do away with away with ice ponds entirely, and would make farmers independent of freezing weather. It would be a self-feeder and do its own freezing. Well, he had it constructed, filled it with imported ice from Boston, and locked the door with a smile of satisfaction. That night his dreams carried him to the coming Summer: He was sitting under his own vine and fig tree, with a sherry cobbler in one hand, a mint julep in the other, and at his feet reclined a huge block of Boston ice, fresh from the patent ice-house.

One beautiful Spring morning we were sitting in the lobby of the old Holliday-street Theatre, discussing the theatrical events of the day, when we heard a carriage drive furiously up to the door. Looking out we saw Mr. Owens jump from the carriage, with the ferocity of a man that had been badly treated, and looking as if he would like to meet the author of his wrongs. He came in smiling like a pirate.

"Why, halloo, John E., what's the matter? You seem excited," we exclaimed.

"Excited! excited! I should think, sir, that I have gone through enough to-day to excite a cast-iron monkey; but if I could only see him for about five minutes, I think I would feel better."

"See him! Whom?" we ejaculated in surprise.

"The architect," replied John E., in a sepulchral tone, "who designed my ice house. You see I got a fellow to build me a patent ice house. It cost me fifteen hundred dollars. I put in five tons of clear, selected Boston ice. Well," continued he, after taking a long breath, "feeling this morning that the weather was warm enough to take a small drink in the shape of a mint-julep, I wended my way to my North pole to get one of the principal ingredients. I opened the door cautiously, fearing to admit the warm air upon my crystal treasure. Good heaven! I looked in and saw—nothing but darkness. My ice had vanished. From the bottom I heard the dulcet sounds of the—Oh! ye Gods! My beautiful house had been converted into a frog pond, and now I want to see my architect."

SELF-MADE MEN.

How often do we hear a man say, when speaking of his business, that he has more than he can attend to. With few rare exceptions, no one has ever built up a business that he can not attend to. Sometimes one will commence a small business, that, by some fortuitous circumstances—such as a good locality, or the want of some energetic man in that line in the same location, etc., and will find that his business has gone far ahead of his expectations, then he is apt to be satisfied with what comes to him without much effort on his part, and talk about having more than he can attend to.

Did one ever hear of Stewart, of Vanderbilt, or Scott, or in fact any of the self-made men of America, ever using the above-named phrase? On the contrary, all, or nearly all of this class of people commenced business in a small way, commensurate with their capital, and by constant application built up their business little by little until they became known to the whole mercantile world.

A large business cannot be built up in a day or a week, but by energy, fair dealing and moderate prices, it can be done in a short time. As a case in point, we will refer to Mr. P. Beamish, a merchant of this city, who, a few years since commenced business on a small scale, but with the determination of increasing that business as much as he could. It was early a principle with Mr. B. to buy for CASH and sell for CASH so that he had no bad debts to counteract the profits on his sales; particular attention was given to the fitting and making of White Shirts so that he soon became known throughout the city by the quality of his work, his low prices, etc.

One other point, Mr. B. has always been careful in and that is, to GUARANTEE all of his goods to be as represented. His stock consists of probably the best selected and most complete lines of Gents Furnishing Goods, White Shirts, etc, etc., on this coast Mr. Beamish early recognized the fact that Market street was destined to become in time, the principal thoroughfare of the city, and being of that view, he took a lease of the store on the corner of Market and Third street (Nucleus building). It was not long before he had more business than he could accommodate—in the store he then occupied. So he leased the large store adjoining fronting on Market street, and stocked it with one of the most complete assortments of Gents' Ready Made Clothing to be found in this city. Mr. Beamish did not enlarge his business until his capital justified him in doing so, and result was that when he went into the wholesale market as a cash buyer, he not only obtained the latest and most desirable styles but he purchased at a low figure, and as he sells for cash, he, of course, has no outstanding debts, and can afford to sell his goods at a small profit. A visit to his store will convince every purchaser that the goods he sells cannot be bought elsewhere of equal quality at the same figure. This is one of the great secrets of his success. Mr. Beamish remarked to us that he had all sizes of over one hundred different styles of men's and boys, Linen Shirts constantly on hand in store, besides which he keeps employed a large number of practical shirt makers and experienced cutters to fit and make to order at his manufactory.

Great Bargains in Clothing:

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks, and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 3-x

The California, the Union, the Pacific, and the Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club find Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny a very good substitute. After the theatres are out there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

"Davy Crockett" drew a capital house last night and the elopement on horseback was very effectively managed. The horse Devilskin was finely represented by Mr. Martin's handsome horse General Taylor. Frank Mayo and Miss Rosa Rand were much applauded and were called before the curtain. "Davy Crockett" will be played again to-night.

Maguire's New Theatre.

An admirable performance of "Rip Van Winkle" was given at this house last night. J. A. Herne in the title role acquitted himself splendidly, and in the pathetic scenes drew tears from many eyes. Miss Alice Vane did some good acting as Gertrude, and little Fay Templeton, who received a hearty welcome and was pelted with bouquets on making her appearance, roused the audience to positive enthusiasm by her clever and expressive acting. She was equally successful in her "Bouquet of Specialties." E. D. Davies made another hit with his two new characters—the Old 49ers—and Tom and Joe were as vivacious and amusing as ever. The entertainment given was a thoroughly enjoyable one, and should draw good houses during the present week.

Opera House.

A remarkably brilliant entertainment was given at this popular theatre last night and delighted a numerous audience. Billy Emerson in the first part was at his best and brightest, and the finale "Out at Sea" with beautiful new scenery by Strauss, was most effectively presented. Katie and Frank electrified the audience with their wonderful "Transvolation." Ernest Linden, the Black Swan, won applause for the magnificence of his toilette, and his clever burlesque of the concert hall singers of the day. Billy Rice and J. R. Kemble appeared in the funny little act entitled "Good Morning," Billy Emerson in some of his most popular character impersonations, Ben Cotton, Billy Arlington and others in "Scientific Experiments," and the laughable sketch entitled "The Coal Heaver's Revenge" wound up the evening's fun in good style.

Backley's New Variety Theatre.

Johnny Tuers continues a prime favorite at this popular variety theatre. The act of "Clamsel" goes screamingly every night, and Frank Mortimore, John Kelly and Harry Devoy are great in "Traveling Artists."

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Notes.

W. F. Baker, the tenor, late of Maguire's Minstrels, left for Australia on the City of Melbourne yesterday.

"Griffith Gaunt" will be produced at the California Theatre during the engagement of Frank Mayo and Miss Rosa Rand.

Gruet Buisiay has been taken to the French Hospital where he lies with scarcely any hope of recovery.

Signor M. Y. Ferrer the guitarist, is to be honored by a complimentary subscription concert at Pacific Hall on Thursday evening.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend. "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins'g
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

PAYING HER WAY.

What has my darling been doing to-day
To pay for her washing and mending?
How can she manage to keep out of debt
For so much caressing and tending?
How can I wait till the years have flown,
And the hands have grown larger and stronger?
Who will be able the interest to pay
If the debt runs many years longer?

Dear little feet! How they fly to my side!
Wait—arms—my neck are caressing:
Sweetest of kisses are laid on my cheek;
Fair head on my shoulder is pressing,
Nothing at all from my darling is due—
From evil may angels defend her—
The debt is discharged as fast as 'tis made,
For love is a legal tender!

Always Lovers.

Married people should treat each other like lovers all their lives—then they would be happy. Bickering and quarreling would soon break off love affairs; consequently lovers indulge in such only to a very limited extent. But some people—men and women both—when they once have got married think they may do just as they please, and it will make no difference. They make a great mistake. It causes all the difference in the word. Women should grow more devoted and men more fond of marriage, if they have the slightest idea of being happy as wives and husbands. It is losing sight of the fundamental truth which leads to hundreds of divorces. Yet, many a man will scold his wife who would never think of breathing a harsh word to his sweetheart; and many a wife will be glum and morose on her husband's return who had only smiles and words of cheer for him when he was her suitor. How can such people expect to be happy?

Snubbed.

The other day a minister offered a prayer at the laying of a corner stone. A brisk young reporter bustled up and said: "I wish you would give me the manuscript of that prayer." "I never write out my prayers," replied the preacher, "Well," said the reporter, "I couldn't hear a word you said." "I wasn't praying to you," quickly responded the party.

The Beginning of Minstrelsy.

The first "negro minstrel song" by a white man with a blackened face, was sung by Rice in New Orleans in 1829, and began:

Lovey Rose, Sambo's come,
Don't you hear the banjo? tum—tum—tum.
Rose! Rose! you coal back Rose!
I wish I may be kicked if I don't lub Rose.

Had Him There!

Henry Ward Beecher asked Park Benjamin, the poet and humorist, why he never came to hear him preach. Benjamin replied, "Why Beecher, the fact is, I have conscientious scruples against going to places of amusement on Sunday."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 269 Sutter street near Kearny. 8-bg

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-x

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsible house. 7-bg

Family Oyster Rooms.

It is fashionable for ladies, now-a-days, to go to Joe Giusti's new Family Oyster Rooms, 105 California Market, for their meals: Joe, with natural gallantry, saves for them his finest oysters, the fattest quails and the choicest chops and steaks. Open night and day. 9-bi

A Retort Anatomical.

Dr. Abernethy, the celebrated London surgeon, was, toward the latter part of his career, as gruff and bearish as he was eccentric, and many are the anecdotes relaten of his quaint sayings and doings. He met his match, however, in a student at the College of Surgeons upon a certain examination day. And we may say in passing, that same student has since been one of the most eminent and successful practitioners in his profession.

"Suppose," said Abernethy, in his crisp, abrupt way, to the student, "a man should be blown up by an explosion of gunpowder, what would you do?"

The question was certainly as ridiculous as it was infinite, and the tyro coolly answered:

"I should wait, sir, until he came down again."

"And now, sir," demanded Abernethy, irately, "suppose I kicked you for an impertinent dog, what muscles should I put in motion?"

"The flexors and extensors of my right arm," replied the student, promptly, "for I should knock you down directly."

The young man passed, and the name of John Abernethy was signed to the certificate of his anatomical and surgical proficiency.

Christopher Columbus.

Think of a Christian American, like Bayard Taylor, countenancing treason and neglecting to enlighten those heathen Icelanders! Writing from Rejkiavik he gives this dialogue:

"Do you know who first discovered America?

"Yes, yes!" they all cried in a body; "it was Leif, the son of Erik the Red."

"When was it?"

"About the year 1000. And there was Thornfinn Karlsenne, who went afterward, and Thorwald. They called the country Vinland."

"I know it," said I. "I am a Vinelander."

A Curious Fact.

Some crusty old bachelor says: "I have noticed that when there is only one daughter in a family, and her parents are very anxious to keep her home as long as possible, some chap coaxes her off before she is seventeen. I have also noticed that where there is a house full of girls, and the parents are praying daily for husbands for the same, the whole lot are apt to live and die old maids."

The Pistol in Texas.

Brief colloquy in Texas between a tourist and a native: "My friend, why is it everybody in this country thinks it necessary to carry one or two revolvers?"

"Well, stranger," said the Texan, "you mought travel around here a good long time and not want a weapon, but when you do want a pistol in this country, you want it like hell."

A Sympathizing Friend.

An amiable citizen of Burlington called to see another, who was dangerously ill. Attracted by a festive pair of boots in the room of the invalid, the visitor tried them on, when turning to the sick man with much sympathy, he remarked: "Supposing the worst to happen, I'll take these boots."

A "Wow."

The San Jose Mercury of Saturday says: The Patriot's local having had a "wow" with Manager Brohaska, makes the occasion a pretext to pitch into the Templeton Troupe without discrimination. It calls them "impecunious peripatetics," and "a few sticks whose experience has not sufficed to obtain for them a salary above four dollars a week." Previous to this trouble with the manager said reporter had lauded them to the skies. It is thus we determine the value of the Patriot as an impartial journal. Now with regard to the Templetons we have only this to say, that if success is any criterion of merit, then are they entitled to the palm. First and last they have drawn better houses here in San Jose and more of them than any other theatrical troupe that has ever visited this city. Besides, they have spent a year on this Coast, playing in all the principal towns, and have made any amount of money. These facts certainly must count for something in their favor, the Patriot's local to the contrary notwithstanding. But the joke of the matter is, the Patriot folks started out to c-r-r-ush Brohaska and the Templetons, and the result was the largest house last night of the season. It was literally jammed. This afternoon the wonderful Fay, who is truly a marvelous little actress, will appear as "Wool" in the three-act version of the "Hidden Hand," and to-night "Kathleen Mavourneen" and other attractions will close the season, which has been a most successful one. By the way, Fay's "Wool" is simply immense.

Amiable Murderers.

Over a column of Sunday's Call was devoted to a description of the persons lying in the County Jail charged with the crime of murder. The Call reporter observes that a murderer is, as a rule, an ill-looking person. He gives each individual whom he visited a little "puff," winding up with "there are no traces of vice in his countenance." There is one exception; he is a Chinaman, he isn't good-looking, but on the contrary has a villainous-looking countenance. The Call is an independent journal, but it wouldn't willingly speak ill of any man—unless he was a Chinaman, and consequently not likely at any time to become a subscriber.

A Mild Remark.

In Colorado, when a couple of men draw their pistols and blaze away at each other, and one is killed and the other injured, the papers out there say: "There was another accident yesterday in consequence of carrying firearms."

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Coryille keeps the place,
The best saloon in town.
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

How to Train a Boy.

M. Quad gives the following valuable advice with regard to training up a boy: Have you a boy from five to eight years old? If so it is a matter of the greatest importance that you train him up right. Teach him from the start that he can't run across the floor, whoop, chase around the back yard or use up a few nails and boards to make carts or boats. If you let him chase around he'll wear out shoes and clothes, and nails and boards cost money.

Train him to control his appetite: Give him the smallest piece of pie; the bone end of the steak; the small potato, and keep the butter-dish out of his reach. By teaching him to curb his appetite you can keep him in good humor. Boys are always good humored when hunger gnaws at their stomachs. If he happens to break a dish, thrash him for it; that will mend the dish and teach him a lesson at the same time.

If you happen to notice that your boy's shoes are wearing out take down the rod and give him a peeling. These shoes were purchased only ten months ago, and though you have worn out two pairs of boots during that time the boy has no business to be so hard on shoes. By giving him a sound thrashing you will prevent the shoes from wearing out.

When you want your boy to go of an errand you should state it and add:

"Now go as quick as you can, and if you are gone over five minutes I'll cut the hide off your back."

He will recognize the necessity of haste, and he will hurry up. You could not do the errand yourself inside of fifteen minutes, but he is not to know that. If you want him to pile wood, the way to address him is thusly:

"Now, see here, Henry, I want every stick of that wood piled up before noon. If I come home and find you haven't done it I'll lick you till you can't stand up!"

It is more than a boy of his size can do in a whole day; but you are not to blame that he is not thirteen years old instead of eight.

If you hear that any one in the neighborhood has broken a window, stolen fruit or unhinged a gate, be sure that it was your boy. If he denies it, take down the rod and tell him that you will thrash him to death if he doesn't "own up," but that you will spare him if he does. He will own up to a lie to get rid of the thrashing, and then you can talk to him about the fate of liars and bad boys, and end up by saying:

"Go to bed now, and in the morning I'll attend to your case."

If you take him to church and he looks around, kicks the seat or smiles at some boy acquaintance, thrash him the moment you get home. He ought to have been listening to the sermon. If he sees all the other boys going to the circus, and wants fifteen cents to take him in, tell him what awful wicked things circuses are; how they demoralize boys; how he ought to be thrashed for even seeing the procession go by; and then when he's sound asleep do you sneak off, pay half a dollar to go in, and come home astonished at the menagerie and pleased with the wonderful gymnastic feats.

Keep your boy steady at school, have work for him every holiday; thrash him if he wants to go fishing or nutting; restrain his desire for skates, kites and marbles; rout him out at daylight, cold or hot, cuff his ears for asking questions; make his clothes out of your cast-off garments, and you'll have the satisfaction, when old and gray-headed, of knowing that you would have trained up a useful member of society had he not died just as he was getting well broken in.

We have received from the publisher, M. Gray, a motto song entitled "Look out for Number One," music by Enoch Freeman, composed and written for Cal. Mandeville, character vocalist.

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 269 Sutter street near Kearny. 8-bg

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-x

Music Hath Charms.

Pianos tuned and repaired, at moderate prices and satisfaction guaranteed, by one that understands the business. Also, will perform on Piano at Evening Parties, etc. Orders left at 754 Market or 54 Third street, will receive prompt attention by G. W. Morgan. 4-v*

Very Uncommon Conduct.

Max Adeler says:

I don't know exactly what to make of that dispatch in the papers the other day from Salt Lake City, which said:

The church organ on Wednesday savagely attacked Ann Eliza Young, and respectable Gentiles are very indignant at the course pursued by it.

Now on the face of things don't it seem a little uncommon that the organ should deliberately climb down out of the gallery, slide along through the grave-yard, and frisk down the street after Ann Eliza, and then proceed to hammer her? It is the only musical instrument that I ever heard of that possessed such powers. I want to know how it assailed her? Did it blow her up with its bellows, or did it fall on her? And further, isn't it interesting to inquire if this kind of thing is likely to become common? It is going to be very solemn for us church-goers if organs get into the habit of jumping down and tacking up the aisle while the deacons are taking up the collection, or of making a dash at innocent young people who are doing a little harmless sparking in the front pew. It seems to me that most of us will want to stay at home Sundays if such conduct is to be allowed. And if other musical instruments are to begin the practice—if pianos are to go rambling up stairs and crawling out on the roof; if melodeons are to emerge from the front door and walk down to the drug store, and if horns, accordeons, fiddles and trombones are to go cavorting over the universe without regard to people's feelings, why, the sooner we have a third term for Grant, or establish a despotism, or do something serious, the better.

Another William Tell.

The Grass Valley Union says:

Some time since an event similar to William Tell's in which he shot the apple from his son's head, took place in Penn Valley. It seems that a farmer there had two dogs which had a "hankering" to worry his neighbor's sheep and chickens, frequently killing them, and they had frequently complained to him about it, and finally he concluded to silence these complaints effectually by killing one of the dogs—the one that had the worst proclivities for sheep torture. He told a son to hold the dog by the collar, which he did, while he with a double barrelled shotgun, blew the dog's head off without touching the son, and this to at a distance of about ten feet. Rather a risky business we should say, and one that ought not to be tried again. The boy thought nothing of it and would without hesitancy hold the other canine if his father wanted to send him to "kingdom come."

SELF-MADE MEN.

How often do we hear a man say, when speaking of his business, that he has more than he can attend to. With few rare exceptions, no one has ever built up a business that he can not attend to. Sometimes one will commence a small business, that, by some fortuitous circumstances—such as a good locality, or the want of some energetic man in that line in the same location, etc., and will find that his business has gone far ahead of his expectations, then he is apt to be satisfied with what comes to him without much effort on his part, and talk about having more than he can attend to.

Did one ever hear of Stewart, of Vanderbilt, or Scott, or in fact any of the self-made men of America, ever using the above-named phrase? On the contrary, all, or nearly all of this class of people commenced business in a small way, commensurate with their capital, and by constant application built up their business little by little until they became known to the whole mercantile world.

A large business cannot be built up in a day or a week, but by energy, fair dealing and moderate prices, it can be done in a short time. As a case in point, we will refer to Mr. P. Beamish, a merchant of this city, who, a few years since commenced business on a small scale, but with the determination of increasing that business as much as he could. It was early a principle with Mr. B to buy for CASH and sell for CASH so that he had no bad debts to counteract the profits on his sales; particular attention was given to the fitting and making of White Shirts so that he soon became known throughout the city by the quality of his work, his low prices, etc.

One other point, Mr. B. has always been careful in and that is, to GUARANTEE all of his goods to be as represented. His stock consists of probably the best selected and most complete lines of Gents Furnishing Goods, White Shirts, etc., etc., on this coast. Mr. Beamish early recognized the fact that Market street was destined to become in time, the principal thoroughfare of the city, and being of that view, he took a lease of the store on the corner of Market and Third street (Nucleus building). It was not long before he had more business than he could accommodate—in the store he then occupied. So he leased the large store adjoining fronting on Market street, and stocked it with one of the most complete assortments of Gents' Ready Made Clothing to be found in this city. Mr. Beamish did not enlarge his business until his capital justified him in doing so, and result was that when he went into the wholesale market as a cash buyer, he not only obtained the latest and most desirable styles but he purchased at a low figure, and as he sells for cash, he, of course, has no outstanding debts, and can afford to sell his goods at a small profit. A visit to his store will convince every purchaser that the goods he sells cannot be bought elsewhere of equal quality at the same figure. This is one of the great secrets of his success. Mr. Beamish remarked to us that he had all sizes of over one hundred different styles of men's and boys. Linen Shirts constantly on hand in store, besides which he keeps employed a large number of practical shirt makers and experienced cutters to fit and make to order at his manufactory.

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-x

Maguire's New Theatre.

J. A. Herne's admirable portraiture of Rip Van Winkle, in the play of that name, has been endorsed by the public of San Francisco on many occasions. Miss Alice Vane as Gertrude. Little Fay Templeton as Lorens, and the others engaged in the representation, play their respective parts well, and E. D. Davies in his ventriloquial performance, and Fay Templeton in her popular specialties, make up a very varied and attractive entertainment.

Opera House.

First part, interlude and afterpiece at this house are all alike bright and sparkling. The new finale "Out at Sea" is very good. Billy Emerson and Ada Nightly in some of his best specialties. Katie and Frank in their great act of "Transvolation." and many other attractions are offered.

California Theatre.

In consequence of the great success of 'Davy Crockett,' with the added attraction of the horse, the piece will be played every evening this week and at the matinee on Saturday.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

John Kelly, Harry Devoy and Frank Mortimore will appear to-night in the act entitled "Traveling Artists," Johnny Tuers in song and dance and in "Cameel," and others in varied specialties.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at "Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins'd
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

A GREETING.

BY F. A. BILLARD.

Go, rose! and give my love good-day;
Bid her arise and come away;
Bid her with haste appear
Unto her lover here.
Ere the hot firmament
Rifle the dews of tender morn,
And all its freshness, newly born,
In fiery day be blent.

Tell her day broadens at her gates—
That Earth in balmy silence waits,
Tiptoe with listening ear,
To catch her footfalls dear;
In all their silent purlieus beat
The flushes that adorn
The roseate face of morn,
Her lovelier face to greet.

Tell her each bird that to the day
Warbles its flattering notes away,
Now sits the leaves among,
And holds its matin song,
Awaiting her fair face.
All nature breathless is;
So bid her with a kiss,
Come stir the world with grace.

Then shalt thou nestle in her breast,
And for reward there fate thy rest,
Until, when thou art dead,
Thy native perfume fled,
Thou shalt a subtler fragrance know,
Distilled from Love's sweet pain,
Than earth can e'er attain,
Or chemic skill bestow.

I hear the lifting of a latch,
And as I lend the sound to catch,
I hear her rustling dress
Move with a soft caress;
And lo! she comes; move, clouds, pipe, birds!
Awake, O Earth, in beauty clad!
Sing, all ye voices! and be glad
With eloquence more sweet than words.

What love, what joy, what kisses sweet,
When day begins and lovers meet!
For now my day's in truth begun
With this uprising of the sun;
I glow, and gladden 'neath her reign;
I cry, Fair day! fly not so fast:
And when the morrow comes at last,
I bid my love good-day again.

—Lippincott's Magazine.

Encouraging Talent.

If at any time you feel like having the conceit taken out of you, join an amateur dramatic company. We know one young man who essayed to wear the sock and buskin on the amateur stage. He grappled with old Richelieu, and got thunders of applause from all the audience—twenty-two young men who worked in the shop with him. After the performance he listened to the encomiums of his fellow members on his performance. "If you only knew how to read you'd make a first-rate actor," said one. "It's a pity you ain't got any voice," said another. "You've got a bully idea of the kind of man Richelieu wasn't." "You were first-rate," said still another. "I never saw the curse of Rome delivered with such effect before. Most everybody in the audience thought you were going to end up with 'here's your nice clams, fifty cents a hundred.'" That aspiring Garrick has retired from the stage, and is now peddling whisky in a bucket shop, instead of hurling curses at the heads of kings. He doesn't feel as proud of his own talents as he did previous to his treading the boards.

A Chance for Some One.

Dr. Maginn says: "No cigar smoker ever committed suicide." We know one who ought to do so, at the earliest moment. He smokes cigars that emit a scent that combines all the delights of a garlic eater's breath, the odor of a dead horse, and the flavor of a skunk. And yet this man insists on blowing the smoke in your face and saying: "That's a pooty good cigar, ain't it? I buy 'em two for five cents." If there is any man in the community who is anxious to be hung, we will introduce him to this cigar smoker, and he will have our permission to kill him.

A Regular Sell.

She thanks heaven that she wore false hair. The machinery in the place where she was at work caught her hair and twisted it round a wheel. She screamed. The machinery was stopped, and the engineer rushed up stairs, expecting to behold the mangled corpse of the young lady. He beheld only the disheveled remnants of a chignon. He didn't express much gratification. Some men are never satisfied unless they can show sorrow over a smashed corpse.

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsable house. 7-bg

Family Oyster Rooms.

It is fashionable for ladies, now-a-days, to go to Joe Gluett's new Family Oyster Rooms, 105 California Market, for their meals. Joe, with natural gallantry, saves for them his finest oysters, the fattest quails and the choicest chops and steaks. Open night and day. 9-bl

A Pioneer.

The New York Dispatch thus libels our noble Pioneers:

Did you ever meet one of the men who went to California in 1849? For sticking to the truth, for avoiding exaggeration and for elegant language, they surpass all other kind of Americans we ever met. We were talking to one, the other day, and happened to say: "Women were scarce when you went out there, weren't they?" "Scarce isn't no name for it. Why, I remember when I was pannin' in with Joe Blinkensop, at Yreka, we heard there was a woman twenty-five miles from there. Now, do you know every man in that camp stopped work and started off to take a look at her? And it was a blasted shave, too. When we got there it wasn't a woman at all. It was only a darned old, drunken Indian squaw. On the way back it was found out who started the report. And some on 'em wanted to kill him right off. Now, there were some that didn't take the shave in such an all fired angry way, so they objected. The consequence was the d——st fight we ever had out there. When it was over we counted nineteen dead and forty-three wounded. We buried the poor dead fellers. Some of those who had been drinking the most whisky wanted to bury the wounded, too. We took charge of the dead men's effects, and sent them to their families, with the information that the owners had died in defense of female virtue. One woman did at last come to Yreka. And what do you think the boys did? Why, they went and fixed up an old mule cart, and they got her to sit in it, and they paraded around the camp, they a dragging of her, and cheering, and drinking, and fighting all the time. When that woman and her husband wanted to leave the camp they had to steal away at night. The boys said she was the only civilizing influence that had been among 'em since they settled in Yreka. They'd a killed them both a d——d sight sooner'n let the civilizing influence go." This is only a slight specimen of what this returned Californian can relate.

Too Much Provocation.

Down in Texas two gentlemen had a slight difficulty. One of them decided to quit this world. He was induced to do this by the persuasive powers of a bowie knife. When the coroner held an inquest it was discovered that his name was Testament. The coroner said to the other party in the difficulty: "Why did you kill Mr. Testament?" "He called me a biped. I can't stand being called such names. I'd killed him if he'd been a whole Bible instead of a Testament—for slinging such a name as that at me." The intelligent jury of Texan gentlemen very justly gave a verdict of "justifiable homicide." A man's got to be careful what kind of language he uses in Texas.

A Curious Custom.

A New York paper says: When a New York printer gets so drunk that he wants to scalp his grandmother, he immediately repairs to Park Row and lies down under the shadow of his patron saint, Benjamin Franklin. One night last week seven men were found lying in a somnolent state around the statue, and all were ascertained to be printers. It is said to be a sure protection against "cops."

Compensation.

A cynic observes: If there is anything that will reconcile a man to married life, it is the knowledge that steals over him like a dream as he bursts a button off his trousers that there is one at home who can repair the damage.

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. E. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 212 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. E

An Art Note.

The Alta has the following :

Toby Rosenthal's last picture taken from Tennyson's Idyl of Elaine, now in the Royal Exhibition at Berlin, has been sold to Mr. R. E. Johnson, of San Francisco. Its size is five by seven feet.

We wonder what it weighs. A picture of that size is, we should fancy, worth a good deal of money. Of course the freight on it will amount to something considerable. Why doesn't the Alta tell us if the frame is a handsome one. One thing we know: that is, that the picture is a brand new one, none of your old worn out, cracked, dirty things by Murillo, Raphael, Leonardo di Vinci or other "played out" artists. Here is a chance for the literary Blind Tom who writes the Town Crier of the News Letter. The female has, we understand, stopped writing, having discovered that she was only paid "in fun" the money she received every Saturday (ten dollars) being given by a relation of hers to Mr. Marriott for the express purpose of paying for her rather nasty, and certainly not clever contributions, and thus encouraging her in her conceit.

"The Bohemian."

This is the title of a literary, satirical, numerous illustrated weekly paper, something after the style of the late "Puck," (which was pronounced by the Eastern press "the best comic paper ever published in America"), will make its appearance on Friday or Saturday. Dan O'Connell is editor in chief, and though the Bohemian Club, as a club, has nothing whatever to do with the paper, a number of its brighest members will contribute to its columns with pen and pencil. It is a lamentable fact that with the exception of "Puck," which was always a high-class publication, every professedly satirical illustrated paper published in this city has had the taint of blackmail and blackguardism about it. "The Bohemian" will appeal to the best portion of the community, and we have every hope that it will deserve and receive their support.

A Really Good Idea.

This habit people are getting into of committing suicide by putting pistols to their heads and pulling the triggers, is really very dangerous. There is no certainty about it. The Grass Valley Union commenting on this says :

"During the season, which we hope is drawing to a close, we remember of but one who got out of this world and away from his trouble by a lightning stroke of genius, so to speak. A bigot of this county was the man. He put a giant powder cartridge in his mouth and scientifically exploded it doing the work completely. The pistol business deserves only ridicule from the press and public."

Drivelling Again.

Poor old Granny Alta is in a bad way again. She drivels and maunders in the most distressing manner every morning. We thought Wetmore was back on the Brevity column He was silly enough sometimes, but occasionally wrote a good paragraph. He couldn't be quite idiotic enough to write the stuff that now appears in the Alta, unless his trip to the East has dissolved his brain.

Cool.

The other day, an adipose citizen strolled up to a couple of acquaintances who were talking on a corner, and one of them saluted him. "Why, you are growing bigger every day. I have heard of a man being fatter than a fool, but I believe you are fatter than two fools." "Well, I guess I would outweigh both of you," replied our rotund q uietly, as he walked along.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Music Hath Charms.

Pianos tuned and repaired, at moderate prices and satisfaction guaranteed, by one that understands the business. Also, will perform on Piano at Evening Parties, etc. Orders left at 754 Market or 54 Third street, will receive prompt attention by G. W. Morgan. 4-v

Theatre Building in Philadelphia.

The All-Day City Item says :

Here is the whole story in a nut-shell :—Four young gentlemen of wealth, intelligence and business capacity, feeling a deep interest in improving both the quality and the quantity of theatrical amusements in Philadelphia, and believing that the field, if properly tilled, must return a bounteous harvest to themselves, have decided to venture a large amount of capital, with the determination to start and carry on a really excellent theatre. They have purchased the lot of ground on the northwest corner of Broad and Cherry, adjoining the new Academy of Fine Arts, and have made contracts for the erection of a building thoroughly adapted for their purpose.

The site is a most advantageous one, having a frontage of one hundred feet on Broad street, and nearly double that distance on Cherry street, protected and accessible in the rear by a thirty-foot street. The contract, which provides for the commencement of the work on the first day of February next, demands the completion of the building, ready for occupancy, on the first of October ensuing.

The knowledge of some of the most experienced managers has been liberally drawn upon to secure every possible provision for the security and comfort of both the players and the public, and it is intended that nothing shall be lacking in any of the appointments.

The theatre will have entrances on Broad street and on Cherry street; those on the first-named thoroughfare for the use of the two lower ranges of seats, the others for the family circle and upper or fourth tier. The seating capacity of the house will be two thousand, and each one of the audience is insured a full view of the stage. The front and side elevations of the building will be in ornate style; the material at present decided upon being iron for the first floor and brick above.

With a whole year to elapse before the public occupancy of the building it is, of course, too soon to express any opinion of the wisdom of the management, but we may safely assert that the gentlemen interested have too much at stake to permit of any doubt that they will conduct the enterprise in such a manner as will meet public approval. Their present intention is to select some thoroughly competent person as stage manager, and to run the theatre with a well-selected company, retaining the direction in their own hands; two out of the firm, indeed, intend to relinquish all other claims upon their time for the purpose of giving the matter their entire attention.

Although the child is scarcely born it has been christened "The Centre Square Theatre." To those who are old enough to remember Philadelphia when the present well covered neighborhood of the selected site was devoid of buildings, the name will carry recollections of the "Centre Square" laid out on the city plan by William Penn. Later generations must, if the name is not meanwhile changed for some other, look upon it as a patriotic effort to perpetuate an almost forgotten locality."

Fred Bert, of this city, would like to find four young gentlemen of wealth, intelligence and business capacity, to finish up the theatre on Mission street, but they are not easy to find. It is rather rough on Fred. He made splendid engagements and did all he could, but his stockholders didn't get his theatre built at the time promised. However, it is going ahead again now.

I've Had Mine.

Scene—Sutter Street Market.

Oyster Rooms—Enter a green son of the owld sod :

"Waiter, give me a plate of biled ishters."

(Exit waiter and re-enter with a plate of shrimps and a spoon.)

Mickey commenced to devour the shrimps au naturel by the spoonful, and by the time the waiter brought in the biled ishters, he had gone through the shrimps, and looking contemptuously at the waiter and the steaming soup, exclaimed as he threw down a quarter and pointed to his empty plate :

"Shure, I've had mine."—Curtain !

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. A Desperate Woman.

She loved with a love greater than that of a broker of stocks, a young man for his first crop of moustache, or a Coney Islander for anything but roasted clams. He didn't incline her way. Last week they went out walking. They meandered down by the river bank, where the water plashes against the rotten planks and the rats play hide and seek over the wayfarer's feet. When they reached the end of the dock the lady stepped upon the string-piece. "Henry," said she, "if you don't promise to marry me, I will throw myself into the boiling flood." "Don't do it," said Henry; "it do sn't boil, and it is very dirt, and it would be sure to spoil your clothes, and I mightn't be able to fish you out." "Will you marry me, and I won't do the dreadful act?" asked the lady, in tragic tones. "Not much! If you're anxious to be miserable I ain't. But just wait a little till I bring witnesses to prove that you committed felo de se and weren't shoved in the river by me. You know I don't care to be suspected of having been your foul destroyer. I haven't any objection to your dying, but I do object to your getting me into blame. It wouldn't be pleasant to be hung for a gal you always thought a darned fool, anyhow." There was a rapid motion, female skirts were seen to be agitated, and Henry found himself ruminating on his back on the dock, while a female fled with an angry face toward her home. When Henry arose he looked pensive, and his nose was bloody. He said: "Well, I'll be blowed if I know which is the worst—the earnest love of a fond female heart, or the deadly hatred of a prize-fighter. Blast woman, anyhow! They're always a raising a rumpus of some kind."

A Very Poor Joke.

The following paragraph is going the rounds of the press:

The pounding of the stomach for the cure of dyspepsia was the cause of a good joke the other day. Two men were describing what they had done to cure themselves. "Do you knead your stomach?" "I—I—couldn't get along without it!" responded the other, in the last stage of astonishment.

The men who call that a very good joke have never suffered from dyspepsia. They don't know what it is to have a hundred little devils with mallets pounding inside their stomachs. If that last man mentioned, really had been dyspeptic, his answer would have been "Do I need my stomach! Not a bit of it, I wish I could cut the cursed thing out of me." Any dyspeptic man feels as if he could get along without a stomach very easily. Dyspepsia affects the brain.

SELF-MADE MEN.

How often do we hear a man say, when speaking of his business, that he has more than he can attend to. With few rare exceptions, no one has ever built up a business that he can not attend to. Sometimes one will commence a small business, that, by some fortuitous circumstances—such as a good locality, or the want of some energetic man in that line in the same location, etc., and will find that his business has gone far ahead of his expectations, then he is apt to be satisfied with what comes to him without much effort on his part, and talk about having more than he can attend to.

Did one ever hear of Stewart, of Vanderbilt, or Scott, or in fact any of the self-made men of America, ever using the above-named phrase? On the contrary, all, or nearly all of this class of people commenced business in a small way, commensurate with their capital, and by constant application built up their business little by little until they became known to the whole mercantile world.

A large business cannot be built up in a day or a week, but by energy, fair dealing and moderate prices, it can be done in a short time. As a case in point, we will refer to Mr. P. Beamish, a merchant of this city, who, a few years since commenced business on a small scale, but with the determination of increasing that business as much as he could. It was early a principle with Mr. B. to buy for CASH and sell for CASH so that he had no bad debts to counteract the profits on his sales; particular attention was given to the fitting and making of White Shirts so that he soon became known throughout the city by the quality of his work, his low prices, etc.

One other point, Mr. B. has always been careful in and that is, to GUARANTEE all of his goods to be as represented. His stock consists of probably the best selected and most complete lines of Gents Furnishing Goods, White Shirts, etc., etc., on this coast. Mr. Beamish early recognized the fact that Market street was destined to become in time, the principal thoroughfare of the city, and being of that view, he took a lease of the store on the corner of Market and Third street (Nucleus building). It was not long before he had more business than he could accommodate—in the store he then occupied. So he leased the large store adjoining fronting on Market street, and stocked it with one of the most complete assortments of Gents' Ready Made Clothing to be found in this city. Mr. Beamish did not enlarge his business until his capital justified him in doing so, and result was that when he went into the wholesale market as a cash buyer, he not only obtained the latest and most desirable styles but he purchased at a low figure, and as he sells for cash, he, of course, has no outstanding debts, and can afford to sell his goods at a small profit. A visit to his store will convince every purchaser that the goods he sells cannot be bought elsewhere of equal quality at the same figure. This is one of the great secrets of his success. Mr. Beamish remarked to us that he had all sizes of over one hundred different styles of men's and boys, Linen Shirts constantly on hand in store, besides which he keeps employed a large number of practical shirt makers and experienced cutters to fit and make to order at his manufactory.

Great Bargains in Clothing:

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-x

Of Interest to the Wig Wearers.

One of the Eastern funny men says :

If you know of anybody who wears false hair it may be judicious to mention to them that Professor Lindeman announces that he has discovered in the hair sold at the stores "little nodesites collected in colonies of about fifty psorosperms which are sometimes flattened into discoids. When heat is applied they are transformed into pseudo-navicellæ or fusiform corpuscles." Other people may do as they please, but as for myself I would rather pass onward down the vista of years, beyond the purple boundaries of youth and into the serene placidity of a passionless old age as bald as a watermelon than to frisk about with nodosites and fusiform corpuscles in my hair. This information will be valuable for the purpose of detecting persons who wear purchased tresses. When I go to church now and see discoid psorosperms playing their little pranks upon the heads of the women in the pew in front of me, I will know that her coiffure is a base capillary fraud, and when I see a sperical nodosite parading around the rim of a man's hat, I will have sufficient evidence that the man wears a delusive wig. The Indians ought to know about this, for then, when one dashes up to a woman with a tomahawk in his hand, a knife in his teeth, death in his eye, and a yearning for scalps in his heart, a glimpse of the pseudo-navicellæ balancing himself on his hind legs on that woman's waterfall, will induce him to put up his artillery and go home in disgust. What the aboriginal American needs is scientific information.

The California, the Union, the Pacific, and the Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club find Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny a very good substitute, After the theatres are out there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

Opera House.

Billy Emerson in first part and in specialties, Ernest Linden in burlesque prima donna airs, Ben Cotton, Billy Arlington, J. R. Kemble and others in screaming acts, and fascinating Miss Katie and her bold brother Frank, appear nightly at this house. To-morrow evening a great bill will be presented for the benefit of Morris Greenwall.

California Theatre.

"Davy Crockett" with its great scenes of the wolves, and the Lochinvar ride, attracts crowded houses, and will be played every evening this week and at the matinee on Saturday. "The Streets of New York" will be produced on Monday evening of next week.

Maguire's New Theatre.

J. A. Herne Miss Alice Vane and little Fay Templeton in "Rip Van Winkle," the latter in her specialties, and the inimitable E. D. Davies with his four talking figures, present an entertainment which is immensely popular.

Backley's New Variety Theatre.

Johnny Tuers and Harry Devoy in "Clamcel," F. Mortimore, J. Kelly and Hughey Robinson in "The Wig Maker's in Trouble," and many other attractions are offered at this house.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—Professor Miller's the Australian Hercules, champion with broadsword feats, gloves and dumb-bells, will appear at Woodward's, Saturday and Sunday; also, the new troupe, including Little May, the Pearl; the Sheridan Brothers, Will and Frank, and the gymnasts Luprotti and Carson. On Sunday, first of the grand orchestral concerts by Wetterman's new grand orchestra, the largest on the coast.

Notes.

Miss Ellie Wilton, Miss Belle Chapman, Frank Gilder, Alfred Wilki, Daniel O'Connell, C. H. Mestayer, P. H. McGowan, and the correspondents of the New York Clipper and Wilkes' Spirit of the Times, will give an entertainment at San Mateo on Saturday for the benefit of St. Matthew's Church. It will consist of recitations from the poets and vocal and instrumental music.

Push, Pluck and Prosperity.

"Nothing succeeds like success." This is a patronage which every person likes to hug, but it has no better illustration than in the case of the great I. X. L. Auction House on the southeast corner of Kearny and Commercial streets. The reason is plain. All the substantial advantages which can be procured from the agencies of liberality and enterprise are to be obtained there; the proprietors are business prodigies in pushing trade and gratifying patrons. All articles of clothing, ornament and use are to be had there at astonishingly low prices, and the industries of the world are taxed to supply the demand of the establishment. There's guarantee of success for you.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen!
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins'g
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

A SONG FOR ALL SEASONS.

Let us drink to the Past! There are thoughts that float
Unwrecked down the current of life's wayward stream;
There are eyes on whose brightness our own loved to dote,
That still through the mists of old memories gleam;
And shall these be forgotten? Oh, no! In each glass
We'll reflect them in beads bubbling up to the brink,
And these for the pearls of the ancients shall pass,
A treasure to hallow the cup that we drink.

Let us drink to the present! Whilst bliss crowns the hours
'Tis folly to grieve for the joys that are gone;
The wise among mortals will gather the flowers
That these would but scatter their odors alone;
And shall these be forgotten? Oh, no! Like the orb,
That as it sinks from mortal sight shadow extends,
We'll twine a fresh wreath, and our toast shall absorb
The Past in the present—"Old loves and new friends."

Let us drink to the Future before us, and mark
How the tide of the present rolls on to the past;
But with Faith for our pilot and Hope for our bark,
However fierce we shall find a good haven at last;
And shall this be forgotten? No, never! We'll still Blend the past with the present in friendship and love,
And whilst slowly toiling through life up the hill,
Keep our gaze on the sunshine that sparkles above.

George Eliot and Shakspeare.

Scribner's Monthly says: George Eliot, within her range—and her range, though, unlike Shakespeare's, it may have definite determinable limits, is still very wide—, George Eliot, I say, within her range is every whit as dramatic as Shakspeare. So natural is the dramatic method to her genius that her novels are often conceived in a succession of scenes, instead of in the continuity of narration. But when, ceasing for the moment to be dramatic, she uses the privileges of her novelist to be expressly psychological, her analysis of character and motive becomes so subtle and searching that mere dramatic exhibition seems almost vulgar in comparison: Hamlet's soliloquy is greatly admired for the depth and subtlety of psychological implication which it contains. But there is many and many a passage of clairvoyant vision and revelation in the sphere of human charsoter and motive to be found in George Eliot's works that makes Hamlet's soliloquy superficial and tame. George Eliot's knowledge in the deep things of the human heart, in short, is hardly second to anything elsewhere exhibited in the whole realm of literature. There are marks enough in her writing of varied and watchful observation. But the knowledge of the human heart that George Eliot displays is not an acquired knowledge. It was born with her and in her. It is genius. It is a gift which is Shakspearean in quality—one might, perhaps, as well be frankly true to himself and out with his thought—it is finer than Shakspeare. In quantity it is less, but in quality it is more.

A Wonderful Escape.

After dinner, one day, at a Liverpool table d'hote, a young man was relating how he had miraculously escaped from a fearful shipwreck. "Yes," said he, "fifteen of my friends were on board. The vessel went down, and they were all lost." "But how," asked a listener, whose interest was painfully excited, "did you manage to escape?" "Oh," was the calm reply, "I was on board another vessel!"

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsable house. 7-bg

Family Oyster Rooms.

It is fashionable for ladies, now-a-days, to go to Joe Guntti's new Family Oyster Rooms, 105 California Market, for their meals: Joe, with natural gallantry, saves for them his finest oysters, the fattest quails and the choicest onops and steaks. Open night and day. 9-oi

Too Attentive to Business.

Max Adeler of the Danbury News says: Metcalf's grocery store in our place has been closed for a week or so. Metcalf was perfectly willing to have it open, but circumstances rendered it necessary for him to suspend business for a while. There had been a good many burglaries, and Metcalf bought a dog to keep in his store at night. The man that sold the dog said that its one strong peculiarity was its vigilance. That dog would watch that store closer than the Genius of Liberty watches the destinies of America. So the man turned the dog loose in the store and Metcalf locked up and went home. When he came down in the morning the dog flew at him as soon as he opened the door and attempted to breakfast on Mr. Metcalf's legs; whereupon Mr. Metcalf suddenly shut the door and sat down to think. Then he went after the man who sold the dog, but he had gone out of town to see his aunt, and wouldn't be back for a month. Metcalf then undertook to coax the dog through the crack of the door, but the animal still manifested a resolute determination to chew Metcalf's legs, and so Metcalf closed the door again and began to wish he had bought a dog less attentive to business. Then he procured a double-barrelled gun and spent the remainder of the week shooting slugs and bullets down the chimney, and through the doors and windows, and up through the cellar ceiling, and still the dog held out, until finally Metcalf got a section of wire fence, placed it across the doorway, opened the door and banged the obnoxious animal into eternity. Then he entered and found that he had shot holes through the molasses cans and the coal-oil barrels, and had blown all the China ware to atoms, so that the store looked as if a fifteen-inch shell had burst in it. Metcalf cleaned up and resumed; but he is anxiously awaiting that man's return from his visit to his aunt's. He wants to see him about something.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-cj

FRIDAY.....OCTOBER 16, 1874

"The New York Republic."

We have received the first issue of the above named paper. It is a handsome looking paper and shows brains. Among its editorials is one a column in length on "The Dramatic Season." We quote the concluding paragraph:

"Remembering always that our first duty is to the public, we shall seek to extend to purveyors of public amusements cordial and just appreciation. Both praise and censure cease to have a meaning when applied without suitable analysis and discrimination. Your truest artists or managers are ever those who deprecate unqualified comment of every sort, and prefer the criticism that implies a careful and earnest study and comprehension of their methods and their means. In this spirit we shall strive to deal with current dramatic and musical events—the latter of which will demand separate and speedy consideration—and hope to maintain in these departments of The Republic that character for impartial justice and liberal courtesy which it is intended shall be established in all."

A Great Truth.

The San Jose Mercury, which is a philosophical paper, speaking of the frequency of suicide, sensibly remarks:

A man killing himself to escape trouble is a good deal like "jumping out of the frying pan into the fire." He will find it impossible to get away from himself. Hence, he had better grin and bear it, if things are a little uncomfortable.

Of course the Mercury does not mean that a man jumps out of the frying pan of this world in which he is in a perpetual stew, into the fire of Hell. It simply expresses Hamlet's idea that the dreams which will haunt a man after he has got out of the body will probably give him as much pain as the physical sufferings of this world. Killing the body will not ease the mind.

Natural Little Boy.

When young Master Albert Victor, eldest son and heir of Wales, is punished by his royal grandmama, he is sent under the table. Master Albert Victor, upon a recent occasion, being refractory before visitors, was requested to take his usual position. After a little time, being supposed to be thoroughly cured and corrected, he was requested to emerge from beneath the table cloth. He came, but like a chip of the old block, the future King of England had taken the liberty of stripping all his drapery off. His brevet majesty was, in point of fact, nude.

"The Bohemian."

When we said yesterday in speaking of this publication, which is to make its appearance to-morrow, "the Bohemian Club as a club, has nothing to do with it," we meant that the Bohemian Club did not intend to publish the paper, and had nothing to do with its business arrangements. "The Bohemian" will be published under the auspices of the Bohemian Club, and will contain such reports of its proceedings as the members may see fit to make public. To this extent and no more it will be the organ of the Bohemian Club.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corvillie keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

The California, the Union, the Pacific, and the Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club and Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny a very good substitute. After the theatres are out there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

Feminine Vagaries.

If to her share some female errors fall,
Look on her face, and you'll forget them all.

A facetious young lady wickedly remarks that the reason some peculiar equipages are called dog-carts is that puppies always ride in them.

When a widow in any neighborhood sets her cap for a man, there isn't one chance in a million for any young woman to win, even if she holds the four aces.

There was a young woman named Hannah, who behaved in a frivolous manner; while her pa stood in prayer, she put tacks in his chair; which he sat on, and cussed his Hannah.

Mrs. Obase of Ohio was arrested the first time she appeared with her trousers on, and now she's going to mortgage her farm and see whether this is a free country or a monarchy.

The ladies are wild about wax work, and are to attempt incredible things in that line this winter. Artists' materials are to be ransacked; indeed, many have begun the work of collecting now.

Susan Jane must have been scantily dressed when she was looking out for her lover and sang—He'll come to-night; the wind's at rest, the moon is full and fair; I wear the dress that pleased him best—A ribbon in my hair.

The straw and felt hats are rather old-stylish in shape, but when a woman faces the turned up front with pale blue, puts a cluster of tea roses smack in front, red breasted bird above that, and a long-tailed plume beyond that, then lashes this creation on the back of her head cooked at an angle of 45 degrees, the deed is done.

Minnie Bedell advertises her husband in this manner: Whereas, my charming husband, Daniel C. Bedell, has left me for the twelfth time, without just cause or provocation, this is to warn all persons from trusting him on any account, as I am done paying his debts and supporting him. Hereafter he must "cut his own feed" or starve.

The St. Louis Republican is responsible for the story that a widow in Western Missouri, daughter of a former noted railroad officer, repairs to the tomb of her husband every evening at sunset, enters the vault and seats herself in a chair formerly used by the departed, where she remains an hour, and she has done this with scarcely an intermission for two years since her husband's death.

Sea-Side Science.

On the piazza of a Long Branch hotel the other evening says the Virginia Independent, the following conversation between a pretty young woman and her chevalier was overheard:

She—Why have the newspapers been making so much fuss about the transit of Venus? Who cares anything about it?

He—It's a matter of great interest to science; but you women neither know nor want to know anything of science. Your sex would not make a voyage to the South Sea, except to find out how Venus might be dressed.

She—If I remember my mythology aright Venus didn't wear anything in particular; and now I understand why the men have gone so far to look at her. Almost any man would go several thousand miles to see a woman who had neglected to put on her clothes.

He was silent, having manifestly received new light on the subject.

"The Daily Post."

The Footlights of Virginia City has been much improved and enlarged by its proprietors Brown & Mahanny, and its name changed to "The Daily Post." It continues to publish the full programme of Piper's Opera House. Its politics are Democratic, and it is pitching into Sharon, Charley De Long, and their supporters with considerable vim.

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 209 Sutter street near Kearny. 8-bg

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-y

A Missionary to Cyprus.

The Washington Critic says: At the Plymouth ovation on Friday night last, amongst the fanciful legends displayed was the following: "Love—His motto always was love." There seems to have been considerable difference in the quality of that article dealt out to Elizabeth and Theodore, the latter having a peculiarly refreshing instance of Beecher's love on Saturday in the form of an indictment by the Grand Jury, based on his affectionate pastor's testimony. We are beginning to learn what the gospel of love means in the hands of a professor of gush. Sunday followed up the programme at Plymouth Church by literally clothing its interior with flowers, the fragrance and beauty of which have always been considered appropriate offerings to Cupid and Venus. Not Sybaris in its palmiest days could beat our modern Christians of Brooklyn for sensuous delights. H. W. B. should certainly be sent as a missionary to Cyprus.

SELF-MADE MEN.

How often do we hear a man say, when speaking of his business, that he has more than he can attend to. With few rare exceptions, no one has ever built up a business that he can not attend to. Sometimes one will commence a small business, that, by some fortuitous circumstances—such as a good location, or the want of some energetic man in that line in the same location, etc., and will find that his business has gone far ahead of his expectations, then he is apt to be satisfied with what comes to him without much effort on his part, and talk about having more than he can attend to.

Did one ever hear of Stewart, of Vanderbilt, or Scott, or in fact any of the self-made men of America, ever using the above-named phrase? On the contrary, all, or nearly all of this class of people commenced business in a small way, commensurate with their capital, and by constant application built up their business little by little until they became known to the whole mercantile world.

A large business cannot be built up in a day or a week, but by energy, fair dealing and moderate prices, it can be done in a short time. As a case in point, we will refer to Mr. P. Beamish, a merchant of this city, who, a few years since commenced business on a small scale, but with the determination of increasing that business as much as he could. It was early a principle with Mr. B. to buy for CASH and sell for CASH so that he had no bad debts to counteract the profits on his sales; particular attention was given to the fitting and making of White Shirts so that he soon became known throughout the city by the quality of his work, his low prices, etc.

One other point, Mr. B. has always been careful in and that is, to GUARANTEE all of his goods to be as represented. His stock consists of probably the best selected and most complete lines of Gents Furnishing Goods, White Shirts, etc., etc., on this coast. Mr. Beamish early recognized the fact that Market street was destined to become in time, the principal thoroughfare of the city, and being of that view, he took a lease of the store on the corner of Market and Third street (Nucleus building). It was not long before he had more business than he could accommodate—in the store he then occupied. So he leased the large store adjoining fronting on Market street, and stocked it with one of the most complete assortments of Gents' Ready Made Clothing to be found in this city. Mr. Beamish did not enlarge his business until his capital justified him in doing so, and result was that when he went into the wholesale market as a cash buyer, he not only obtained the latest and most desirable styles but he purchased at a low figure, and as he sells for cash, he, of course, has no outstanding debts, and can afford to sell his goods at a small profit. A visit to his store will convince every purchaser that the goods he sells cannot be bought elsewhere of equal quality at the same figure. This is one of the great secrets of his success. Mr. Beamish remarked to us that he had all sizes of over one hundred different styles of men's and boys. Linen Shirts constantly on hand in store, besides which he keeps employed a large number of practical shirt makers and experienced cutters to fit and make to order at his manufactory.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

To-night and at the matinee to-morrow the highly successful play of "Davy Crockett" with Frank Mayo and Miss Rosa Rand in the leading roles will be presented. Mr. Mayo has every reason to be satisfied with the success he has met with, the audiences having been larger than during his first engagement at this theatre.

Maguire's New Theatre.

J. A. Herne, Miss Alice Vane and Fay Templeton will appear to-night in the play of "Rip Van Winkle." Fay Templeton will present some of her most attractive songs and impersonations and the wonderful Davies will present his unrivalled ventriloquial entertainment. The same bill which has delighted so many during the week will be performed at the matinee to-morrow.

Opera House.

To-night for the benefit of Morris Greenwall, after an excellent first part Ernest Linden will appear in his prima donna impersonations, Billy Arlington in a banjo solo, the act of "Good Morning" will be played, Emerson will present some of his most brilliant specialties, J R Kemble, Ben Cotton and Billy Arlington will appear in the screaming farce of "Scientific Experiments" and Miss Lottie who has recovered from her indisposition will appear with her brother Frank in the great feat of "The Aerostatic Voyage." At the matinee to-morrow Harry Rickards and Miss Carrie Rickards will make her first appearance at this house, and Miss Lottie and Frank will appear with Billy Emerson and the great combination of stars engaged at this house.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Johnny Tuers is a host in himself. He is one of the funniest, eccentric Ethiopian comedians on the stage, and while he is on the stage keeps the audience in a roar of laughter. The new bill for to-night is published on our first page, is full of laughable acts.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—Professor Miller, the Australian Hercules, champion with broadsword foils, gloves and dumb-bells, will appear at Woodward's, Saturday and Sunday; also, the new troupe, including Little May, the Pearl; the Sheridan Brothers, Will and Frank, and the gymnasts Luproil and Carson. On Sunday, first of the grand orchestral concerts by Wetterman's new grand orchestra, the largest on the coast.

Push, Pluck and Prosperity.

"Nothing succeeds like success." This is a pet adage which every person likes to hug, but it has no better illustration than in the case of the great I. X. L. Auction House on the southeast corner of Kearny and Commercial streets. The reason is plain. All the substantial advantages which can be procured from the agencies of liberality and enterprise are to be obtained there; the proprietors are business prodigies in pushing trade and gratifying patrons. All articles of clothing, ornament and use are to be had there at astonishingly low prices, and the industries of the world are taxed to supply the demand of the establishment. There's guarantee of success for you.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-t

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the ... and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Mr. Meyer, in his new and elegant premises, will be able to better accommodate his numerous patrons. 7-bg

GRANDPA'S SOLILOQUY.

It wasn't so when I was young,
We used plain language then;
We didn't speak of "them galoot,"
When m aning boys or men.

When speaking of the nice hand-write
Of Joe, or Tom, or Bill,
We did it plain—we di n't say,
"He swings a nasty quill."

An' when we seed a girl we liked,
Who never failed to please,
We called her pretty, neat and good,
But not "about the cheese,"

Well, when we met a good old friend
We hadn't lately seen,
We greet d him—but didn't say,
"Hello, you old sardine!"

The boys sometimes got mad and fit;
We spoke of kicks and blows;
But now they "whack him in the snoot,"
And "paste him on the nose,"

Once when a youth was turned away
From her he loved most dear,
He walked off on his feet—but now
He "crawls off on his ear."

We used to dance when I was young,
And used to call it so;
But now they don't—they only "sling
The light fantastic toe."

Of death we speak in language plain,
That no one will perplex;
But in these days one doesn't die—
He passes in his "checks."

We praised the man of common sense;
His judgment's good, we said:
But now they say, "Well, that old plum
Has got a level head."

It's rather sad the children now
Are learning all such talk:
They've learned to "chin" instead of chat,
And "wal x" instead of walk.

To little Harry yesterday—
My grandchild, aged two—
I said "You love grandpa?" said he,
"You bet your boots I do."

The children bowed to strangers once;
It is no longer so—
The little girls, as well as boys,
Now greet you with "Hello!"

Oh, give me back the good old days,
When both the old and young
Conversed in plain, old-fashioned words,
And slang was never "slung."

Arabian Criticism.

Sheikh Nasif el Yazily was a famous Arab poet and scholar, and a young man brought him a poem to be corrected. He told him to call in a few days and get it. He came again, and the Sheikh said to him, "Your poem is like the missionary's prickly pear."

"The missionary's prickly pear?" said the young poet.

"What do you mean?"

"Why," said the Sheikh, "Dr.——, a missionary, when he first came to Syria, had a dish of prickly pears set before him to eat. Not liking to eat the seeds, he began to pick them out, and when he had picked out all the seeds there was nothing left. So your poem. You asked me to remove the errors, and I found that when I had taken out all the errors there was not anything left."

Bunker's Club House Sausages.

A delicious table delicacy. They are made of dairy-fed pork, are admirably seasoned, and are a superior to the ordinary dry, tasteless sausage made of beef and pork mixed, as anything can be imagined. Made fresh every morning at Bunker's Stall 74 and 75 California Market, California street entrance. Try them. n

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsable house. 7-bg

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the professsion and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescoed and is now a model of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

Family Oyster Rooms.

It is fashionable for ladies, now-a-days, to go to Joe Giusti's new Family Oyster Rooms, 105 California Market, for their meals: Joe, with natural gallantry, saves for them his finest oysters, the fattest quails and the choicest chops and steaks. Open night and day. 9-bi

Burkhardt's 540 Washington street.

French calf boots made to order for $8; box toed gaiters made to order for $6; oxford tie shoes made to order for $4; boy's boots made to order for $6; and large assortment of boots and shoes, all of Burkhardt's own make, at equally low sales, at 540 Washington street. 9-b

New Wine and Oyster House.

Mr. A. Freeman, formerly under the California Theatre, has opened his new Wine and Oyster House, at 228 Sutter street opposite the Centre Market. Oysters fresh from the beds, and Wines of the finest brands. 8.

MR. L. JALLEWINE, No. 240 Kearny street, New and Second-Hand Clothing, of all descriptions bought and sold. Stores closed on Sat-

Imitating the Davenport Brothers.

Young Brewer, of New Castle, has a turn for legerdemain, and the other night when he was down at the club-room with a party of young fellows, the performances of the Davenport Brothers were discussed. Brewer offered to bet that if any one in the crowd would tie him up on a chair, he could untie himself just like the Davenports. Mr. Eccles took the bet, and procuring a clothesline he put Brewer in the president's heavy arm-chair and tied him fast. Then Brewer said he must be alone, and he told the party to go down to the drug store and wait for him, as he would be along in about five minutes. They went and waited; they waited for an hour and a-half, and then as the great knot-unraveller did not appear, they concluded to go up after him. As they ascended the staircase they heard groans. A little farther up they heard Brewer holding an animated conversation with himself, during which he intimated clearly that he would regard it as a personal favor if somebody would burn the Davenport Brothers at the stake. Then he groaned again. When the party entered the room, they found that the chair had fallen forward on top of the rope-annihilator, and, as he was still tied fast he was lying with his face on the floor and his back arched up so that it fit close to the back of the chair, while his nose was bleeding copiously. When they lifted him up he had a bump on his forehead as large a Rambo apple, and a swelled nose. When they asked him why he hadn't untied himself, he did not answer; but as soon as they set him free, he wiped his face with his coat-sleeve, and doubling up his ensanguined fist, he shook it under Mr. Eccles's nose and exclaimed: "You white-livered, mean-spirited, chuckle-headed pirate! If I had known you were going to put that half-hitch around the chair-leg I'd 've knocked the stuffin' out of you in the first place." Then he went home, and the club resumed its deliberations.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-oj

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

VIRGINIA CITY.—On Monday that excellent actor, A. D. Billings, had a benefit, and the papers say it was not half as well attended as it should have been. On Tuesday Miss Annette Ince took a benefit and appeared in "Camille's Husband," and had a still thinner house. On Wednesday Zoe made her appearance in "The French Spy." The public had evidently been holding back for this event. The Post says:—"A densely packed house was present la t evening to witness the initial appearance of the famed Zoe. Sitting room could not be had and even standing room was in demand." This play was r peated on the following evening and last night "Bertha, the Sewing Girl," was performed.

GRASS VALLEY.—The Union of the 16th says; Tony Ward, an accomplished actor and vocalist, leaves his home in Grass Valley this morning, under an engagement at Portland, Oregon.

SAN MATEO.—An entertainment will be given this evening for the benefit of the Organ Fund of St. Matthew's Church, by Miss Ellie Wilton, Miss Blanche Chapman, Frank Gilder, Alfred Wilkie, Daniel O'Connell, Walter M. Fisher, Frank Unger, T. J. Vivian and others. A great programme of readings, recitations and vocal and instrumental music will be performed. There will be a large attendance of people from San Francisco.

SAN JOSE.—Miss Kate Denin, J. K. Mortimer, and a dramatic company have been giving entertainments at the Opera House during the week with poor success. The Mercury says:—"Had the Kent Troupe waited a week it would have been otherwise. The theatre going public would have been rested, and ready for another dose." Nice way of expressing it, "Another dose!" The San Jose people seem to think that going to theatre is like going to school. Perhaps it is.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

The California, the Union, the Pacific, and the Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club find Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny a very good substitute. After the theatres are out there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 212 Kearny street, from 1 to 3 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. x

Bunker's Club House Sausages.

A delicious table delicacy. They are made of dairy-fed pork, are admirably seasoned, and are far superior to the ordinary dry, tasteless sausage made of beef and pork mixed, as anything can be imagined. Made fresh every morning at Bunker's Stall 74 and 75 California Market, California street entrance. Try them. n

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co, proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsible house. 7-bg

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the profession and all epicures who can appreciate good liquors and good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescoed and is now a modle of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

PEACE IS DECLARED in all families who buy their furniture and bedding of J. A. Shaber & Co., 707 Market street, near Third, because they get better goods for the same price than any other dealer. 7-

FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

Mr. Andrew Halliday is the author of a grand spectacular drama entitled "Richard Coeur de Lion," founded on Sir Walter Scott's "Talismans," which was produced in London, on September 26th, with Mr. James Anderson as Richard, Mr Creswick as Saladin, Mr. W. T ris as Sir Kenneth, Mr. H. Sinclair a Conrad, Miss Wallis as Edith Plantagenet, and Miss Bessie King as Queen Berengaria.

An endeavor is now being made to have some of the London music halls opened on Sundays for the performance of concerts of sacred music, in pursuance of the suggestion of the National Sunday League, an association formed for the purpose of introducing into England what is known as a Continental Sunday. The same society have originated the movement for the opening of museums on Sundays.

Mr. H. J. Byron has resigned the management of the Criterion Theatre, in London.

Mrs. John Wood is on a tour of the English provincial theatres, with Mr. H. J. Byron's play of "An American Lady."

"The Two Orphans," adapted to the English stage by John Oxenford was produced at the London Olympic Theatre on Sept. 14th.

Capoul makes his debut in St. Petersburg on the 15th.

The people of Cambridge, England, must be ardent admirers of the realistic drama, if we may judge from the following paragraph in the London Era:—At the Theatre Royal, Cambridge, on the 11th inst, the performances wound up with the tragedy of "Maria Martin; or, the Murder at the Red Barn." The curtain fell after William Corder, the murderer, had been brought to the scaffold, and with the rope dangling above his head "improved the occasion." The audience refused to leave, and when the orchestra played the National Anthem, it was received with hisses and clamor, and the audience remained in their places. At length Mr. Frederick Hughes, the Manager, presented himself, and apologized for being unable to gratify his patrons by actually hanging the actor—Mr. Concannen—who represented the murderer, William Corder, unless with his own consent, which he was hardly likely to give. The gods shouted furiously "Bring him out with the rope round his neck." Of course the demand was not complied with, and after more demonstrations of their desire to see the representative of the Suffolk murderer actually hanged, the crowded audience slowly and with manifest reluctance left the house."

E. T. Stetson had better go to England with his brains, in which he is hanged, and see if he can prevail on the Lord Chamberlain to allow him to present his realistic execution.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

SELF-MADE MEN.

How often do we hear a man say, when speaking of his business, that he has more than he can attend to. With few rare exceptions, no one has ever built up a business that he can not attend to. Sometimes one will commence a small business, that, by some fortunate circumstances—such as a good locality, or the want of some energetic man in that line in the same location, etc., and will find that his business has gone far ahead of his expectations, then he is apt to be satisfied with what comes to him without much effort on his part, and talk about having more than he can attend to.

Did one ever hear of Stewart, of Vanderbilt, or Scott, or in fact any of the self-made men of America, ever using the above-named phrase? On the contrary, all, or nearly all of this class of people commenced business in a small way, commensurate with their capital, and by constant application built up their business little by little until they became known to the whole mercantile world.

A large business cannot be built up in a day or a week, but by energy, fair dealing and moderate prices, it can be done in a short time. As a case in point, we will refer to Mr. P. Beamish, a merchant of this city, who, a few years since commenced business on a small scale, but with the determination of increasing that business as much as he could. It was early a principle with Mr. B. to buy for CASH and sell for CASH so that he had no bad debts to counteract the profits on his sales; particular attention was given to the fitting and making of White Shirts so that he soon became known throughout the city by the quality of his work, his low prices, etc.

One other point, Mr. B. has always been careful in and, that is, to GUARANTEE all of his goods to be as represented. His stock consists of probably the best selected and most complete lines of Gents Furnishing Goods, White Shirts, etc., etc., on this coast. Mr. Beamish early recognized the fact that Market street was destined to become in time, the principal thoroughfare of the city, and being of that view, he took a lease of the store on the corner of Market and Third street (Nucleus building). It was not long before he had more business than he could accommodate—in the store he then occupied. So he leased the large store adjoining fronting on Market street, and stocked it with one of the most complete assortments of Gents' Ready Made Clothing to be found in this city. Mr. Beamish did not enlarge his business until his capital justified him in doing so, and result was that when he went into the wholesale market as a cash buyer, he not only obtained the latest and most desirable styles but he purchased at a low figure, and as he sells for cash, he, of course, has no outstanding debts, and can afford to sell his goods at a small profit. A visit to his store will convince every purchaser that the goods he sells cannot be bought elsewhere of equal quality at the same figure. This is one of the great secrets of his success. Mr. Beamish remarked to us that he had all sizes of over one hundred different styles of men's and boys. Linen Shirts constantly on hand in store, besides which he keeps employed a large number of practical shirt makers and experienced cutters to fit and make to order at his manufactory.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

MAGUIRE'S NEW THEATRE.—The entertainment to be given at this house at the matinee to-day, this evening and to-morrow evening is of a very attractive description. J. A. Herne's performance of "Rip Van Winkle" is generally endorsed as high art, Fay Templeton's character songs delight everyone, and the inimitable E. D. Davies keeps the audience in a roar of laughter during the whole time he is on the stage. The company is a very complete one. In consequence of the great success of "Rip Van Winkle," it will be played every evening until further notice.

OPERA HOUSE.—One of the largest audiences of the season was present at the Opera House last night when Morris Greenwall was the recipient of a benefit. The doors were no sooner opened than the house was filled to overflowing. Miss Lottie was greeted with enthusiastic applause on making her reappearance and performed "The Aerostatic Voyage" with her brother Frank, with her accustomed grace and daring. At the matinee to-day, Harry Rickards and Miss Carrie Rickards, will make their first appearance at this house Billy Emerson will appear in his most brilliant specialties, Billy Arlington in banjo solos, J. R. Kemble, Ben Cotton and others in amusing acts and Miss Lottie and Frank in their most thrilling aerial performance. The same bill will be performed this evening and to-morrow evening.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—"Davy Crockett" with the added attractions of the elopement on horseback has drawn crowded houses during the present week. It will be presented at the matinee to-day and this evening for the last time.

PROMENADE CONCERT.—A grand promenade concert will be given by the First Regiment Infantry, N. G. C., Col. W. H. L. Barnes commanding, at the Mechanic's Pavilion, on Tuesday evening, October 27th. The orchestra under the direction of Professor George T. Evans, will consist of fifty performers. The fashion of San Francisco will be numerously present.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETY THEATRE.—To night in addition to other attractions, Miss Della Wilmot, Miss Jessie Le Clair, and that old favorite Miss Fanny Webster, will appear. Johnny Thoes will appear in song and dance, and Frank Mortimore, Miss Maggie Brewer and a host of others in amusing acts.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—Professor Miller the Australian Hercules, champion with broadsword foils, gloves and dumb-bells, will appear at Woodward's, Saturday and Sunday; also, the new troupe, including Little May, the Pearl; the Sheridan Brothers, Will and Frank, and the gymnasts Luproil and Carson. On Sunday, first of the grand orchestral concerts by Watterman's new grand orchestra, the largest on the coast.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain Railroad.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms. Guido Mangenberg, the proprietor, gets up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

NOTES.—We are sure the public will be pleased to learn that Chiarini and his Royal Italian Circus Troupe are passengers on the steamer Japan, due here on Monday, and that they will shortly give a season of equestrian performances in this city. The great Italian Manager has been showing in the larger cities of Australia, China, the Indies and Japan; since he left here, two years ago, to excellent businesss. We learn from Mr. Astredo, that Chiarini and his company were passengers on the steamer Costa Rica from Shanghia to Yokanama, which encountered the great typhoon of August 21st and 22d, off the coast of Japan, and that they had rather a hard time of it. For nearly two days and two nights, during the steamer's battle with the wild seas and furious typhoon, Chiarini's valuable trained horses were the objects of unremitting attention by himself and his company. But the staunch steamer carried them through the storm victoriously and landed both men and animals a little the worse for wear, but safe and unharmed, at Yokohama.

The California Ethiopian Minstrels will give their third invitation and ball at Platt's Hall on Thursday evening October 29th. There will be a first part in which Messrs. Freeman, Cosgrove, Post and Farley will sing, an interlude and an afterpiece.

The fourth invitation ball of the French Zouaves, Captain Lavigne commanding, will come off at Platt's Hall on November 7th. The Zouaves manage these affairs admirably; the attendance is sure to be large and fashionable.

The great topic of conversation in all circles is the Carnival Ball, which is to come off on Friday, October 23d, at the Pavilion. An army of decorators are at work in the building transforming it into a magnificent ball room. Next Sunday the Olympic Club, the Turn Verein and others will rehearse the sets which they will perform on this occasion. The costumers are full of orders and dresses are on their way from Paris. The Carnival Ball is bound to be a success. Particulars as to tickets, etc., can be found on our first page. Over 3,000 applications for tickets have already been received.

John McCullough appeared at the Opera House Pittsburgh on the 12th, and made a great success. He goes to Cleveland next week.

Mlle Marie Gaugain the danseuse is a great favorite in St Louis.

"The Streets of New York" with new scenery and grand effects and Frank Mayo as Badger will be produced at the California Theatre on Monday evening.

The scene painters and carpenters at Maguire's New Theatre are engaged on a new piece which will shortly be produced and will certainly create a sensation. It is "M. Alphonse."

Willie Edouin who was a great favorite here has made a prodigious hit in "Blue Beard" with the Lydia Thompson Troupe in London.

Lewis Aldrich formerly of Maguire's Opera House on Washington street is at Wood's Museum

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, Mons O. Kolletz appeared at the Lyceum Theatre on the 5th, opening in "La Fille de Madame Angot".....At the Academy of Music the opera of "La Figlia del Reggimento," "Faust," and "Aida" were produced with much success. Mlle. Heilbron is a great success.....Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams were to close their engagement at Booth's Theatre on the 17th..... The novelty at the Fifth Avenue Theatre on the 10th, was a new comedy by Augustin Daly entitled "The Two Widows," embodying Longfellow's poem of "The Hanging of the Crane," the scenes being represented in tableaux by the company. Sheridan's "Critic" condensed to one act, made up the bill. Miss Annie Graham is shortly to make her appearance in Bronson Howard's new American drama entitled "Moorcroft".....At the Union Square Theatre, "The Sphinx" continues to draw large audiences. Olande Burroughs having gone to Philadelphia to act his original part in "Led Astray" a change has been made in the cast; Eben Plympton of Wallack's Theatre, plays Everard..... E. L. Davenport has terminated his engagement at Wood's Museum. "A Flash of Lightning" was the attraction at the evening performances....At the Park Theatre, "The Golden Age," with John T. Raymond as Col. Sellers is evidently up for a long run....."The Deluge" with introduced specialties constituted the attraction at Niblo's..... At Booth's Theatre, H. J. Montague who followed Toole, has made a success in Byron's comedy of "Partners for Life." The New York Spirit of the Times says; Modesty and merit are so often allied, that when we observe the first we generally expect the latter. The infallibility of this axiom gains additional testimony in the appearance of Mr. Montague at Wallack's Theatre on last Tuesday evening as Tom Gilroy in Byron's three-act comedy of "Partners for Life." In marked contrast to his alien predecessor, he came among us unheralded. Like a man of merit, he studiously avoided that ephemeral popularity which endures only as long as the wine effervesces—courted no notoriety and played no bunco. He appeared for the first time in America as actor whose success or failure depended upon his own efforts. He was cordially received, and in a few moments had made a favorable impression by his gentlemanly manners, handsome face, and positive talent. Mr. Montague is an important acquisition to the American stage, and he fills a place which has been unoccupied for a long time. He is a young and fresh Lester Wallack in style. Of an amiable and sunny temperament, a quick and ready intelligence, an intuitive comprehension of the ludicrous situations of comedy, and a gallant bearing, he captures one's interest with his merry and ingenuous light-heartedness and never loses his hold. After he overcame the inevitable nervousness of a debut in a foreign land he gave his pleasant talent the reins and rode gayly over all prejudice to the citadel of Good Opinion. We welcome him cordially, and predict that he need never return to England if good, fat engagements will induce him to remain with us. That there are defects in Mr. Montague's style and art we appreciate. There is a certain lack of personal force which will come to him in good time, and some trifling mannerisms to which we are not accustomed; but these blemishes are so far overcome by what is absolutely good in him, and he pleases one so well with his cheery and blithesome disposition, which adds a grace to these imperfections, that we willingly overlook them. Mr. Montague had two fortuitous circumstances to aid him in making his first appearance a success—first, a splendid support; and second, a charming play that fitted his style perfectly.

Mr. Howard Paul is about to present his impersonations in Philadelphia and Baltimore. His style has proved too refined and finished for variety theatres.

Sheridan, Mack & Day's Combination opened the Montgomery (Ala.) Theatre on Sept. 29, to an excellent audience. Sheridan and Mack made a decided hit in their rapid character changes from old age to youth. Alicia Jourdan in character songs, the Stuart Sisters, little Carrie Boswell, Dan Devere, banjoist, Ella Arnold and Lester and Allen, song and dance artists, all came in for a share of liberal applause. Charleston, S. C., 12, 13, 14 Wilmington, N. C., 15, Norfolk, Va., 16, Petersburg 17, Richmond 19, 20.

At the Howard Athenæum the coming week the Vokes Family will be the special attraction. They will appear on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, and on Wednesday afternoon in the "Belles of the Kitchen;" Thursday and Friday evenings and Saturday afternoon in "Fun in a Fog," and Saturday evening in the "Belles of the Kitchen."

The Aimee Opera Bouffe Company commence a season at the New Globe Theatre, Boston, January 4th.

Edwin Adams and Mr. Gotthold struggled through "Damon and Pythias," in Allaghany, Pa., on Wednesday, Sept. 23.

The Tom Thumb troupe has just made a three years' tour around the world, during which they travelled 55 487 miles, 31 216 by sea, and gave 1,412 entertainments in 278 different cities and towns in the four quarters of the globe, without meeting with a single accident, or losing a single appointment by sickness.

A Philadelphia correspondent of the Newark (N. J.) Advertiser writes: "It will astonish your readers to be told that the great American actor's will has been a very stumbling block to the executors, and it will be painful reading for you to learn that the actor's housekeeper, the actor's business manager, and the actor's executors have not amicably hitched horses. Mr. Forrest had two female servants, sisters, that he found for years faithful and true to him. It was supposed that the good servants would have some provision made for them, but no; they were not mentioned in the will. The business manager too, Mr. McArdle, had served Mr. Forrest well for years, but, unfortunately, by some accident, had lost $3,000 of the actor's money, and instead of finding an item friendly to him in the will, one charging him with the $3,000 was found. The opening of the will of course made consternation, and Mr. Dan Dougherty, one of the executors, thought it best to shut up the Forrest brownstone mansion on Broad street.

"In an exceedingly happy manner he offered to pay the women one week's salary if they would leave the house. His principal reason for getting rid of them, it was supposed, was to prevent Mr. McArdle from having shelter in it. The women became indignant and left, refusing the pittance which Dan had offered them. But Dan failed so far as McArdle was concerned, for he stuck, and sticks to this day, and the neighbors say that the late comings and goings into the once loved mansion of the actor would now make him turn in his coffin, if it is granted to him to keep an eye over the corner of Broad and Master streets in the city of Brotherly love.

Mr. Arthur Mathison is writing a new play for Mrs. Scott Siddons.

J. J. McCloskey has written a new play entitled "Castle Garden."

Mrs. J. B. Booth opened her season at Robinson's Opera House, Cincinnati, on the 5th.

Miss Jane Coombs opened at the Grand Opera House, Cincinnati, on the 15th.

Mr. J. L. Toole and company opened at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, on the 12th.

Risley's panorama, Mirror of England, was an-

The New York Mercury of the 4th says:

Sunday concerts are becoming as prolific in this city as in Paris, New Orleans and San Francisco, and their popularity is attested by their constantly increasing number. The irrepressible batonnier, P. S. Gilmore, is in the field again, and will begin his regular season in the Park Theatre this evening with a superb programme, to be interpreted by his famous Twenty-Second Regiment Band, which will include Arbuckle and Lefebre in classic solos, in addition to vocal selections by Mlle. Clara Perl, prima soprano, and Signor Orlandini, baritone.

Sophie and Irene Worrell were to close at the Adelphi, Buffalo, 3d, and depart for New Orleans.

The clergy are improving. The Rev C. W. Buck, of Park street church, Portland, delivered the address at the opening of the Portland Museum, on the 28th. We make the following extract: "He was followed by the farce of "Sarah's Young Man," a poem read by Alice Witham, and the opera of the "Bohemian Girl," presented principally by Clara Fisher, Ellerman, W. H. Tills, and James A. Arnold. The dramatic stock are: Alfy Chippendale, May Cushing, Mrs. Newman, Will Calder, D. Oakley, W. Lonsdale, Walter Birch, H. Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ellis, and Florence Ellis, known as the Child Sappho. Stage manager, James J. Bartlett; musical director W. Schrenfeldt.

There is, perhaps, a certain unfitness in intruding a clerical address upon the attention of audiences assembled to share the humors of a play. But I promise brevity. I would invite you, and through you the general public, to pass judgement upon the theatrical enterprise here inaugurated, with sole regard to its own merits, and not in subservience to prejudgments in any quarter. There are theatrical exhibitions which it is demoralizing to witness and support; and there are conditions of experience in which the expense of time and money involved in attendance at the theatre, or other considerations of like personal character, may well raise a question of personal duty. But your presence here to-night is a practical protest against that jump judgment which puts all theatres under the ban and would close their doors against all persons at all times. The theatre will undoubtedly continue to exist and offer its attractions to the public; but its patrons shall determine the character of its attractions, and its influence for good or evil. If you discountenance and reprobate it as an evil thing it slinks away into a side street, makes successful appeals to the more depraved classes of society, adapts itself to their tastes, and becomes a source of corruption to taint the whole community. Rather, since it cannot be banished, and since it is not in itself an evil, let it be accepted, improved and purified.

Miss Olive Logan commenced an engagement at the Academy of Music, Chicago, on the 12th.

The Boston Courier of the 4th. gives the following account of amusements at the Hub: At the Boston Theatre to-morrow evening Miss Carlotta LeClercq begins an engagement, opening in Wilkie Collin's drama of "The New Magdalen," in which her performance of Mercy Merrick is exceedingly artistic and true to nature. The cast will be a strong one otherwise, and will include Mr. L. R. Shewell as Horace Holmcroft. Mrs. Barry as Grace Rosenbury, Mr. C. Leslie Allen as Ignatius Weitzel, and Mr. Alexander Fitzgerald as Julian Gray.

The special production of the "School for Scandal," which we have previously announced, will take place at the Boston Museum to-morrow evening. The scenery and appointments for this revival are of the most elaborate description, and the cast cannot be surpassed in this country. At the conclusion of the first act an old-style minuet and gavotte dance will be introduced, in which nearly all the ladies and gentlemen of the company will participate. The comedy will be played at all of the entertainments of the week except that of Saturday, when "East Lynne" will be presented.

The New York Spirt of the Times says: We are sorry to hear such bad reports about Mr. Edward Arnott of Wallack's Theatre. He gained a foothold last season in popular favor by doing some very good work, but at San Francisco, when he essayed Romeo, and recently at Philadelphia, as Volage, he made great failures, being so imperfect in both instances as not to know his lines. This is inexcusable, and injures himself as much as it does the reputation of the theatre to which he belongs. We have never favored the "rushing" system of making actors, and this instance furnishes additional testimony of its weakness.

Conforming with the Times.

A Gas Monopoly.

The London correspondent of the Boston Courier says: London householders have been delighted to hear that measures are about to be adopted by the boards of works and the corporation of the City of London to break up the gigantic and injurious monopoly which has been so long and so profitably enjoyed by the Metropolitan gas companies. The throwing of sods of grass in the way of remonstrances, grumbling and indignation meetings of consumers has no effect, but the moment a stone is placed in the sling, no sooner, have directions been given for the publication of the necessary parliamentary notices and the draughting of the necessary bills, than the companies cry in effect, "Don't fire, kernel, we'll come down!" and down they are coming and to such a tune as virtually to plead guilty for having gone up so high, for they have intimated to their customers that they propose to lower their prices to the level at which they were before the rise in the price of coal, which they made the excuse for turning the screw to an unbearable extent. The reduction, however, is not to take place until June next, that is to say, until the time when languid legislators are beginning to "babble of green fields." It is much to be hoped that, having taken the matter in hand, the corporation and the board will not fail to carry out their intention.

That Ordinance.

The Supervisors in this city in sympathy with the denizens of Barbary Coast who have sent them a petition are rather inclined to destroy the Chinese drama in this city by passing an ordinance making it unlawful to keep a theatre open after 12 o'clock. If they do pass this iniquitous ordinance the Chinese theatres will close. They have so much respect for the works of their Shakspeare's, and Lyttons and Sheridans, that they would never allow them to be "cut." We have just as much respect for the Chinese drama as we have for the best works of our American dramatists, J. J. McCloskey, Charles Gayler, Frank Maeder, Mrs. Melinda Jones, Olive Logan, Celia Ditto, and a few others. These Chinese plays are original. They are not stolen from the French. They are rather lengthy, but we enjoy them, and so do the Chinese. The drama should be protected. We hope the Supervisors will muster up sufficient sense to reject this ordinance when it comes up for final consideration.

Good Pay.

Barry Sullivan, the English actor, is to receive $50,000 for his six months season in this country. $10,000 to be paid at his bankers before starting.

The California, the Union, the Pacific, and the Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club find Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny a very good substitute. After the theatres are out there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 212 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. x

Bunker's Club House Sausages.

A delicious table delicacy. They are made of dairy-fed pork, are admirably seasoned, and are a superior to the ordinary dry, tasteless sausage made of beef and pork mixed, as anything can be imagined. Made fresh every morning at Bunker's Stall 74 and 75 California Market, California street entrance. Try them. n

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walter W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsable house. 7-bg

The Green Room.

This popular resort of the professian and all spicures who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescoed and is now a modle of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

PIPES IS DECLARED in all families who buy their furniture and bedding of J. A. Shaber & Co., 707 Market street, near Third, because they get better goods for the same price than any other dealer. 7-

Sam Leazysky & Bros, the well-known Kearny street dry goods merchants, have removed to their handsome new store, corner of Kearny and Sutter street. Opening day Monday Oct. 5th. •

Olive Logan's Wail.

The rural newspapers say that Olive Logan's new plays are very trashy, and Olive has rushed to their defense in a communication to the Chicago Tribune. She says: "I am a woman thirty-five years of age, (there's candor for you, ladies!) and for the past twenty years I have illustrated in my own endeavors the great problem of the woman question—the only really vital one—"How shall I support myself by my own labors?" I have written for the press, taught languages, lectured in public, and acted upon the stage—and in no pursuit have I ever pandered to a wicked taste, ever spoken a word or penned a line which could offend virtue, or which dying, I could wish to blot. When I go into other countries I am received with the respect due a woman of parts; I return to my own land; and I am instantly assailed by the very evil which, when I am abroad, I try to deny to be the besetting sin of America journalism—the scurrility of the press. A great difficulty I have to encounter in setting a piece like this on the stage is, that most actors are not accustomed to such dainty work; like the public, they are used to strong sensations. An actor who plays one of the best parts in "The Woman Who Talks," said to me the other day: "You see we really are not up to playing this sort of part—we are all houp-la actors now-a-days.' Houp-la is probably unknown to Webster, but I suppose it specifies an actor who pumps out a lot of senseless phrases, strikes an attitude which brings down the house, and is a bully boy with a stuffed club throughout his entire dramatic career.

The San Mateo Concert.

The concert given at San Mateo on Saturday evening for the benefit of the Organ Fund of St. Mathew's Church was a great success. The receipts were over $800. The Catholics and non-Catholics joined together to enjoy themselves and quite succeeded. Miss Ellie Wilton, Dan O'Connell, P. McGowan and others gave recitations, Frank Gilder performed on the piano forte, Alfred Wilkie sang, and many others, non-professionals, contributed to the programme. The jolly party of Bohemians who gave the entertainment were sumptuously entertained by Father Dempsey, assisted by Father Bowman. Father Dempsey is like one of those good old monks of old who deemed hospitality, not the least of the Christian virtues. San Mateo will have a fine organ, and the San Mateo people will, we hope, before long, have another entertainment like that of Saturday night. P. McGowan, editor of the San Mateo Times, took an active part in the management of the affair, and to his efforts much of its success was due.

A New Field.

Calcutta is in the London Market for dramatic stars. An agent for the Calcutta Theatre offered Mrs. John Wood and her company six thousand pounds for a season of six months there this winter with privileges that would have probably swelled the amount to ten thousand. It was refused. Mrs. Bancroft of the Prince of Wales Theatre declined the same offer.

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 209 Sutter street near Kearny. 8-bg

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Mrs. Taylor has a great variety of new and elegant costumes, and her terms are the most reasonable of any costumer in the city. Country orders promptly attended to. 9-y

Music Hath Charms.

Plymouth Church Money.

The Washington Critic says:

No better evidence of the strong pressure of the Plymouth Church money-power can be given than that the Grand Jury of Brooklyn could be induced to find a true bill for libel against Moulton for printing a letter in blank as to the name of the writer, which a certain Miss Proctor thinks is a cap to fit her head, and has, therefore, put on. Moulton never said Proctor once, and yet, he is indicted for libeling Proctor, and, although this is only a misdemeanor in law, and the Bill of Rights secures all citizens against excessive bail, the District Attorney had the unblushing hardihood to ask $20,000 bail for Moulton's appearance to meet the charge. This was so manifest a work of oppression, and so well understood to be at variance with right and law, the prosecutor was compelled to drop down to $3,000 bail which Moulton gave, as he said he could give a million.

In the meantime, Beecher has appeared in Plymouth Church amidst the cheers, cries, faintings and hysterical sobs of his emotion and paroxysmal disciples, and commenced his new career this side of the "rough and ragged edge of remore and despair," to help which, he had indicted by the Grand Jury on Saturday last for libel, this bringing the criminal side of the court to bear against the plaintiff in Tilton's civil suit against Beecher. So we go.

A Realistic Drama.

Manager Buckstone in the course of his speech delivered at his annual benefit recently at the Haymarket Theatre, London, said: "the past season had witnessed three new pieces at his theatre, neither could be said to have been very successful. One piece in the green-room was pronounced such a success that he was confidently told his fortune was made. It did not, however, realize expectations. Another piece was so realistic that not only had they real pumps and real hens, but on one evening they had a real egg laid!"

"Clancarty" in Philadelphia.

The City Item of the 9th says:

"Clancarty" has proved a dead failure, and is to be withdrawn on Saturday. This is not the fault of the piece, for it is interesting and well written—it is the fault of Mrs. Drew's inferior company, which is, as a whole, the worst ever seen at the once celebrated Arch Street Theatre.

"Clancarty" is to be replaced by what is announced as "a great local drama" entitled "Law in New York." Whew! Bowery, for certain. What a pity; what a shame.

Didn't Gain Much.

Poor Irish woman with six children, to railroad ticket agent—"Plaze, sir, can't you give a poor widdy with six orphan childer a ticket to Milwaukee?" Ticket Agent—"What have I got to do with your orphan children? I ain't their father, am I?" Woman—"That ye ain't, sur. Their father was a dacent man."

Oysters,

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

To-night an excellent first part performance will be given by Billy Emerson, Ben Cotton, J. G. Russell and others ending with the highly successful scenic sketch entitled "Out at Sea", with a view of the Cliff House and other points of interest After this Harry Rickards the favorite London comedian and vocalist, and Miss Carrie Rickards comedienne and vocalist, will appear in their very pleasant parlor entertainment. W. Arlington will appear in banjo solos, "The Milliners" will be performed by J. F. Oberist, Ben Cotton, Ernest Linden, and J. R. Kemble; Billy Emerson will appear in some of his most brilliant specialties, Billy Rice and J. R. Kemble in "The Actor's Studio" and Lottie and Frank in their unsurpassable gymnastic act entitled "The Aerostatic Voyage."

California Theatre.

To-night Boucicault's drama of "The Streets of New York" will be produced with new scenery by W. T. Porter, Forrest Seabury and assistants, new mechanical effects by John Torrence, R. Stackhouse, T. Gossman and others and with Mr. Frank Mayo in his famous character of Badger, in which he stands unrivalled. Miss Rosa Rand will play Lucy Fairweather, John Wilson Gideon Bloodgood. Miss Jennie Lee Bob, the boot-black, William Barry, will give his capital impersonation of Puffy, with which the public are familiar, Miss Annie Higgs will make her first appearance at this theatre in the character of Johnny, Robert Fatsman will play Dan, Nelson Decker Paul Fairweather, and the parts have been generally well distributed.

Maguire's New Theatre.

The bill played last week was so successful that there is no reason for making any change this week until "M. Alphonse" is ready for production. "Rip Van Winkle" with J. A. Herne in the title role, and Miss Alice Vane as Gertrude, Little Fay Templeton in her "Bouquet of Specialties" and the unrivaled vetriloquist E. D. Davies, in his original act, make up an entertainment hard to beat. Davies' boy Joe last night complained that he had been cruelly attacked in the columns of the Ocina News, and astonished the audience by stating that he was an accomplished linguist.

PROMENADE CONCERT.—A grand promenade concert will be given by the First Regiment Infantry, N. G. C., Col. W. H. L. Barnes commanding, at the Mechanic's Pavilion, on Tuesday evening, October 27th. The orchestra under the direction of Professor George T. Evans, will consist of fifty performers. The fashion of San Francisco will be numerously present.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Johnny Tuers is as great a favorite as ever at this house. Miss Fanny Webster has reappeared, and Miss Della Wilmot and Miss Josie Le Clair have been added to the company. A great variety of acts, songs and dances will be performed this evening.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms. Guido Mangenberg, the proprietor, gets up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain Railroad.

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 8-cj

The Old Mint Restaurant.

At this old established house, 605 Commercial street, above Montgomery, always noted among the bon vivants for its good things, can be procured the finest and best cooked Oysters, Steaks and Chops in town. Terrapins and the choicest brands of Wines and Liquors a specialty. Charges moderate. G. M. Hepburn, the new proprietor, invites the public to give the "Old Mint" a trial. 8-r

Removal—"White House" Restaurant

The popular and well known Dining Saloon "White House", formerly 112 Kearny street, Louis Meyer, Proprietor, has removed to the new and more commodious premises 211 Sutter street, near the Centre Market. Mr. Meyer, in his new and elegant premises, will be able to better accommodate his numerous patrons. 7-bg

Removal.

S. Kohlman, the renowned Stove & Crockery dealer so long established on Third St., has removed to his Magnificent new store 216 Sixth St between Howard & Folsom, where he will be pleased to meet his old friends and customers. 7-bg

Temperance and Chastity.

The Boston Index says: One man does not drink intoxicating liquors, and he calls that being temperate. But no person, except he be a "temperance" fanatic, is satisfied with this definition of temperance. The "temperance" of some is more intemperate than the "intemperance" of some other men. To be truly temperate means a great deal more than to be either moderate or abstinent as to spirituous liquors. The glutton, or the coarse feeder, is not temperate, even though he uses neither wine nor beer nor cider. "Temperance," so says Cicero, "is that which, either in things to be desired or to be shunned, teaches that reason should be followed."

There are other persons, again, who, in addition to eschewing all intoxicating drinks, never smoke or use tobacco in any form and never swear; and these consider themselves free from all bad habits and small vices. Yet sometimes these same persons are jealous, suspicious, irritable, selfish and mean.

Some men, because they are the husband of one wife only, esteem themselves and are esteemed pure and chaste.....Legal marriage alone does not confer purity and chastity upon the sexual relation. For these we must look deeper than law. We must look into those chivalrous instincts of manly character that make a man bow before the shrine of womanhood, wedded or unwedded, and hold him back from the least headstrong thought, or wish, or gesture which might impair woman's self-respect or trench upon her sacred prerogative. To be virtuous is to be self-controlled in all respects and in all directions. To be virtuous is to obey the law of right reason in all things.

Pleasant-Mannered Children.

"Thank you, Charlie," said Mrs. Brown, as her little son handed her a paper he was requested to bring.

"Thank you, Bridget," said the little fellow a few hours after, as he received a glass of water from his nurse.

"Well, Mrs. Brown, you have the best mannered children I ever saw!" said a neighbor. I should be thankful if mine were as polite to me as yours are to the servants. You never spend half as much time on your children's clothes as I do, and yet every one notices them, they are so well behaved."

"We always try to treat our children politely," was the quiet reply.

This was the whole secret. When we hear parents grumbling about the ill-manners of their children, we always wish to ask Have you always treated them with politeness?" we once knew a man, considered quite a gentleman in society, who would speak to his children in a manner that a well-instructed dog would resent. He would order them with a growl to bring his slippers, or perform some other little service; and yet he complained of the rudeness and disobedience of his children.

SELF-MADE MEN.

How often do we hear a man say, when speaking of his business, that he has more than he can attend to. With few rare exceptions, no one has ever built up a business that he can not attend to. Sometimes one will commence a small business, that, by some fortuitous circumstances—such as a good locality, or the want of some energetic man in that line in the same location, etc., and will find that his business has gone far ahead of his expectations, then he is apt to be satisfied with what comes to him without much effort on his part, and talk about having more than he can attend to.

Did one ever hear of Stewart, of Vanderbilt, or Scott, or in fact any of the self-made men of America, ever using the above-named phrase? On the contrary, all, or nearly all of this class of people commenced business in a small way, commensurate with their capital, and by constant application built up their business little by little until they became known to the whole mercantile world.

A large business cannot be built up in a day or a week, but by energy, fair dealing and moderate prices, it can be done in a short time. As a case in point, we will refer to Mr. P. Beamish, a merchant of this city, who, a few years since commenced business on a small scale, but with the determination of increasing that business as much as he could. It was early a principle with Mr. B. to buy for CASH and sell for CASH so that he had no bad debts to counteract the profits on his sales particular attention was given to the fitting and making of White Shirts so that he soon became known throughout the city by the quality of his work, his low prices, etc.

One other point, Mr. B. has always been careful in and that is, to GUARANTEE all of his goods to be as represented. His stock consists of probably the best selected and most complete lines of Gents Furnishing Goods, White Shirts, etc., etc., on this coast Mr. Beamish early recognized the fact that Market street was destined to become in time, the principal thoroughfare of the city, and being of that view, he took a lease of the store on the corner of Market and Third street (Nucleus building). It was not long before he had more business than he could accommodate—in the store he then occupied. So he lessed the large store adjoining fronting on Market street, and stocked it with one of the most complete assortments of Gents' Ready Made Clothing to be found in this city. Mr. Beamish did not enlarge his business until his capital justified him in doing so, and result was that when he went into the wholesale market as a cash buyer, he not only obtained the latest and most desirable styles but he purchased at a low figure, and as he sells for cash, he, of course, has no outstanding debts, and can afford to sell his goods at a small profit. A visit to his store will convince every purchaser that the goods he sells cannot be bought elsewhere of equal quality at the same figure. This is one of the great secrets of his success. Mr. Beamish remarked to us that he had all sizes of over one hundred different styles of men's and boys. Linen Shirts constantly on hand in store, besides which he keeps employed a large number of practical shirt makers and experienced cutters to fit and make to order at his manufactory.

A Negro Preacher's Idea.

Dar was old Fader Jupiter. Now Jupiter, he used to get a Bible in one han' an' a pra'-book in de odder, an' a hymn-book under his arm, and den he'd start out to see de widders and de faderless, one day I met old Fadder Jupiter, an' I says to him, "Fadder Jupiter how many pounds of sugar have ye exhorted? How many pounds of meat have ye prayed? How many cups of coffee have ye sung to dem poor widders and faderless?" An' he says, "Not one." An' den I says, "Pears like Fadder Jupiter, ye'll sing here an' pray dar an' ye'll pray every widder to death, and sing every faderless chile to de grave, an' call in help to bury 'em." An' den I told him dat when he sung he mus' call a bar'l o' flour long meter, an' fur short meter take a keg o' lard, and fur partickler meter nice ham an' coffee, an' den he mus' take de Quaker pra'r-book, a two wheeled cart, an' fill up de old pra'r-book wid coal, an' when de cold wedder comes he mus' drive de ole pra'r-book down to some widder sister's an' say, "Sister, I'se come to pray six bushels o' coal wid ye; an' den open de cellah doah, dump de ole pra'r-book an' pray de cellah full of coal."

A True Friend.

Rossini had a favorite provision merchant. One day the latter rather bashfully said to Rossini, "I have for a long time wanted to ask you a favor." "Name it," said the maestro. "It is," replied the merchant, "that you will give me your photograph, with a few words under it." Willingly," responded Rossini, and he took a photograph from his pocketbook, and wrote under it, "To the friend of my stomach."

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Sure Death.

Frank Brower, who was once a good actor, and who afterwards became a good negro minstrel performer (who that ever heard him sing "Sugar Bob or I Said to Sandy" will ever forget him?) died several months ago in Philadelphia. The following anecdote about him is now going the rounds: When he first arrived in New York, rather seedy looking after a long journey, the barkeeper at the Metropolitan Hotel asked him to pay for his glass of brandy before he swallowed it. "What!" cried Frank, astonished at this unusual demand. "Yes," said the barkeeper, "it's the boss's orders. All strangers must pay for it before they drink it." "G-goodness!" cried Brower, "is it so instantaneous in its fatal effects?"

Captivating.

The party of Bohemians who went down to San Mateo on Saturday night, went fishing next day. It was a splendid day for fishing, but the Bohemians were out of luck. Dan O'Connell managed to catch three little trout with a fly. Miss Ellie Wilton observed a big trout nibbling at her hook, he didn't seem inclined to bite, she smiled at him and the monster was caught. This was the success of the day. Surely here is a line of industry open to the ladies. Their captivating ways would insure them success as fishermen.

A Very Nice Young Lady.

Mufflington called on Miss ——— of Folsom street, yesterday, to ask her to accompany him to the Carnival Ball. He was not to blame for he did not know Miss —— was a strict Methodist. He was somewhat taken aback therefore when she remarked: "Dancing will not prepare me to meet Jesus in the judgment; and I would not dare to have Him find me in the ball-room or at a dance when He comes."

Had Him There.

At Cork Assizes, a learned gentleman, dissatisfied at his success with a witness, complained to the court. Paddy exclaimed: "My lord, I am no lawyer, and he wants to puzzle me." Counsel—"Come, now, do you swear you are no lawyer?" Witness—"Faith, an' I do; and you may swear the same about yourself without fear of being liable for perjury."

Not Essential.

A county treasurer in Alabama can't read or write, but he has put $7,000 where no one but himself can find it. This shows that a collegiate education isn't essential to the acquirement of wealth.

Religious Souls.

A fellow hid under a sofa at an informal Boston missionary meeting, says the thirty-five ladies spoke twice of the down-trodden heathen and more than a hundred times of a new kind of hair dye,

The California, the Union, the Pacific, and the Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club find Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny a very good substitute, After the theatres are out there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. B. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 212 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. x

Banker's Club House Sausages.

A delicious table delicacy. They are made of dairy-fed pork, are admirably seasoned, and are a superior to the ordinary dry, tasteless sausage made of beef and pork mixed, as anything can be imagined. Made fresh every morning at Banker's Stall 74 and 75 California Market, California street entrance. Try them. n.

The Fall.

The fall of man was a very lamentable event in one way of looking at it, but if it had not taken place the splendid Hats which are sold at "The Hat Store" 647 Washington street, would never have come into fashion. We make this remark apropos of the fact that this establishment has just introduced the new Fall and Winter styles.

Chair and Basket Factory.

The Buckeye Chair and Basket Factory, Walker W. Moses, & Co., proprietors, 920 and 922 Market street, is prepared to execute orders (whole sale and retail) for carriages, cradles, chairs, work baskets, market baskets etc. The Buckeye, sells everything low as any other responsible house. 7-bg

The Green Room.

The popular resort of the professian and all spirituous who can appreciate good liquors and a good lunch, is directly opposite the California Theatre. It has just been beautifully frescoed and is now a modle of taste and elegance. Everybody goes to the Green Room between the acts. x

PEACE IS DECLARED in all families who buy their furniture and bedding of J. A. Shaber & Co., 707 Market street, near Third, because they get better goods for the same price than any other dealer. 7.

A Well-Informed Man.

The New York Dispatch says:

On Thursday afternoon we visited Booth's Theatre. Behind us sat—well, yes, we'll call him a gentleman. He was large and wore whiskers. He had a self-satisfied look and he spoke loud. At times he drowned the sounds of the orchestra, and the actors on the stage couldn't wrestle with him at all. He had no sooner entered than he began, "Splendid house! Magnificent! Reminds me of when I was in London. At her Majesty's Opera House. Have you ever seen the Giant's Causeway? Never! Immense columns of basalt. You can't take in the Giant's Causeway all at once. It's like Niagara. It grows on you in its immensity gradually. I've seen Niagara Falls forty-eight times, and I assure you they're immeasurably larger in my eyes than they were at first. Ah! I see they've got "Lucia de Lammermoor" on the bill. I've been where the scene is laid. It's in Dumbarton, near Loch Gyle. Magnificent scenery around there! Mountains that tower into the sky—valleys where browse the dork, and the leprehaun, and the hippopotamus and the deer! Streams where the cod and the blue fish and salmon sport! Aha! Billy Birch is on the bill. I often wonder when he's on the stage making everybody laugh, if he thinks of the ten days we spent together lashed to a spar in mid-ocean. Billy has pluck, I tell you. Notwithstanding the danger of our position, he never wavered. And when I was getting low-spirited and losing heart, he'd jump up on the spar and sing a comic song. Though we suffered terribly I look back to those days with pleasure." And so he went on from the moment he entered to the close of the performance. And he couldn't understand how it was that people in the audience stared and remarked: "What a bore!" and "Hadn't we better stop the performance and listen to this lecture?" And he was not brought to his senses when a young man in the second tier shouted out: "Throw that windbag out of the window. There's a couple of hungry lions in the next yard. They've howled so much that they're short of wind, and he's the party to supply them." Yet we sat and suffered through the entire performance, and didn't say a word. We were anxious to learn how great a jackass it was possible for a man to make of himself. We know now, and don't want any more lessons.

The Price of a Kiss.

A London correspondent of the Chicago Journal says: What is the tariff in the States for kissing a barmaids? I ask for information, because we have just established one here. Mr. Partridge, one of our most conscientious magistrates, in a case recently before him, has decided that kissing a barmaid's hand is French manners, and only a bit of fun and from the point of view of an English statute is nothing, and hence it may be indulged in with impunity, so far as he is concerned. But to kiss a barmaid on the cheek is an offense within the law, and he must inflict a fine of $5. The supreme offense is putting an arm around the waist of a barmaid and kissing her on the lips, and this is to be punished by a fine of $7 50 ($0 shillings English). Figaro says that is cheap enough, provided the barmaid is pretty. The recent offender, however, was unable to pay the fine, and was sent to prison in consequence.

Ackerman's.

Have you visited Ackerman's Grand Central Variety Establishment? If not, you have not seen one of the new features of San Francisco. It is a Fair in itself, and visitors are invited to inspect the thousands of beautiful articles therein, and will be received with the utmost courtesy, whether they purchase or not. No. 269 Sutter street near Kearny. 8-bg

Carnival Ball.

As the season of masquerades is approaching we would advise those in want of costumes to call on Mrs. W. G. Taylor, the pioneer costumer at No. 708 Montgomery street, up stairs. Sunday Amusements.

The Philadelphia All Day City Item says: The law of New York imposes a fine of one thousand dollars upon any person giving a theatrical entertainment on Sunday. It is said that the proprietor of the Bowery Theatre pays this fine every Monday morning. The inference naturally is that there is pecuniary profit in the transaction—both to city and manager: We would not, under ordinary circumstances, counsel the violation of any law; but there is no doubt in our mind that the example set by the New York theatre could be followed in this city with much profit to all—especially would it be acceptable to the people.

There is a great deal of old fogyism still existing in this world of ours, and no where is it more apparent and more obnoxious to the progressive mind than in connection with places of amusement. Even in this nineteenth century when there is a popular belief that we live in a progressive age, there are found those who oppose the Sunday paper. In the interior of this State eighteen clergymen have taken upon themselves to publish a protest against the issue of a local paper upon Sunday. It is not to be wondered at, then, that there are also those who oppose the opening of theatres upon any day; the reason which could readily be given for this amusement on the day known as Sunday are so self-evident that it is hardly necessary to refer to them. The time is past for making excuses for the publication of a Sunday paper; they have become a necessity—as much as the daily—and the time must come when the open doors of a theatre upon that day will need no apology. The opposition to these things must go down in the inevitable progress of the world.

In the city of New Orleans it has been the custom always to have theatrical entertainments on Sunday. The same may be said of St. Louis. And yet the most bigoted opponent of this custom will be unable to show that it has been the cause of any evil-doing in a single instance. The mass of the people require and demand relaxation from daily toil, and they call loudly for that which is most acceptable to themselves. They will not go where the few say they shall pass their leisure hours, unless their own inclination leads them in that direction. This cannot be truthfully denied.

If if is necessary to specify any reason for open theatres on the first day of the week, it can truly be said that thousands would go to see the play who would otherwise be engaged in far more injurious pastimes—unquestionably more so if objectionable in the least. At the present time Sunday is looked forward to with dread by a great many people. That day has been made one of such extreme dullness and deprivation of all amusement that a sigh of relief is heard on all sides when Monday once arrives. The writer has frequently heard persons declare that Sunday was a wretched bore, and no doubt most others have heard the same remark. While we do not wish to countenance such expressions or encourage such thoughts, this state of things exists, and we must speak of things as we find them. Try as we may to disguise this, it is the fact, and as such deserves recognition and adjustment.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

Family Oyster Rooms.

It is fashionable for ladies, now-a-days, to go to Joe Giusti's new Family Oyster Rooms, 105 California Market, for their meals: Joe, with natural gallantry, saves for them his finest oysters, the fattest quails and the choicest chops and steaks. Open night and day. 9-bi

An Honest Confession.

At a recent reception, a fat, elderly gentleman succeeded, after much pushing and crowding, in reaching the President, whose hand he seized and shook vigorously, shouting, at the same time, at the pitch of his voice. "Mr. President, I am happy to make your acquaintance sir, not only as President, but also as a farmer, sir!" Gen. Grant, embarrassed by this noisy greeting, looked for a moment confused, then rallying answered, "Well yes, I am a farmer and a very poor one," which acknowledgement so overcame the old gentleman, that he spent the rest of his visit (about ten minutes) in staring our President out of countenance.

California Theatre.

There was a tremendous rush to this theatre last night when "The Streets of New York" was produced. Long before eight o'clock the announcement "standing room only" was displayed at the box office, and still the crowd pressed on. The play has never been so well put on the stage and acted as it was last night. It achieved such a success that it must certainly be up for a run. Frank Mayo as Badger, the Californian, returned to New York, acted the part admirably. Every point was made with telling effect, and the applause was loud and frequent. "How are you, Gid?" will ence more be a street phrase and Badger the hero of the hour. Miss Rosa Rand as Lucy Fairweather, was interesting and carried the sympathies of the audience with her in the character. Nelson Decker gave a pleasant, unstrained rendition of the part of Paul Fairweather. John Wilson as Gideon Bloodgood, displayed much power and gained the execrations of the audience for that despicable character. Miss Belle Chapman displayed considerable skill in the manner in which she acted the rather ungrateful part of Alida Bloodgood, Miss Jennie Lee made quite a hit as Bob the boot-black, W. Barry was amusing as ever as Puffy, Robert Pateman made a good deal of the character of Dan, Mrs. Judah as Mrs. Puffy, J. P. Burnett as Mark Livingstone, Mrs. Sophie Edwin as Mrs. Fairweather and Miss Annie Higgs as Johnny, all played their respective parts well. The new scenes of Union Square and the notorious Brooklyn Heights are splendidly painted, and the fire scene was most effectively managed. When well mounted and well played "The Streets of New York" however open to criticism, it may be as a literary production, is undeniably a very popular piece, and Badger, as a sketch of California character, is in itself, when played by an artist like Frank Mayo, a sufficient attraction to crowd any theatre.

Maguire's New Theatre.

"Rip Van Winkle," is a continued success with J. A. Herne in the title role, Miss Alice Vane as Gertrude, Fay Templeton as Lorena, Miss Bellie Deaves as Heindrick, and a generally strong cast. Fay Templeton appears nightly in her attractive specialties, and E. D. Davies with his two old 49ers, and Tom and Joe, makes witty comments on the events of the day. "Parepa Rosa," "Blind Beggars" and "Solon Shingle," are in preparation.

Opera House.

So great is the rush to this house, that after eight o'clock it is impossible to obtain seats. The public will therefore see the advisability of securing seats in advance. The finale of the first part, "Out at Sea" is a great success, the Rickards gain much applause in their parlor entertainment, Billy Emerson appears in his wonderfully funny Dutch song and dance, "Love Among Big Noses," Ben Cotton, J. F. Oberist, J. R. Kemble and Ernest Linden in "The Milliners" Billy Arlington in banjo solos, Billy Rice and J. R. Kemble in "The Actor's Studio," and the incomparable Miss Lottie, and the daring and graceful Frank in their grand act entitled "The Aerostatic Voyage." Miss Lottie will take a benefit on Friday night, and there will certainly be a large house to do honor to the daring young gymnast.

Buckley's New Variety Theatre.

Ned Buckley will make his appearance to-night, with Harry Devoy in the act of "Travelling Minstrels, or How Far is it to the Next Town?" Johnny Tuers in "Madame Gassenigger," and Frank Mortimore, Johnny Kelly and Harry Devoy in "School."

Benefit to Madame Buisiay.

On Sunday next an entertainment will be given at the City Gardens to Madame Buisiay, widow of Ernest Buisiay, the proprietors Messrs. Schneider & Gramm having tendered the Gardens free of charge. Madame Buisiay is left with four children to support, and is in delicate health. The public will respond.

PROMENADE CONCERT.—A grand promenade concert will be given by the First Regiment Infantry, N. G. C., Col. W. H. L. Barnes commanding, at the Mechanic's Pavilion, on Tuesday evening, October 27th. The orchestra under the direction of Professor George T. Evans, will consist of fifty performers. The fashion of San Francisco will be numerously present.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Pleasure and Gain.

A writer (who uses the nom de plume of an asterisk) in the Chronicle says: Profitable amusement is what everybody desires. It combines intellectual pastime with beneficial results. It is poetry and fact embracing each other; and what's just exactly what's the matter with the celebrated I X L auction store, on the southeast corner of Kearny and Commercial streets. The evenings there are full of sparkle and substance. While the salesmen are the wittiest fellows in the world, they are also the most honest. They never seek to deceive, Truth in their eyes is the first element of true virtue, and they therefore represent goods precisely as they are. Bon mots and bargains constitute the source of all their happiness.

Conforming with the Times.

Messrs. Fox & Vincent, who are the Bonifaces of the old established and popular saloon, 138 Montgomery street, opposite the Occidental Hotel, have reduced the price of their beverages to the popular rates. The same first-quality grades of liquors which have given this symposium its celebrity, will be sold hereafter at popular prices, instead of 25 cents, as formerly. 10 o

Great Bargains in Clothing.

The only store in the city that has the largest cheapest and finest assortment of Men's and Boys Clothing, is H. Peyser's Montgomery Avenue Clothing Store, 719 Montgomery street, between Washington and Jackson. Also, a large assortment of Men's and Boys' Overcoats and Cloaks and the finest stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, Trunks, Valises, etc. 2-r

The original "Swain's Bakery" is now established in their magnificent new place at 218 Sutter street, near Centre Market, and has add[ed]

SUMMER'S DONE.

Along the wayside and up the hills
The golden rod flames in the sun;
The blue-eyed gentian nods good-by
To the sad little brooks that run;
And so Summer's done, said I,
Summer's done!

In the yellowing woods the chestnut drops;
The squirrel gets gaiter,
Though bright-eyed lads and little maids
Rob him of half his store;
And so Summer's o'er, said I,
Summer's o'er.

The maple in the swamp begins
To flaunt in gold and red,
And in the elm the fire-bird's nest
Swings empty overhead;
And so Summer's dead, said I,
Summer's dead!

The barberry hangs her jewels out
And guards them with a thorn;
The merry farmer boys cut down
The old dried up corn;
And so Summer's gone, said I
Summer's gone!

The swallows and the bobolinks
Are gone this many a day,
But in the mornings still you hear
The scolding, swaggering jay!
And so Summer's away, said I,
Summer's away!

A wonderful glory fills the air,
And big and bright is the sun;
A loving hand for the whole brown earth
A garment of beauty has spun;
But for all that, Summer's done, said I,
Summer's done!

SELF-MADE MEN.

How often do we hear a man say, when speaking of his business, that he has more than he can attend to. With few rare exceptions, no one has ever built up a business that he can not attend to. Sometimes one will commence a small business, that, by some fortuitous circumstances—such as a good locality, or the want of some energetic man in that line in the same location, etc., and will find that his business has gone far ahead of his expectations, then he is apt to be satisfied with what comes to him without much effort on his part, and talk about having more than he can attend to.

Did one ever hear of Stewart, of Vanderbilt, or Scott, or in fact any of the self-made men of America, ever using the above-named phrase? On the contrary, all, or nearly all of this class of people commenced business in a small way, commensurate with their capital, and by constant application built up their business little by little until they became known to the whole mercantile world.

A large business cannot be built up in a day or a week, but by energy, fair dealing and moderate prices, it can be done in a short time. As a case in point, we will refer to Mr. P. Beamish, a merchant of this city, who, a few years since commenced business on a small scale, but with the determination of increasing that business as much as he could. It was early a principle with Mr. B. to buy for CASH and sell for CASH so that he had no bad debts to counteract the profits on his sales particular attention was given to the fitting and making of White Shirts so that he soon became known throughout the city by the quality of his work, his low prices, etc.

One other point, Mr. B. has always been careful in and that is, to GUARANTEE all of his goods to be as represented. His stock consists of probably the best selected and most complete lines of Gents Furnishing Goods, White Shirts, etc., etc., on this coast. Mr. Beamish early recognized the fact that Market street was destined to become in time, the principal thoroughfare of the city, and being of that view, he took a lease of the store on the corner of Market and Third street (Nucleus building). It was not long before he had more business than he could accommodate—in the store he then occupied. So he leased the large store adjoining fronting on Market street, and stocked it with one of the most complete assortments of Gents' Ready Made Clothing to be found in this city. Mr. Beamish did not enlarge his business until his capital justified him in doing so, and result was that when he went into the wholesale market as a cash buyer, he met only obtained the latest and most desirable styles but he purchased at a low figure, and as he sells for cash, he, of course, has no outstanding debts, and can afford to sell his goods at a small profit. A visit to his store will convince every purchaser that the goods he sells cannot be bought elsewhere of equal quality at the same figure. This is one of the great secrets of his success. Mr. Beamish remarked to us that he had all sizes of over one hundred different styles of men's and boys. Linen Shirts constantly on hand in store, besides which he keeps employed a large number of practical shirt makers and experienced cutters to fit and make to order at his manufactory.

California Wine.

The Sonoma Independent of October 10th says:

D. Creten, the fantastic Frenchman of Kentucky Flat, who has been running wild so long from the effects of California wine, and whose only raiment of late has been a hat decked with feathers and a sword and belt, was sent to the Asylum on Wednesday. Considerable strategy was resorted to in his arrest by the Sheriff, Jack Barry and Dr. Livingstone. The cabin is well barricaded, being something less than a foot thick, tinned and ironed with rifle holes for the benefit of an enemy—his hallucination being that the French revolutionists were after him—he was considered a dangerous customer to handle. He had retreated to his stronghold upon the approach of the officers locking the door, and stood ready for the assault. After being convinced that the door, as was Friar Tuck, from the assault of the Black Knight's battle-ax, he opened, with the assurance that the party only wished him to come to town and vote. Barnum's museum as a curiosity shop is a tame affair to the interior of the little castle. Large rocks piled upon shelves, labeled diamonds; a bust of Napoleon I., and Marshal Ney, consisting of large round stones for heads and shoulders, with chapeau fantastically decked with plumes, were among the curiosities of the establishment. From casual observation, we have an idea that a cask of California wine, as a general thing, contains a better assortment of venomous reptiles, rats, devils and such like than any other beverage set out to allure the taste of man.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Managers

Of Amusements, Excursions, Lectures, and Concerts, are directed to the splendid Printing Establishment of B. F. Sterett, 532 Clay Street, over the San Francisco Market. The largest Posters, in Plain or Fancy Colors, are turned out in the shortest possible space of time. Also, Beautiful Programmes, Tickets, etc., etc. printed to suit the most fastidious. Mr. Sterett keeps constantly on hand a fine line of bright colored papers of every shade, and the prices charged for these are very little in advance of plain white paper. Streamers of various sizes, from 18 to 42 inch letters, in stock, of all colors of paper and ink. Theatre Managers are especially invited to call for estimates. This well known Printing House was established by he present proprietor in 1850, and has been in successful operation ever since. 3-oj

Funeral of Mark Smith.

In the afternoon of October 11th, at 1 o'clock, a great multitude assembled in Nineteenth street, opposite the Church of the Transfiguration. At half-past one a hearse was driven to the door. From the hearse was taken a plain rosewood coffin, on whose plate were the words, "Mark Smith." The coffin was almost hid under a load of floral offerings. It was followed into the church by the few who were able to gain admission. The guests of the Lotos Club had already filled two-thirds of the little church, and at 1 1-2 o'clock there was not even standing room.

Mr. George W. Colby, Director, played a dirge on the organ as the pall bearers deposited the remains in a garden of flowers at the altar. Then the pall bearers, namely, Messrs. John Gilbert, Charles Fisher, A. Oakley Hall, Wm. Winter, Lester Wallack, H. D. Palmer, Whitelaw Reid, Douglas Taylor, A. M. Palmer, Max Strakosch, Wm. Stuart, and Charles Wheatleigh, took the seats which had been reserved for them. The ushers were Candos Fulton, Horace Wall, J. B. Polk, John W. Carroll, John T. Raymond, Harry Beckett, D. J. Vincent, M. Simmons, Charles D. Brown, Jno. Griffin, and George W. Brown.

The service, which was performed by the Rev. Dr. Houghton, was the usual burial service of the Episcopal Church. It lasted about three quarters of an hour, and at its conclusion the coffin was borne from the house without being opened.

The body of Mark Smith was put on board a train for St. Louis the same night.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 419, opposite the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish Rock."

The California, the Union, the Pacific, and the Bohemian are all popular clubs. Those who do not belong to a club find Chapman & Terrill's Billiard Parlor, northeast corner of Bush and Kearny a very good substitute. After the theatres are out there is a perfect rush to this agreeable resort, and billiards, and good wines, liquors and cigars, make an hour pass away very pleasantly.

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. B. H. Cowan's Institute, removed to 212 Kearny street, from 1 to 3 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. 8

CREMATION.

Only a short time ago the newspapers in all parts of the world daily published articles on the subject of cremation. How is it that the agitation has died out? Has the opposition of the undertakers, who feared that their craft was in danger, been too much for cremation? This is the sort of thing to be started in San Francisco where the people are generally liberal in their ideas. We do not think there are many persons in this city who would oppose cremation on religious grounds, namely, as throwing difficulties in the way of the resurrection. The recent expose of the manner in which the bodies of those who die in poverty are pitched into the ground, is a strong argument in favor of cremation. It is an unpleasant idea, this putting the body which has held a loved soul out of sight to slowly decay. A cremation company could, we are pretty sure, be started in San Francisco. The money which is at present expended on hearses and coffins and carriages and ostrich plumes and shrouds could be more satisfactorily spent on handsome mortuary urns. The Bohemians have free souls; we propose that, in order to set an example, each of the members of the Bohemian Club sign a compact whereby he agrees, in the event of his being the first to die, to give up his body to be royally burned under the auspices of the Club. Somebody must make a beginning. In this case, where so much is at stake, (the abolition of swindling cemeteries, the public health and the getting rid of undertaker's bills), we do not say Fiat experimentum in corpore vili. We want a good subject to begin with. We are not quite ready, but when we have done with this perishable body it is heartily at the disposal of any person or persons who will decently cremate it.

French Theatres.

The Philadelphia City Item says a correspondent, writing from Paris, makes the following remarks which we know to be true, and we, therefore, publish them:

"The Paris theatres are not half so pleasant as those in the principal cities of the United States. They generally have from four to six tiers divided into boxes, and enclosed so as to render them well-nigh stifling, and to entirely destroy the effect of an audience by keeping it out of sight. I have suffered more in a theatre here in one evening than I have for a whole season in Boston, New York, or Philadelphia. Even the French who are not enamoured of fresh air as the English and Americans are, could not endure the close atmosphere of their play-houses, if they did not repair to the foyer between the acts for the purpose of getting refreshments and pure oxygen.

"The entr'actes on the continent are so very long that they would be insupportable were it not for the foyer, and the recreation taken therein. Including such advantage, I find lyric and dramatic performances in the capital hard to sit out in consequence of the heat and poor ventilation. I do not allude particularly to these September evenings—really too warm for indoor amusements—but to any and all evenings, be they in autumn or mid-winter.

"The boxes are generally attended by women, who invariably look for, and often demand a douceur for opening the doors. They are glad to get three or four sous from a Parisian, although they except as many francs from an outside barbarian, particularly if they suspect he is capable of speaking English.

Entries for the Great Race.

The entries for the Pacific Jockey Club's four mile and repeat race for $25,000, which is to come off on the 14th of next month, closed last evening at 9 o'clock at the Lick House. There were eight horses entered for the contest viz: "Katie Pease," "Thad Stevens," "Joe Daniels," "Hubbard," "Henry," "Alpha," "Hock Hocking" and "Harwood." This will make a fine field of horses for the great race.

Theatres in Heaven.

Mark Smith, the actor, though he has not long left this "earth sphere," has already communicated with the friends he left behind, through the mediumship of Mrs. J. H. Conant of the Boston Banner of Light. Here is his message which is considerably better than most of the twaddle which appears in the Banner of Light:

"The ascended spirit looks upon life, if it looks aright, as one vast stage, and you all actors upon it, each performing your part as best you may, and it is not for the "star" to look down upon the "supes," because they occupy a little lower position, but for each and all to see to it that they obey orders and do their own part well. Now if that could be carried out in life, how much better off we would all be! The scandal-monger would not have anything to feed upon—everybody would be attending to their own business, and each all would find far more happiness than seeking to poke their nose into somebody else's teeth.

Now some of my good spiritually-minded friends said to me not long before I made my exit from this mortal stage, 'Mark! there's another life—a real life—a life as tangible as this here. There are theatres there, and all places such as you have here, only on a grander, more extended scale. Now, when you get there, if you find I have told you right, put in appearance somewhere where you can get a hearing, and tell us how it is.'

So I am here to say you told me the truth, although I laughed in your face then, and doubted your sanity on that point. But it is a truth, and so far a truth that I myself have been engaged to play at one of the grand theatres in yonder spirit-world for a season, hoping to do myself more honor than I ever did here.

Now, skeptics, raise your hands in holy horror. Theatres in heaven! Yes; I wouldn't want to be there if there were none. It would be no heaven to me, and what I say upon that point millions of others will reiterate. If you are going to have a heaven for us, you must have a place we can be happy in. We want our theatres and places of amusement; it would be a very unwise God who wouldn't provide them for us, since in this spirit-world our theatres are places of instruction, just what they ought to be and profess to be here, only you dishonor them by giving them a low cast. Not so in the other life; they are honored as institutions of learning. Think of it, you church members! The theatre is an institution of learning in yonder spirit-world, and as such is patronized by sages as well as savages, and those pictorial illustrations upon the stage of yonder theatres are grand processes, by which many receive instruction who could receive it, probably, in no other way. The child needs the primer as the adult needs the grammar, and these primary institutions of learning in the spirit-world are, to me, sacred, and I know they are to every lover of human progress.

Yours truly, MARK SMITH.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend. "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

A Flat Contradiction.

At a recent meeting at the London Tabernacle, Mr. Spurgeon gave a brief sermon on small sins, leading to great sins, and finished by introducing an American divine, who, he said, was anxious to address a few words to the congregation. Accordingly the Rev. Mr. Pentecost (we are not quite certain as to the exact name) got up and spoke of the sin of cigar smoking, and how he had fought against the habit, and at last prevailed by the blessing and assistance of Providence. Upon this Mr. Spurgeon remarked that he could not allow his congregation to go away without telling them that he did not consider cigar smoking to be a sin, and that, by the grace of God, he hoped to enjoy a good cigar before going to bed that night.
